BIBLE IN NUT SHELL.

Contained as Much Reading Matter as Large Book.

One of the tiniest manuscripts ever recorded was a little Bible in a walnut shell, an account of which has been preserved among the Harleian manuscripts by Peter Bales, an Englishman and a clerk of the chancery, says the New Haven Union. It contained as many leaves as a large Bible and as much reading matter on each page.

With a powerful glass it could be read easily. The author of this tiniest book on record lived in the time of Queen Elizabeth, and in 1575 presented her majesty with the Lord's prayer, the creed, ten commandments, two short Latin prayers, his own motto, and the date all written on a bit of paper the size of a finger nail, and set in a ring of gold covered with a crystal. A magnifying glass made the writing quite legible.

Pleasure is but a weed, joy a fruit.

THE ALFALFA CROP

WHEN TO CUT TO GET THE BEST HAY.

Experts Say That the Plant Should Be Cut Just as the Early Blossoms Burst Out—Its Value is in the Protein and This is Highest Before the Plant is Fully Bloomed Out.

According to all the agricultural experts alfalfa should be cut when not more than one-tenth of the plants have come into bloom.

Cut at this early stage the yield of hay for the season will be much greater than if cut near maturity and every pound of hay secured will be worth more for feed.

At the Kansas station a strip through a field of alfalfa was cut when one-tenth was in bloom and another strip after full bloom had past. The strip cut early was nearly ready to cut the second time when that cut after full bloom was being harvested the first time. The strip cut early grew vigorously through the season and made three cuttings and a good aftermath.

The strip cut after full bloom gave a low yield the first cutting and did not grow sufficiently to yield a good second cutting. Early cuttings seem to invigorate the plants.

The late cutting of the first crop seems to injure the plants more than at any other time and it has been found profitable to cut alfalfa the first time as soon as one-tenth was in bloom. The increased yield from succeeding cuttings over that cut late will much more than make up for the loss of the first crop.

The great value of alfalfa is the large amount of protein it contains—that material in feed absolutely necessary for the formation of blood, lean meat and milk.

The higher the protein in alfalfa the more valuable the crop. The Colorado station found the effect of cutting alfalfa as follows: Coming in bloom 18.5 per cent protein, half in bloom 14.6 per cent and in full bloom 12.9 per cent.

The effect of cutting at different stages in Kansas was as follows: One-tenth in bloom 18.5 per cent protein, one-half in bloom 17.2 per cent, and in full bloom 14.4 per cent.

The Utah station for five years cut alfalfa at different stages of maturity and fed the crop in producing beef. The average production for an acre was as follows:

In first bloom 5.35 tons of hay producing 706 pounds of beef; in full bloom 4.90 tons making 562 pounds; and half blossoms fallen 4.55 tons making 490 pounds of beef.

These experiments made in three states prove that alfalfa cut in the first bloom will give the greatest yield and feeding value. The leaves of alfalfa contain more than three times as much protein as stems, a ton of alfalfa leaves containing as much protein as 2800 pounds of bran. Every care should be taken in curing alfalfa to save the leaves.
