The Criminal Bison.

As a specie of hardened criminals among placid herbivorous animals none is worse than the bison, or American buffalo. Toward man and beast and even among themselves these vicious, vindictive and agile brutes, whose half-brothers on other continents do not fear even the terrific onslaughts of lions and tigers, are in a state of almost continuous warfare. Eagerly cropping grass from a meadow or luxuriantly wallowing in a swamp mud of their ranges, a herd of these giant, brown, ponderous-headed, shaggy patriarchs make a scene of peace and contentment. Yet they are among the wickedest rogues and most aggressive fighters ever seen in a zoo. Sullen and ugly, they often become furious to madness without the least provocation, and frequently attack one another with serious or fatal results.—McClure's Magazine.

The Farmers' Institute.

Charles E. Bond, who visited Athena yesterday, says there is great interest in that vicinity over the Farmers' Institute to be held in this city on May 26. A large number of farmers from that district will attend.

TWO INFORMATIONS.

William Morton Held for Robbery as Well as for Intent to Kill.

Two informations were filed yesterday afternoon against William Morton, the sheepherder who shot Pat Dougherty April 16, through a lung. One charges him with assault with intent to kill, the other with highway robbery.

The two versions of the shooting were published, circumstantially in the East Oregonian immediately after the row. The incident of the alleged hold-up has only just recently been made known. The claim is that during the quarrel which terminated in the shooting, Morton undertook to collect in a drastic way the wages which he claimed were due him, compelling Mrs. Pat Dougherty to give him $7.30. This he is said to have done by threatening her with a pistol—the same weapon with which he shot Dougherty later on.

THE WORST FLY.

Large Insect With a Bad Bite That Lives in Dismal Swamp.

A dreadful pest of the lower Florida swamps is the Cape Sable horsefly, says a writer in Country Life in America. Specimens measure an inch and a quarter in length. Their bite draws blood like the thrust of a knife. Imagine a swarm of them darting around one like so many humming birds. Fortunately they are not, at least early in the season, particularly inclined to attack man. The only domestic animal that can live in this country is the mule, and even his tough hide requires a fly-proof stable for its protection and a suit of armor out doors.

One day I engaged a mule and tip cart to save several miles of weary lugging along the strip of prairie before we struck off into the interior to visit a great rookery. When the guide brought the animal, I presented a truly remarkable appearance, clad in a suit of burlap that would have afforded complete protection, had been slit down, as the animal could hardly have been induced to put them on. So the flaps hung dangling about the legs, the ears protected above, and the calm eyes gazed out through the loopholes, surveying the swarm of flies and the stranger.

We left him tied to a palm tree for the day. At dusk, when we returned, the legs of the poor beast were dripping with blood, and he was fairly frantic with pain. We had a stormy experience in harnessing him, having to very spry to avoid being killed by the flying hoofs. I felt sorry for the mule that was born to live in such a country.

Every young man should provide for the rainy day when some girl will want him to marry her right off, if he can afford it or not.
