

Miss Whittaker, a prominent club woman of Savannah, Ga., tells how she was entirely cured of ovarian troubles by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a Uterine Tonic and Regulator. I suffered for four years with irregularities and Uterine troubles. No one but those who have experienced this dreadful agony can form any idea of the physical and mental misery those endure who are thus afflicted. Your Vegetable Compound cured me within three months. I was fully restored to health and strength, and now my periods are regular and painless. What a blessing it is to be able to obtain such a remedy when so many doctors fail to help you. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is better than any doctor or medicine I ever had. Very truly yours, Miss EAST WHITTAKER, 604 39th St., W. Savannah, Ga.

FARMERS HAVE ALL THE CREDIT

NATURE IS NOT CHANGING, BUT METHODS ARE.

Umatilla County Farmer Says It is Not Increased Rainfall, But Deeper Plowing That is Producing Better Yield in Dry Districts—City Agriculturists Taken to Task.

"I see the papers and city agriculturists are talking about increased rainfall in the western part of Umatilla county and a consequent increase in the yield of wheat and the corresponding advance of the prices of real estate," said a prominent farmer from that section to the East Oregonian today.

"All you say about the increased yield is true, and also the advance in the price of land is noted, but I draw the line on the increased rainfall. I believe in giving man all the credit that belongs to him, especially when he deserves it through increased intelligence and common horse sense."

"Now, as to increased moisture in the western part of this county being responsible for the better wheat yields, I want to correct the city agriculturists. It is not increased rainfall at all, but improved methods of farming, that has brought about the increased yield."

"Where the farmers of this district formerly plowed about three inches deep, and some years did not plow at all, but simply disc their land, and in fact many of them allowed it to 'volunteer,' where it started out all right early in the spring, they are now plowing and cultivating their land. And when I say plowing, I mean what I say. They are not scratching the top of the ground, as a bluff, but they are plowing down six to eight inches every year, and are simply giving reasonably good land a chance to produce something near its capacity."

"Give the devil his dues in this matter and quit talking about increased rainfall. It is not nature that is changing at all, it is the shiftless pioneer farmer shaking off his old methods and donning the enlightening thinking cap of the 20th century."

"The farmer himself, and not nature has removed the dead line from around the section upon which the banks formerly refused to loan money in Umatilla county."

There is no remedy in the world equal to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for curing indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. Mrs. Mary S. Crick, of White Plains, Ky., writes: "I have been a dyspeptic for years; tried all kinds of remedies but continued to grow worse. INDIAN WILL PREACH.
Rev. Cornellison of Presbyterian Mission is Taking a Vacation.

Rev. Cornellison of the Presbyterian mission on the reservation, is taking a vacation which will end about the first of September, when he will resume charge of his pulpit and other clerical duties. While he is off Eddie Connor, a young Nez Perce who is a student of theology, will occupy his pulpit every Sunday at 10 o'clock and at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Connor is a student from the San Francisco Presbyterian Theological seminary, wherein he has spent a year, and to which he will return. Formerly he studied at the Presbyterian school on the Lapwai reservation. He is said to be a very promising and devout man, and a good speaker.

Mr. Cornellison has not gone away during his vacation. On the contrary, he is hard at work, irrigating trees, pruning, laying stone flagging on the church and parsonage grounds, and doing other work on the premises.

DIVERS AFTER PEARLS.

Their Work is Deadly and They Do Not Live Long.

Pearl fishers do not live long. They often dive to a depth of 100 feet or more, and the strain wears them out before their lives are half over. From these depths a diver usually brings two oyster shells each "trip." It is on the mother of pearl in these that the European depends for his sure profit. Pearls are "plums," which only occasionally fall to his lot. Divers work for a wage, and all the shells brought up are the property of the employer. In "Studies in Brown Humanity" Hugh Clifford describes Malay pearl fishers. They anchor on the oyster beds or as near them as possible, he says, and the diving takes place twice a day.

"All the boats are manned at morning and evening, and the Sulu boys row them out to the point selected for the day's operations. The white man in charge always goes with them in order to keep an eye upon the shells, to resuscitate exhausted divers and generally to look after his own interests."

"Presently a man lowers himself slowly over the side, takes a long, deep breath, and then, turning head downward, swims into the depths, his limbs showing dimly in froglike motions until, if the water be very deep, he is completely lost to sight."

