CHINESE AT LA GRANDE.

Pendleton Celestials Help Celebrate With their Countrymen at the Best City.

By invitation of the committee having in charge the Fourth of July celebration at La Grande, a party of nine Chinamen attended from this place. The La Grande people appropriated $65 to remunerate them, and also paid their railroad fare in both directions. The Pendleton contingent, with the La Grande Chinamen, put on what Ung Goei of this place calls a "play." It was a representation, by peculiarities of costume or uniforming, together with banners of peculiar design, of Chinese conceptions of liberty, and also had considerable historical significance. The full import of the performance is not easily gleaned from any explanation which the Chinamen will attempt. The costumes and an enormous triangular "dragon flag" were loans from certain Chinese societies in Portland.

Four of the nine Chinamen at La Grande from this place belong to the local Chinese band. They were Ung Goei, Tom Gee, Ung Coon, and Toy Shae Yuen. Through Goei the party all express themselves as having had a "velly fine time at La Grande." There are 75 resident Chinese at La Grande and on this occasion there were about 25 visitors from Pendleton, Union and Baker City.

NEW ENGINES ARRIVE.

C. R. & N. Gets Two Monster Helper Engines for the La Grande Division.

Two monster compound freight and helper engines—Nos. 1513 and 1517, have arrived from Cheyenne, at La Grande, and are now being used as helpers out of La Grande.

They have been in service on the Union Pacific for a number of years and are already known to be well built and capable of doing more work than the 300 class of compound engines now in use here.

These new engines will handle 100 tons more on the mountain than the freight engines now in use on the La Grande division, they weigh about six tons more, have larger boilers, wider and deeper fireboxes, are equipped with two sets of water glasses, steam gauges and lubricators, and are up-to-date and modern in all their make-up.

They are the Baldwin compound type, having the low pressure cylinder above the high pressure. The low pressure cylinder, 31 inches in diameter, the high pressure, 17 1/2 inches and they carry 200 pounds of steam.

They are supposed to push 600 tons over the mountains, the 300 class now in use being rated at about 500 tons over the same grade. By using one of these as helper from Bingham Springs to Kamela, 1000 tons can be hauled in a freight train by two engines with ease.

Will Not Lose Eye.

Engineer W. H. Fair, of Kamela, who received severe injuries to an eye two months ago, while running a helper at Kamela, has returned from the hospital at Portland completely recovered. He was coming down the mountain on his engine, when a small rock loosened and rolled down, striking the window of the cab and throwing fragments of glass into his eye. It was thought for a time he would lose his sight, but has recovered and returned to work.

Damages Being Repaired Rapidly.

About two more days' work will be required to repair the damage done by Sunday's flood on the streets and to the Byers race. Street Commissioner Brown has five men with teams and scrapers and wagons at work. Some are clearing the debris from the race and making the Wade hill passable to travelers, others are filling the various cave-ins over the new recently laid sewer mains.

Attraction at the Reservation.

The attraction at the reservation today in the way of racing is a 400-yard dash between two of the fleetest horses in the Northwest. One is owned by William Hall and the other by George Red Horse. A $50 forfeit has been placed, and the bets are long on both animals.

New Concrete Sidewalk.

Upon the completion of the new Matlock building on South Main street, a concrete pavement will be laid in front of it and upon the east and south sides of the Bowman building—a distance of 350 feet. It will be 12 feet in width.

RELIC OF THE WARS

KALYTON'S TOMAHAWK HAS KILLED THREE MEN.

Old Umatilla Warrior Wearing a Growsome Reminder of Savage Days at the Feast and Celebration at the Reservation—Three Piutes Have Fallen Under Its Stroke—it is a Formidable Weapon.

A little inquiry and close observation by anyone who understands the Indians, reveals the fact that there can be found in their possession many objects of much more than passing interest to even the most superficial student of ethnology and history.

After the war parade on the reservation the Fourth a bystander accosted Peter Kalyton, the well-known old Indian, and asked him the history of the tomahawk he carried. The old man was reticent at first, but finally stated that he had owned the weapon 50 or more years, and that he had carried it in battle. Asked whether it had ever done execution, he owned that he had killed three men with it, but insisted that the victims were not white men, but that all three were Piutes. He had used it in the war of the Cayuse and Umatillas to help repel the invasion of the Piutes into this territory from the south.

