BREAK AGREEMENT

SOME HEAVY WOOL SALES ARE EFFECTED ALREADY.

Makes Much Dissatisfaction on the Part of Those Who Adhere to the Compact to Wait Till Sales Day—First Sales Day Will Be May 23—Fifty-two Thousand Pounds Arrived at Furnish Warehouse Yesterday.

The usual summer scrap among the wool men is now on and will be a feature until the wool is sold. Each year the wool men come to an "agreement" that they will hold their wool in the warehouses until the time of the sales, when it will all be offered to the buyers at once and disposed of. Each year the first clips are brought in and put in the warehouses, and each year a large number of them are sold to the buyers before the last men to shear have a chance to get their fleeces to the storing places. And each time the last ones set up the contention that the ones selling are trying to break up the union and are in effect bearing the prices of the product against the common interests of all.

That is what is the trouble now. C. A. Johnson has sold 34,000 pounds, A. Perard 20,000, Waucup & Hubbard 8,000, Pedro Brothers 29,120, Otto Reiman 11,207, while Slusher and Gould, George Adams, John M. Wynn and Charles Cunningham have all sold their clips at varying prices. Those who have not sold are sore.

The prices brought by the recent sales are as good, perhaps, as though the growers had waited for the first sales day, Monday next, for the clips have brought from 12 1/2 to 14 cents, which was paid to A. Perard for his clip. It is not the price, but the practice that is hurting, for it allows a few men to pick up the pick of the wool, and the growers left have to take to the remnant counter with their wares.

Some of the buyers would rather have the men hold until the dates of sale, for otherwise they do not have a chance at but part of the wool in the county.

The warehousemen on the other hand, are perfectly willing to see the wool sold in little batches and at odd times, for it gives them the use of their room several times over, where, if all the wool was stored, the houses would be piled from floor to roof when sales days came.

Charles Green, perhaps the heaviest buyer in the county at this time, has bought a large amount of miscellaneous stuff which he is now grading and baling at the Furnish warehouse to make ready for shipment at an early date.

The first sales day is Monday next, and the sheepmen are hurrying their wool into the warehouses for the occasion. Yesterday 52,000 pounds were brought into the Furnish house alone, and by Monday the larger part of the wool tributary to Pendleton will be in the houses, though a certain percentage will remain for the second day, some time later.

BILLY JOSHUA REMOVED.

Thomas Thompson Succeeds Him as Administrator.

Yesterday afternoon the probate court appointed Thomas Thompson administrator of the estate of Jim Joshua, the Indian who committed suicide some time ago and who left an estate valued at $1,875.

There are three minor children left and Billy Joshua, a brother of the deceased, was appointed administrator by the court. Billy did not heed the ways of the white man, but commenced to administer the property to suit himself. He drove the widow of the dead Indian off the place, ordering her to take her children with her. He then appropriated the ranch, stock, cooking utensils and bedding left by his brother, and proceeded to live in the style becoming an administrator. The widow and children demurred and asked the court to set aside the order appointing Billy.

MANGLED BY TRAIN.

Grangeville Man Found Fearfully Mutilated by Railroad Train.

Passenger train No. 5 came across a dead body six miles east of Arlington yesterday evening, and brought word to that town, when the coroner and a jury were taken out and found the body of a man fearfully mangled.

In fact, so much so, that the remnants were taken to Arlington in gunnysacks later. Searching through the pockets they found letters indicating that his name was Earnest Cole and that he came from Grangeville, Idaho.

Whether he fell from a train or was lying beside the track when the train passed over him has not been determined.
