Shoe Repairing

I have moved my shop to the second door east of the Savings Bank. Repairing of all kinds done in a workmanlike manner at reasonable rates. As I have been in business here 17 years, I need not speak of the quality of my work for it speaks for itself. My stock of shoes was somewhat damaged by water and the insurance company told me to sell them for what I could get, so I will sell them for less than wholesale price.

CHRIS RANLEY.

Mr. Dusty Roads and his friend, Mr. Sawwood Nit, are in town today on route to Chicago or "Chi," as they term it.

In conversation with an East Oregonian representative this morning, they told something of the incidents of their trips throughout the West. "We are working back to good old 'Chi,'" said Mr. Dusty Roads. "We came in on last night's passenger, and we are awaiting the departure of an eastbound freight or passenger. 'Unpleasant traveling this hot weather?' 'Oh, I don't know. The dust and cinders are the most unpleasant part of it. Last night in shifting my position I got my coat caught between the brake and the wheel and came very near being pulled under the car. You can see how it burnt my coat before I was able to release it. Then, too, I got a cinder in my eye and the facilities for removing cinders on the rods are rather poor."

"My friend and I put in two weeks in the fishing camp on the Columbia river at $1.50 a day. What is my occupation? Well, I am 22 years old, and since I was 15 I have been traveling. I have been all over the United States and some parts of it a great many times.

"My partner and I stick together, and when one gets a job we both lay by till we can move on. Work? Yes, there is lots of it. During the last year or two I have hauled, worked in a logging camp, worked on the railroad, in the hay fields, fishing camps, butcher shops, in Armour's packing house, and a great many other jobs. How can I get a job when I know nothing about it? Oh, that is as easy as taking a freight at 20 miles an hour."

"Of course, we don't take any job except to relieve a temporary financial disability. A while ago I had tightened my belt till I got pretty hungry and resolved to do something desperate—go to work. I struck a saw mill for a job. The man asked me if I was a good boom man. I didn't know what that was, but I told him I hadn't done much except boom work for the past five years, so he bought me a $7 pair of loggers' shoes, and told me to go to work. I started out on the logs and the one I was on rolled over and I got a bath—I had a notion to jump my job right there, but I didn't.

"The man that hired me said: 'Did you ever do a lick of this work before?' I told him that I hadn't done much beside boom work nor any boom work, either, for that matter. He had seven dollars invested in me so he couldn't afford to fire me. Well, sir, I stayed with that job for two months and then I hit the trail again.

"I like Oregon fairly well with the exception of Echo. I was riding the 'blind' with a friend. A little ways from Echo the fireman got up on the coal in the tender, and say, but he was an artist at throwing coal. He has missed his vocation and should be a pitcher in a professional ball team. His curves kept me dodging till he got the range so good that I jumped. I must have rolled in that sand and sagebrush for 50 feet before I lodged in a sagebrush. I looked up and saw a dark spot in the air which was 'Tank's' my friend. I believe I never saw a man turn end over end so many times. Well, that prejudiced us both against Echo.

"A few weeks ago I was on the rods and we were going about 40 miles an hour. On the car just in front of me a 'bo' was riding and pretty soon he began yelling, 'Help! Save me! Stop the train!' His clothes were on fire, and he was the animated center of a blaze like a torchlight procession. When the train stopped and he crawled out one side of his coat and vest was burned out and he had a blister as big as your hand on his side. Last year my partner, a kid, was riding with me on top of the Pullman. We 'us' take a belt along and strap ourselves to the steam pipe on top of the car, but we had gotten careless and were both asleep. It was dark, and when I woke up I spoke to him and he was gone.

"I dropped off and started down the track. About three or four miles from where I missed him I heard someone groaning. I went to him and found it was he. He was pretty badly smashed up. I waited until daylight and then flagged a passing team and had him taken to the Umatilla House at The Dalles.

"His leg, several ribs and his hand were broken. He had $60 and I had $105, so we stayed there until he was patched up. Those accidents will happen occasionally.

"A fellow I knew back in 'Chi,' made a touch from a rich guy for a couple of hundred. He celebrated the event by getting drunk and then tried to catch a through freight out. He fell between the cars, and when they found him he was scattered along the track for half a mile.

"North Dakota is something fierce. A rather sporty young fellow got in a box car with a bunch of us to beat his way East. He had brought out a wad of money, had had his fling, got tired of the husks, and knew the fatted calf was on the bill of fare back home. He had a shiner in his bosom of his white shirt and some pretty swell cuff buttons. When he woke up his diamond had been cut out, his cuff buttons were gone, and his shoes taken. That kind of queer life of a tourist for that young sport. Professional sneak thieves and hold-up men beat their way back and forth in Dakota to rob the harvest hands.

"Come here to this freight car and I will show you how we do it. You catch the hand-hold here on the side, draw your feet up and throw them inward and the suction and the speed of the train will make you light on the rods. If you want to ride in a box car you spring the door from the runway on the side opposite the lock, pry it open, crawl in and you are good for a 1000-mile trip.

"Talk about long runs under a passenger train, I rode from Dunsmuir to Portland, over 400 miles, without missing a connection, riding on the same coach all of the way. Well, I am getting dry, I think I will go up town. So long, friend. If you ever want to hit the trail and need any pointers I will be glad to put you next."

HOPES FOR A BOY

STORK WILL VISIT CZAR NICHOLAS' HOME.

Family Now at Peterhof Where the National Event is Daily Expected—If a Son is Born He Will Become Emperor of Russia—If a Girl, Some Nephew or Other Male Relative Will Occupy the Throne—Girls Are Barred in Russia.

