AUDIENCE'S FAVORITE.

Stanfield Acquired Himself With Great Credit.

Stanfield, of Pendleton, did not win the decision which he carried with her of the audience by her earnest delivery, the force with which she handled the question, and her pleasing style. She was the favorite of the evening, and her decisions were rendered with a different tone from her friends of the high school, and her efforts and the result.

NOT ENOUGH STUDY FARMING

STATE GRANGE CRITICISES OREGON FARM BOYS.

Says the Excellent Equipment at the Agricultural College should Induce More of Them to Study Practical Farming—Work of the College is Well Done and More Farmers Should Be Turned Out.

Corvallis, May 29.—The Oregon State Grange closed its session Saturday night, after a most successful meeting.

More Farmers Needed.

"When we consider the excellent equipment and management of the Oregon Agricultural college, and note the small number of our active farmers who have taken the agricultural course, or even its very helpful farmers' short course, we must report the progress of the Agricultural college still exceedingly slow.

The Macedonian's Last Resort.

The Macedonian insurgent soldier is equipped very much as are other soldiers, with one exception. The distinction lies in his knapsack, a canvas bag slung over his shoulder.

SOLDIER DEAD LIVE IN HEARTS OF THE PEOPLE

Pendleton Does Honor to the Living and Dead of Three Wars, Irrespective of the Side They Championed.

Eloquent and Appropriate Addresses Memorial Sunday and Decoration Day, Listened to by Large Assemblages—Roll of Dead and Living Survivors of the Civil War, Both Confederate and Federal, and Roll of Members of the Grand Army Post of This City—Beautiful Weather and All Other Conditions Pleasant.

Today is the time when the old war veterans have the freedom of the city and yesterday and today not only they, but the city as a whole, joined in the observance of Memorial Sunday and Decoration Day.

Yesterday morning, at the Presbyterian church, the members of Kit Carson Post of the G. A. R., together with a large throng of citizens, gathered to hear Dr. W. S. Holt, of Portland, deliver the memorial sermon.

His talk was, in part, of an historic nature. He treated of the spirit of the two people, of their past, and the natures which dominated the two sections of the country. On the one hand was the hot blood and imperious temperament of the South, bred and fostered by the old-world ancestry and the conditions prevailing there. In the North was the set and determined ideas of the descendants of the Puritans, the sturdy independence and love of liberty created by the hardships of the fathers, so that when the two peoples met in anger it was terrible in its deadly purpose and intensity.

From the conditions then the speaker turned to the spirit of today, and spoke of the harmony that now exists, and of the breach that is healed. His sermon was short and yet powerful and pleasing.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AT GETTYSBURG

Gettysburg, May 29.—The president arrived at 8:30 after a leisurely run from Washington. He occupied the private car courier with Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Ethel, Miss Caro, Secretary Loeb and Dr. Rixey. Breakfast was served at Penmar, where most of the night was spent.

To a little crowd that gathered just before leaving the president spoke from the rear platform, expressing the pleasure of the meeting. The train stopped at Reynolds avenue, where the party entered carriages and was driven over the battlefield. Luncheon was served at the Eagle hotel.

The President's Address.

Gettysburg, May 29.—In the presence of 100,000 people assembled to honor the noble dead of the united country, President Roosevelt delivered the following memorial address on the battlefield of Gettysburg.

The place where we now are has won a double distinction. Here was fought one of the great battles of all time, and here was spoken one of the few speeches which shall last through the ages. As long as this republic endures or its history is known, so long shall the memory of the Battle of Gettysburg likewise endure and be known; and as long as the English tongue is understood, so long shall Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg speech thrill the hearts of mankind.

The civil war was a great war for righteousness; a war waged for the noblest ideals, but waged also in thoroughgoing, practical fashion. It was one of the few wars which meant in their successful outcome, a lift toward better things for the nations of mankind. Some wars have meant the triumph of order over anarchy and licentiousness masquerading as liberty; some wars have meant the triumph of liberty over tyranny masquerading as order; but this victorious war of ours meant the triumph of both and the bestowal of civil rights upon the freed slaves, and at the same time the stern insistence on the supremacy of the national law through-ed on the ridges; where the cavalry fought; where the hills were attacked and defended; and where, finally, the great charge surged up the slope only to break on the summit in the bloody spray of gallant warfare.

