WEST END ADVICE

CITIZENS WILL DEBATE SCHOOL HOUSE SITES.

Much Division of Opinion Among West Enders, Who Will Try for a Conclusion, Expecting the School Board to Stand Pat After It is Reached—East End Site Will Be Definitely Determined Upon by the Board Tuesday Evening.

A meeting has been called by a number of residents of the west end of town to meet at the Field school house tomorrow evening to consider the location of the school building to be erected during this summer.

There seems to be a sentiment on the part of the people in that part of town, or at least a part of them, to take the matter of choosing a site into their own hands, irrespective of the decision of the school board. It has been stated that the board favors the site offered just to the east of the base ball park, and to this some of the residents seem to object.

Those who have called the meeting seem to have no specially defined idea as to where they would have the building located, but would come together and talk the matter over. There are one or two sites available besides the one known as the Matlock property, which is favored by the board. There is a place near the old poor farm property which has been mentioned, but it is not central and has not been considered with any great seriousness for some time. The place where the Alta street school now stands has also been talked of, but it is not large enough for a building of the size contemplated by the board, so that the tendency has been to favor the location near the baseball ground. This property has the advantage of being more central, of having a large tract of vacant ground from which to make a campus, and of being reasonable in price. All of these things have been taken into consideration by the board, but as yet no definite election has been made.

The board will also meet on Tuesday evening, for the purpose of settling up a lot of unfinished business, and at this time the location of the building in the eastern end of town will be settled upon and arrangements for the commencement of its construction will be made. After that matter is off the hands of the board, the other buildings will be taken up in their turn.

It is probable that the board will meet the people of the west side in a few days, or as soon as they can get the other proposition off their hands, and all the residents who are interested will be given a chance to talk over the advantages of the various sites offered. The meeting of Tuesday evening will give the people a chance to decide upon the best location to their minds, and the matter can be settled at the second meeting.

PLOWING UP RANGES.

Development of Oklahoma is Spilling Buffalo Grass Prairies.

The records of the United States land office at this place, which controls the district composed of Woodward and Beaver counties, in Western Oklahoma, furnish surprising statistics of homestead immigration to those counties, especially since January 1, 1903. From that time to May 23, 1904, a period of about 17 months, the number of filings was 8482, equivalent to the reclamation of 1,357,120 acres of land from the public domain.

Close to 75 per cent of these filings were in Beaver county, making the respective filings and acreage in Beaver 6361 and 1,017,760 for the 17 months.

The western extension of this immigration in Beaver now touches the eastern boundary of the western one-third of the country.

The census of 1900 gave Beaver county a population of 3051. Since June 30, 1902, the homestead filings in Beaver have been approximately 8000. The actual population of Beaver at this time is a question of estimates, and hinges largely upon the family percentage accorded to each homesteader.

The new settlers are breaking out the buffalo grass sod and planting crops. Many are building windmills for irrigation purposes. The soil is of great depth and astonishing fertility when moisture is abundant.

Otherwise, the farmer must depend upon an uncertain rainfall. The United States geological survey is testing the surface water supply of streams in the neighborhood of Kenton to determine whether the flow is sufficient to maintain a large irrigation reservoir in the neighborhood. No report will be made for several months. If the report should be favorable and the reservoir built, the land available for irrigation should be as productive as any in New Mexico or Colorado.

HEPPNER SHEEP SALES.

Large Shipments to Be Made From Morrow County.

The Heppner stockyards are now crowded with sheep and trainloads are going daily.

E. H. Clark of Salt Lake, and Rea Bros. of St. Paul, are shipping their purchases made in Morrow county. Sixteen thousand sheep were brought in this week.

So far this season Rea Bros. have purchased about 25,000, while Mr. Clark will take out about 30,000 head from this country. Thomas Grimshaw trailed out about 6000, and Lacy Bros., who are buying mutton sheep, have purchased 5000.

The purchases have been principally yearling and two-year-old wethers, and prices have been $1.50 per head for yearlings, and $2 per head for 2-year-olds. This is about 25 cents per head cheaper than the prices paid last year at this time—Heppner Gazette.

COMING EVENTS.

June 15, 16, 17—Oregon encampment G. A. R., Hood River.

June 22—Thirty-second annual reunion Oregon Pioneers, Portland.
