

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

AN INDIAN SENATOR

COMANCHE MAY REPRESENT OKLAHOMA.

Chief Quannah Parker Most Forceful and Prominent Man in the Proposed New State—His Mother a White Woman Who Was Captured by Comanches and Refused to Return to Civilization—Parker Known as the "Yankee Indian."

An Indian chief as a member of the United States senate, exclaims a Philadelphia paper.

This is the suggestion that has been made, and it hinges on the proposition that Oklahoma and Indian territories be admitted into the American union as one state and that it be tacitly agreed that one of the United States senators from the new commonwealth be an Indian.

Whether such a plan would be practicable is still to be demonstrated, but the proposition certainly smacks of poetic justice.

The United States senate today has in its membership the descendants of the sons of nearly every country in Europe, and has in addition men who were born on the soils of Ireland, England and Norway. In view of the fact that men of all nationalities and clergymen of all denominations have occupied seats in congress—not to speak of a Mormon senator—it is deemed fitting that an Indian, representing the original holders of the vast territory now known as the United States, could very properly and picturesquely represent the remnant of a once great people on the floor of the greatest deliberative body on earth.

If in the uncertainty of politics the proposition should take practical form there is no reasonable doubt but that the honor would fall on Quannah Parker, one of the ablest and wealthiest Indians in America.

Parker, who is one of the chiefs of the Comanches, might properly be called the connecting link between the aborigines and the white people of the United States. His career has been filled with the most thrilling adventures.

Quannah Parker, who is now about 50 years of age, is the son of a white woman and a Comanche Indian. In one of the first Comanche raids in Texas his mother was captured by the Indians and her parents scalped and killed.

The Texas Rangers, that celebrated body of fearless men, organized by the early settlers for their own defense and protection, gave chase and pursued the Indians to their lair.

The chase was so rapid that the white men compelled the Indians to abandon everything but their light traveling stuff, and eventually corralled them at the foot of the Wichita mountains.

After a spirited skirmish the woman was recaptured and taken back to civilization and handed over to her relatives in Texas. But the woman had had a taste of Indian life and she preferred it to life among those of her own blood.

Under such circumstances it was only a question of time when of her own volition she returned to the Indians. At an early age she married one of the Comanches, and Quannah Parker was the outcome of this curious match.

His mother died when he was a child and Quannah grew up as an Indian among the Indians, naturally falling into their ways and customs, speaking their language, wearing their dress and living their life.

He had natural abilities of a high order and these asserted themselves even in his youth. Before he had attained his majority he was a power among the Indians, and while yet a young man he became the chief of one of the principal bands of Comanche Indians.

From an Indian standpoint he might be fancifully regarded as a multi-millionaire, but as a matter of fact the value of his holdings of real estate, livestock and money in bank is nearer to $100,000 of our money than the other amount mentioned.

He has represented the Comanche Indians in the leasing of their lands to white settlers, who desired the green sward for the purpose of grazing their cattle.

The men who have conducted negotiations with Chief Parker are willing to testify that he is fully able to take care of the Indians he represented on such occasions. Indeed, his capacity for driving a sharp bargain has earned him the nick-name of the "Yankee Indian Chief."

Chief Parker's home and reservation nestle at the bottom of the foothills of the Wichita mountains. He owns a modern, comfortable and roomy 2½-story frame building, where he lives the life of a civilized man with his wife and children.

RUSSIAN COMMENT

CLAIM THE JAPANESE ARE NOT GOO SOLDIERS.

Great Praise is Given the Japanese for Their Humanity, and for Their Excellent Hospital System and Kindness to Russian Soldiers—All Cruelties on the Field Attributed to Chinese.

London, June 13.—A dispatch from Mukden says that the Russian soldiers habitually speak with contempt of the quality of the Japanese troops. The Japs, they say, are good coolies, but only in that respect are they excellent; but all the evidence that has reached the Russian headquarters as to the Japanese hospitals and their medical and surgical arrangements generally is unanimous as to the excellence of that part of the enemy's equipment.

Two wounded men of the 11th Russian regiment, which suffered so severely at Kintien Cheng, managed to escape through the enemy's lines, and have reached Mukden. These men speak in enthusiastic terms of the manner in which the Japanese treat the Russian wounded. The Japanese army doctors, they say, are splendid, and they personally saw to the comfort of all the Russian wounded. Each Russian officer taken prisoner is supplied with a separate tent and is allowed to superintend the preparation of the food for the Russian wounded.

Temporary assistance is given to the Japanese wounded in splendidly arranged field hospitals. About 450 Russian wounded were carefully attended to in the Japanese camp, and the relations between them and the enemy's troops were excellent, based, says the correspondent, "upon the true comradeship and friendship of mutually respecting soldiers." The Japanese doctors removed the wounded from the field of battle without regard to nationality.

As it was practically impossible to remove all the wounded from the ground to the field hospital without delay, those whom surgical aid would most likely cure were taken in hand first, and the more serious cases were given first aid in the field. Whenever a wounded man was discovered, whether Russian or Japanese, he was placed on his feet, and if able to stand unsupported for a few seconds he was taken on a litter to the hospital.

Cruelties were undoubtedly perpetrated on the Russian wounded, but the miscreants were invariably Chinese, who are bitterly anti-Russian. It is said to be a common remark among the Chinese, "If the Japanese win in this war we will send baskets-fulls of Russian ears to Peking."