But the soldiers who won at Gettysburg, the soldiers who fought to a finish the civil war and thereby made their countrymen forever their debtors, have left us far more even than the memories of the war itself.

All are at one now, the sons of those who wore the blue and the sons of those who wore the gray, and all can unite in paying respect to the memory of those who fell, each of them giving his life for his duty as he saw it; and all should be as one in learning from the deaths of those men how to live usefully while the times call for the performance of the countless necessary duties of everyday life, and how to hold ourselves ready to die nobly should the nation ever again demand of her sons the ultimate proof of loyalty.

PROF. FRENCH MAKES REPLY

IS AN ENTHUSIASTIC BELIEVER IN LABOR'S DIGNITY.

French Organized the First Manual Training Course in Public Schools—Made Special Preparation for Manual Training at Weston—Earned the Money Which Paid for His Own Education on the Farm and in a Factory.

The East Oregonian is in receipt of the following communication from President R. C. French, of the Weston Normal school, in which he clearly and frankly defines his position on the subject of the dignity of labor, which was the text for an editorial in this paper last Friday, and which took issue with the reported stand of Prof. French on the subject.

The East Oregonian cheerfully publishes the communication in order to make clear the sentiment of Prof. French. His letter is as follows:

Weston, May 28.—(To the Editor.)—No one more heartily endorses the sentiments expressed by the editor of the East Oregonian in his editorial of May 27, "Is Labor Degrading?" than I do.

So far from considering manual labor degrading I have always been its champion, and was the first to introduce a systematic course of instruction in manual training into the public schools of the state, through the work which for a number of years I supervised in the State Normal school at Monmouth.

It was in this course, organized by me, that the teacher of Sloyd in the city of Pendleton received the preparation for the work which he has done in the schools of your city.

The statements which suggested the editorial have already been authoritatively denied by the local press. Respectfully,
ROBERT C. FRENCH.

KANSAS CITY AGAIN FLOODED

The James Street Bridge Across the Kaw Estuary is Again Torn Out.

FLOOD CAUSED BY RAINS IN INTERIOR OF KANSAS.

Topeka Is Isolated From the East, Owing to Wholesale Washouts, and the Hart Street Railroad Bridge Has Been Carried Away—At Ottawa the Water is Higher Now Than it Has Ever Been in the History of the Town and the Santa Fe and Missouri Pacific Are Stalled.

Kansas City, May 30.—On account of the heavy rains which have swollen the Kaw river, the James street bridge, connecting the two Kansas Cities, went out again today.

Flood at Ottawa, Kan.

Ottawa, Kan., May 30.—The highest flood in its history inundated this city today. The electric, gas and water plants are under water and people are being rescued in boats. Two hundred and fifty houses are submerged and two persons missing. The Santa Fe and Missouri Pacific trains are blocked by washouts.

Made Twenty Runs to Pendleton's Five Yesterday.

The Wonders are wondering just what kind of an avalanche hit them at La Grande yesterday when they started in to do up the La Grande baseball boys.

OUTPUT OF PETROLEUM.

United States Now Leads the World in Production of Oil.

Geological surveys statistics place the world's production of petroleum in 1902 at 185,151,989 barrels. Of this the United States and Russia produced 91.44 per cent. For years Russia led in point of production, but an increase of 19,377,722 barrels in the production of the United States in 1902 and a decrease amounting to 6,628,515 barrels in the production of Russia caused the two countries to change places, and put the United States at the head of the list.

Do good; help others; speak a kind word; be cheerful; smile; don't worry; go to church.

Swiss Cloudburst.

Geneva, May 30.—A water-spout struck Lesvourins, in the mountains, this morning and did 2,000,000 francs damage. A huge wall of water rushed down the mountainside, tearing houses from their foundations and destroying crops.
