reflected from perfect teeth can easily be destroyed by improper dentifrices. There are many preparations that will whiten teeth, but few that preserve the enamel, while they whiten.

GOLD IN TIN BOX

RECENT STORM INVADES FARMER'S SECRET BANK.

Well Known Farmer Brings in $3000 in Leather Sack After an Exciting Chase in the Wake of a Storm—For 23 Years He Had Kept His Gold in a Tin Box in the Back Yard, But Will Now Patronize Banks.

An interesting story is wrapped up in a bank deposit which was made in a Pendleton bank yesterday.

A well known farmer, who is known to have scads of money in industries in the county brought in $3000 in a leather sack, the entire amount being in $20 gold pieces. When the clerk at the window poured out the deposit to count it, almost as much sand as money rolled out of the sack and the gold pieces were wet and grimy with dirt and sand, and the old man looked confusedly around to see who was witnessing the performance.

After the clerk fished out the gold from among the sand heap, he got a broom and dust pan and swept off the counter, getting as a result of the clean-up, about three pounds of river sand, which he "deposited" in the alley.

After rubbing and scouring the rusty twentys for several minutes, with a shoe brush and later with a chamolais skin, they were in a presentable condition to go into the shining pile in the vault.

The clerk then washed his hands and counted the money and asked the farmer where he had kept his accumulations, and he said that for 23 years he had maintained a safety deposit vault in a tin box in a dry gulch in the back yard, and that his bank had never been disturbed before Sunday, July 3, when the terrible rain-storm invaded the dry gulch and washed his tin box from its hiding place and down the road about 200 yards, at last breaking the box open against a stone where he found it after a frantic search, lying in a heap at the roadside.

After this narrow escape he decided to make a bank deposit, and consequently came to town with his treasure. When he gathered up the gold into the leather sack it was wet and the sand adhered to it so closely that it was difficult to remove it, but by the time he had driven to Pendleton the sand was dry, and had shaken loose from the gold and had almost filled the sack with loose sand. "I know of $20,000 hidden in tin boxes and tomato cans in Umatilla county," he said, as he folded up the empty sack and started back home to begin another collection of shining twentys from 900 acres of wheat land.

"GOLDEN RULE" JONES DEAD.

Mayor of Toledo, O., Was a Personal Friend of Charles B. Sampson, of Pendleton.

"Golden Rule" Jones, the world famous mayor of Toledo, O., who died yesterday, as announced by the dispatches, was a personal friend and acquaintance of Charles B. Sampson, advertising manager of the East Oregonian, who is now in Ohio on a visit to his parents.

Samuel M. Jones was elected as a republican mayor of Toledo, in 1897, was re-elected in 1899, 1901 and 1903 and made himself famous by his advocacy of municipal ownership, eight-hour days for labor and the doctrine that the people should nominate their candidates for office by direct nomination, and should not be dominated by the politicians.

He is said to have possessed a phenomenal memory, never forgetting a man's name or face after having once met him, and in this way endeared himself to the common people of his city and surrounding country, who almost idolized him.