St. Petersburg, July 23.—All Russia is anxiously awaiting news from the Peterhof, where the stork is expected to alight within the next few days. People outside of this country cannot comprehend the eagerness of the Russians for an heir to the throne. The birth of another child to the czar and czarina will have a deep political significance that cannot fail to have a direct bearing upon Russia's future policy. If a son is born, he will in course of time become Emperor of Russia, and will be reared under the political influence of the present czar, thus practically insuring a continuation of the policy of Nicholas II.

If the expected heir proves to be a daughter the position of Nicholas II, which is already weakened by the course of events in Manchuria, will be rendered precarious. While the government of Russia is an absolute hereditary monarchy, and while the will of the czar is law, yet he cannot transfer his throne to his daughter. There are certain rules of government which the sovereigns of the present reigning house have acknowledged to be binding. One of these is the law of succession to the throne, which, according to a decree of the Emperor

LOCKSLEY HALL

Locksley Hall, beautifully located in a grove of pines within 300 feet of old ocean, is an ideal place to spend the summer.

Locksley Hall, under the proprietorship of Mrs. L. A. Carlisle, has undergone a complete renovation this spring, and in addition to the numerous rooms that were already a portion of the house, seven new ones have been added and nicely finished and furnished. Hot and cold water have been added throughout the house and a complete system of sewerage has been put in. A steward has been engaged for the season who will have charge of the dining room and kitchen, and guests will have every attention possible. A clam bake for the guests of Locksley Hall has been arranged for each Saturday night. A good orchestra will be had during the entire summer. Although the house is open the entire year, on the first day of June a formal opening is had with music and dancing on the front veranda. A pleasant place is Locksley Hall, and guests will doubtless spend a happy vacation at this hotel. Carriages meet all trains. Special rates to families. Address, for further information, Mrs. L. A. Carlisle, manager.

Locksley Hall SEASIDE, OREGON.

Paul, of the year 1797, is that of regular descent, by right of primogeniture, with preference of male heirs. Under this inexorable rule none of the czar's four children will ever occupy his throne, for they are all daughters. The eldest daughter of the czar is Olga, born November 15, 1895. His second child was Tatiana, born June 11, 1897; his third was Marie, born June 26, 1899, and the fourth was Anastasia, born June 18, 1901.

One powerful reason for wishing a son born to the czar is to have a peaceful succession. If Nicholas II should die before a son is born to him, his successor would be his brother, the Grand Duke Michael, born in 1878. But Michael is regarded as an invalid, and it is feared that if Nicholas passes away without an heir the empire may be rent by strife between his four uncles for the throne.

Since the outbreak of hostilities with Japan the rivalries of the reactionary element and its opponents have kept things in a constant turmoil. This situation, almost intolerable as it is to the czar, exists only because he has no male heir. The reactionary party in his cabinet are able to flaunt his misfortune in his face, because it is well known that in the event of his death the crown will pass to his brother Michael, who is directly under the influence of the dowager empress. She is a woman in the prime of life, born to command, and one of the most bitter opponents of the liberal ideas of her son, the present czar.

Consequently all the hopes of Nicholas center in the event about to take place at the Peterhof, which he prays fervently will add a son to his household and give to Russia a direct heir to the throne. Should a son be born the dowager empress' power would be reduced to nothing in a moment. The czar will then be a czar in fact as in name, and the ministers who now openly defy him, oppose his will, and refuse to execute his policy, will be brought to his feet. The birth of another daughter, however, will bring him only the keenest disappointment and make his situation so unbearable that his abdication of the throne would be no surprise.

"The Breakers"

Where to Stop at North Beach

The Breakers Hotel is conducted to attract the best party and is a summer hotel that is unsurpassed on the Pacific north of the famous California beach resorts.

The building has an ocean front of 100 feet, is 76 feet wide, four stories high, or 73 feet from the ground floor to the top observatory.

It has handsomely furnished rooms, single or en suite, for guests, each room being carpeted.

The house is lighted by electricity with electric lights and electric call bells in every room, and these lights make it one of the most brilliant beacons on the entire coast.

The entire lower floor is thrown open to the public, and, beautifully carpeted, the spacious reception room and large halls always form favorite gathering places for guests. The billiard and pool room is also quite popular for merry gatherings.

An Aeolian and Pianola in the commodious parlor furnish delightful music at all times, and musicals are pleasant features during the entire season.

The Breakers has a regular orchestra which furnishes music for informal dances and balls, and the large dining room, with smooth, hard floor, makes an ideal hall for regular dancing parties.

An abundance of fresh and salt water fish, clams, oysters, and other sea food is always on our menu; our entire supply of milk, butter and cream comes from our own herd of Jersey cows and poultry and eggs are supplied from the hotel farm adjacent to the grounds.

There are hot and cold, fresh and salt water baths in the building with private baths and toilets.

The waves of the ocean at high tide roll within 200 feet of the hotel, and the beach in front is superb for surf bathing.

On the grounds are bowling alleys, golf links, tennis courts, croquet sets; on the lake, just back of the hotel, is a fleet of and row boats, and on Shoalwater bay, just east of the lakes, gasoline launch for parties of fishermen, picnickers or others prefer the warm, still-water bathing to the tumbling of the surf.

All trains stop at the railroad station in the hotel grounds, no crowding into hotel omnibuses or walking in sand is necessary since the hotel ground is a perfect velvety lawn, where the guests are practically landed at the hotel door.

The Breakers Hotel is located at Breakers Station, a regular ticket office, where all trains stop. It is one and a half miles north of Long Beach Station.

In purchasing tickets see that they read to Breakers, Wash. and have baggage checked through to that point.
