Walnuts Grow at Walla Walla.
A number of pioneer tree-planters in Walla Walla county claim that the white, or English, walnut is being grown successfully in places and that a number of trees are producing fine specimens of nuts. These trees were planted from 15 to 20 years ago, and until recently did not seem to have the vitality to produce well developed nuts, as the season would close before maturity. In California the nut tree grows luxuriantly, and it is believed the future will show the same results in this county. Trees are growing in a number of orchards and two nurseries are producing them for sale. When the trees are young they grow rapidly and strongly, to such an extent that no strength is thrown to the branches, but when the tree gets its growth, or nearly so, the nut matures properly.

LITTLE FAMILY OF 32.
Aged Negroes Meet and Wed After 45 Years' Separation.

One of the strangest romances ever told in the actual county records of California was revealed today by the marriage of an aged negress and negro at Fresno, says the Examiner.

Frank Harris and Mary Brooks were slave children on a Louisiana plantation before the war. They grew up together and fell in love, and they would have been married, but their master sold Harris to a planter in Tennessee and then by means of a lash compelled the girl to marry another slave.

That separation was in 1859. Then the war came and the slaves were freed. Harris and the woman he loved in Louisiana were both married. Years passed and neither heard anything of the other. Eventually the two came to California, and here in Fresno, at a church gathering, they met yesterday. The woman's husband was dead. Harris was a widower. The old attachment of the plantation days was instantly renewed and Harris reminded Mrs. Brooks of her long-ago promise to marry him.

"But I am the mother of 15 children," said the woman.
"Is that all?" responded Harris. "I have 17 children myself."

It was only yesterday morning that the two met for the first time since the man was sold away in Tennessee, but they were married today.

IN CORONER'S ABSENCE.
Justices of the Peace Will Act as Deputy Coroners.

Umatilla county justices of the peace will act as coroners during the absence of Coroner T. M. Henderson, who will leave Sunday night for a six weeks' visit to the East. Dr. Henderson was looking up the law yesterday afternoon to see who should act as his deputy. The statute reads:

"If the office of coroner shall be vacant, or the coroner for any reason unable to act, or be absent from the county, any justice of the peace of the county is authorized and required to perform the duties hereby required of such coroner."

Wheat Raised at 15 Cents.
The statement prepared for President Twombly of the Old National bank by H. Haynes of Harrington, setting forth the cost of raising wheat in the Big Bend country, proves conclusively that when the best methods of farming are adopted there is almost a certainty of handsome returns. It is shown that wheat may be raised in the Big Bend for 15 cents a bushel, but it is only as the result of farming on a gigantic scale, careful agriculture, the wise handling of men and the use of the latest and best of modern farm machinery. Of course, the small farmer, however careful and intelligent, can not produce wheat at that figure—Homeseeker and Investor.