The Tomahawk will weigh, blade and handle both, not over two pounds, possibly not that much. The handle is straight of hard wood, cut and fashioned by Kalyton himself, and ornamented with brass-headed tacks, and callabastic characters which only an old Indian can interpret. The back of the blade, the hammer part, as it might be called, is hollow, and could have been used as a pipe in a council of war, and probably has been, though the present handle to the weapon is solid. The blade has an edge about four inches long, and is of highly tempered blue steel and not a rough blacksmith shop blade.

Kalyton, who is over 70 years of age, undoubtedly has a very honorable record as a soldier among his people, but in the uprising of 1878 he was for peace from start to finish; probably not because he did not enjoy a scrap as well as anybody, but because he realized fully the folly of war.

BLEAKNEY GOES EAST.

Principal of Pendleton Academy Called Home by Illness of Father.

Professor W. H. Bleakney will leave tomorrow evening for Pittsburg, Pa., called there by the severe illness of his father, A. W. Bleakney, with a heart trouble. Mrs. Bleakney and the children will accompany him eastward a short distance and will visit with Mrs. Bleakney's sister, wife of Rev. S. C. Elder pastor of the Presbyterian church at Sumpter, until Mr. Bleakney's return.

Mr. Bleakney will use every endeavor while East to effect something favorable for the finances of Pendleton Academy. In fact, outside of the visit with his people, it will be a primary object of the unexpected journey.

Lawn Party.

A delightful lawn party was given Tuesday evening by Miss Sibyl Clouton at the home of her parents, on Nob Hill. The spacious lawn and house was prettily lit with lanterns. Games were enjoyed, after which refreshments were served. The party ended in a roar from the explosion of an immense rope of firecrackers. Miss Effie Frazier assisted in entertaining the young folks. There were present, Myrtle Walker, Ora Walker, Grace Cole, Elizabeth Halley, Genevieve Halley, Edith Slusher, Paralee Halley, Mildred Held, Vera Marston, Mildred Berkeley, Una Smith, Hazel Hamilton, Lucille Nunn, Sherman Kunkel, Linwood Livermore, Willie Cole, Homer Kunkel, Harold Brock, Bob Livermore, Henry Judd, Brook Dickson, Cressy Sturgis, Elmon Guernsey, Edgar Smith, Louis Kunkel and James Sturgis.

Mr. Kelleher has resided here a year, Mr. Zehrung three years, all of that time being employed in the roadmaster's office.

MOUNTAIN ROADS WASHED.

Wood Dealer From Murdock Spur Says Many Wood Roads Are Impassable.

Frank Hanlen the well known wood dealer and sawmill man of Murdock Spur, near Meacham, says the rain of Sunday washed out the mountain roads very badly, making them impassable in many places.

There is a large amount of hauling in the mountain districts this season and good roads are badly needed, and this rain will somewhat delay the work in that locality. There will be less wood hauled than usual to Murdock Spur this season, owing to the fact that men cannot be secured to cut it out, the timber is culled so badly.

Surprised at Accounts of Storm.

Mrs. Mart Ferguson, wife of the editor of the Adams Advance, came down yesterday to see the wreck of Pendleton and bid her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bentley good-bye. From the Spokesman-Review write-up of the storm and its effects she thought her parents would be surely on the point of deserting the place after their residence here of over 35 years, and she wished to take advantage of the little time that might elapse before they got away, to have a good visit with them. Her astonishment at the real state of affairs can only be imagined by one who would come into the town under similar conditions, expecting to find it in ruins.

Vaudeville Contract Closed.

Manager Taylor, of the Frazer, has closed the contract with the vaudeville company which came to the Frazer under contract for an eight-day engagement on Sunday evening. The company was weak and not as represented and Mr. Taylor refused to permit them to continue. It is probable that he will bring another company which will be guaranteed to be as represented, in the near future.

Heavy Rain at Durkee.

A heavy rainstorm occurred at Durkee, 25 miles east of Baker City, Monday night, doing considerable damage to alfalfa hay that was already cut in the fields. At one point a mile east of Durkee the water ran over the O. R. & N. track for a few minutes, but no damage was done.

Bickers Annex.

The rooms over the Owl Tea House have been leased by H. E. Bickers and are being remodeled, repainted and repapered for dormitory purposes, the present capacity of the Hotel Bickers being inadequate to take care of its patronage. C. C. Sharp is doing the work.