"In a few minutes he comes into view again, his face straining upward, foaming with extended neck for the air that he now needs so sorely. His hands cleave the water in strong downward strokes; his form grows momentarily more distinct, until the fixed, tense expression of his starting face is plainly visible. Then the quiet surface of the sea splashes in a thousand drops of sun-steeped light as his head tears through it, and his bursting lungs, expelling the imprisoned air, draw in the breath which they crave in long, hard gasps. If the dive has been a deep one a little blood may be seen to trickle from nose and mouth and ears. At times even the eye sockets ooze blood, the result of fearful pressure to which the diver has been subjected."

A WHISTLER PICTURE.

The Dramatic Manner of its Finish and an Anti-Climax.

The value of brains in business can not be overestimated, of course; but neither can the value of manners. Don't make the error of supposing that brains are everything. You may have the best set of brains in the town, but if you haven't the manners of a gentleman nobody is going to appreciate you. Your manner is the outward indication of what you are within in the estimate of most people, and if the manner is disagreeable few will take the trouble to examine into you any further.

The consensus of general opinion is that the man who goes about with porcupine quills as his manners hasn't any brains worth bothering about. Did you never notice that the men who employ large forces of intelligent people look at an applicant closely, ask a few seemingly unimportant questions and promptly employ or dismiss him? They don't sound his brain depth; they don't obtain his biography; they don't inquire into his social standing; they size him up from his manners, and if he is brass on the surface they don't look for gold within.

The employer knows that if an applicant's manner strikes him favorably it will also favorably strike people with whom he comes in contact in his work. And nobody knows better than a big business man that a favorable first impression means half the sale. People are apt to think that if there is any place where manners are of little consequence it is in business, where cold calculation so largely takes the place of feeling. But the truth is that nowhere else are manners of such importance as in everyday dealings. There is no capital and equipment any young man can have that will pay him better than good manners. There is no possible calling for which this does not better fit him. If he has brains the world owes him something; but unless he has good manners he will have a hard time collecting it.—Kansas City World.

An Eloquent oration.

"And," said the rising young politician as he reached his eloquent peroration, "I predict that our candidate will, when the votes are counted, be found to have ridden to success upon a tidal wave of glory that will have swept all before it like wild fire breaking in flying spray upon the strand where the sun of victory shall blaze forth its most effulgent rays upon the close of one of the most noble, most memorable campaigns that have ever been launched upon the sea of politics to gather strength and carry all before it like the cyclone sweeping across the broad prairies from which even the orb of day has disappeared in terror."

One Hundred Dollars Reward.

One hundred dollars is a pretty good reward for five minutes work, yet that is what J. E. Strode, of Walsburg, Wash., got from the East Oregonian in our last subscription contest. He received with the compliments of the East Oregonian, without a cent of expense to himself, a 1904 rubber-tired buggy. We propose to conduct another subscription contest on the following basis:

From now until November 4th we will take new subscriptions sent in by our subscribers and to the one who guesses nearest to the vote received by the winning presidential candidate in this state, we will give one-half of all the money received from this contest.

For example, if you think President Roosevelt will receive the majority of votes in the coming election, fill out the coupon, "Roosevelt's name vote in Oregon will be (.....)," and put in your estimate.

If our subscribers co-operate with us as they have in previous contests and as we expect they will in this, we will take in several hundred dollars and possibly much more, one-half of which will go to the person who guesses nearest to the vote in Oregon for the winning presidential candidate.

There is only one requirement and this is important. ALL NAMES SENT IN MUST BE THOSE OF NEW SUBSCRIBERS. Renewals of subscription will not be counted in this contest. Subscribers can participate in this way: Get some neighbor to take the Weekly East Oregonian for four months for 50 cents. Send in a money order for the 50 cents, or 25 cents and 25 stamps or silver, accompanied by your guess on the presidential vote. If you do not want to ask some neighbor to subscribe, send in 50 cents and the name of some friend in the East who is interested in the western country. Let him read the Weekly East Oregonian and it will give him more news about the resources of the Inland Empire than you could if you wrote him a 50-page letter a week. For every 50 cents you will be entitled to one guess. If you get four of your friends to take it four months each, you will be entitled to four guesses, or if you get one new subscription for a year for the Weekly for $1.50 you are entitled to three guesses. Some one of our subscribers will get one half of several hundred dollars, but whatever the sum the one who guesses nearest to the presidential vote in Oregon for the winning candidate, will get one-half of the money.

Remember the guess is on the vote cast in Oregon for the successful presidential candidate.

Only new subscriptions count.

A subscription for 50 cents gives you one guess.

You can send in as many subscribers as you wish and for each 50 cents you get one guess.

This contest closes November fourth, so be sure to send in your guess before that time.

The total vote in June, 1904, was 92,608; for republican candidate for supreme judge, 52,946; for democratic, 28,729; socialist, 6419, and prohibition, 5514.
