SOLDIERS DEAD LIVE IN HEARTS OF THE PEOPLE.

try is thankful that the issues terminated as they did, and the wearers of the blue and the wearers of the grey each in his own way makes his bivouac and recalls the scenes of strife; but both alike cherish the flag of their country, and rejoice that not a single star has been taken from its sacred folds.

"Questions will arise for solution by the people, grave matters are now before the country, but that of union or disunion is forever settled.

"The Grand Army notes with sadness that its numbers are rapidly diminishing; and with the recurrence of each Decoration Day, the rollcall is shortened by death. Last year over 42,000 of our comrades passed to the great beyond, the survivors realizing that the time is not far distant when they too will have to respond to the call, and the loving services they now render to the memory of their comrades must be performed by others. Therefore they turn with confidence to their friends, and especially to the rising generation, and earnestly appeal to them to keep green the grave of the old soldier buried in their midst, and to revere his memory."

Bivouac of Dead.

There are 28 old soldiers who are sleeping in Olney cemetery today, and the graves of these departed comrades were dressed with flowers at the services today. Some of those who were remembered had worn the grey, most the blue, and one had served under the tropic sun of the Philippines, but all were remembered in love and tenderness.

They are Edward Kelly, J. A. Leathers, Levi Dodson, O. F. Bryant, Luther Ellis, D. M. Conley, John W. Kimball, J. A. Wells, J. L. Killian, John H. Clifford, George Shurtum, J. H. Rodes, C. H. J. Clove was the champion fisherman of the day, having caught one speckled trout on North Fork that measured three feet two and three-sixteenths inches in length. Fred Lampkin, who was in the party that went up to the headwaters of McKay, was second best, his largest measuring three feet three and one-eighth inches in length. Among those who spent the day on the streams of the Blue mountains were J. Clove, Guy Boothby, Walter Wells, W. F. Bowman and Herman Kruger on North Fork, and Sam Thompson, A. J. ## PENDLETON BEATEN

BAKER CITY WON OUT BY AN OVERWHELMING LEAD.

Score Stood Sixty-seven to Thirty-nine Points in Favor of Baker City, With Union Holding a Total of Seven Points—An Immense Crowd Attended—La Grande Did Not Compete on Account of a Portion of Her Team Being Ill.

Baker City has won the trophy cup three times in succession, and is now its permanent possessor. The team from that school was easily the winner in the field meet in La Grande Saturday afternoon and carried off the honors and the trophy by a score of 67 points against 39 for Pendleton and seven for Union. The La Grande team pulled out of the race before the meet opened, owing to the inability of several of the La Grande team to compete.

There was one of the largest crowds ever gathered at a field meet in this part of the state to witness the game, the day was an ideal one and the meet was a success. Each man tried to do all that was in him, and all are entitled to honor for their efforts.

While Pendleton was unable to land the first place, the boys on the team made good showings, and strove earnestly and honestly for the laurels. That they were unable to bring back the honors of the meet is a misfortune, but nothing more.

Wyrick took second in the 100-yard dash; Bollemer third in broad jump; Leezer second in 880-yard run; Cronin second in pole vault; Scott second in hammer throw; Wyrick second in 420-yard dash; Williams first in hurdle race; Jay second in high jump and Means second in discus throw; Reeves, second in 440-yard dash.

PETROLEUM TO LAY DUST.

Its Use Vigorously Advocated by Dr. Holt of Portland.

Dr. W. S. Holt, who delivered the memorial sermon at the Presbyterian church yesterday, left this morning for his home in Portland. While in town yesterday the members of Kit Carson post elected Dr. Holt to honorary membership in the post.

Dr. Holt, who is perhaps the most widely traveled man who comes through Pendleton, is wondering why the city council does not try the crude petroleum treatment for the streets. He has seen it tried in many towns in California, and it does away with the dust entirely. The oil mixes with the dust and forms a coating resembling asphalt, which sheds the water and most effectively does away with the dust and trouble of continual sprinkling. Dr. Holt thinks that should the council even try a half block in one of the worst streets they would be so well satisfied at the result that it would be but a short time until all the streets would be treated in that way.

THE POOR FARM.

Horace Walker Says Himself and Commissioner Gilliland Are to Blame.

County Commissioner Horace Walker, in conversation with the Pilot Rock Record in regard to the poor farm purchase, takes all the responsibility for the deal on himself and T. P. Gilliland, as the following from the Record will show:

"Horace Walker was in Pilot Rock the other day and in conversation with the Record desired to have it stated that he and Gilliland were responsible for the purchase of the McKay creek poor farm.

"He says that before the purchase was made the sum of $5,000 was annually paid out for the care of the indigent and that this year over $1000 worth of hay was sold from the farm now owned by the county, and that he expected the farm would be self-sustaining in another year or two.

"He claims the farm could be sold today for more than it cost the county and considers the investment one of the best that could possibly be made by the county. For political purposes some persons are giving Hartman all the credit for the purchase of the McKay poor farm, but the fact is Mr. Hartman favored the purchase of a place in the lower part of Pendleton."
