RICH TIMBER COMPANY.

Weyerhaeuser People Clear $20,000,000 in Northwest Lands.

At present cash values, the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company, which has recently been making purchases of timber lands in some parts of Southern Oregon, is said to have cleared $20,000,000 on an original investment of $6,000,000 four years ago, says the Asblund Record.

A syndicate headed by Frederick Weyerhaeuser, of St. Paul, and R. McCormick, now president of the Lumbermen's National Bank here, purchased of the Northern Pacific railway, its big holdings of timber lands in Western Washington amounting to nearly a million acres.

The Weyerhaeuser Timber Company started business with $6,000,000 paid up capital, which has been increased first to eight, then to 19 and recently to 12 1/2 millions.

A block of the company's stock was sold recently at $260 a share. Within four years timber lands have more than doubled in value. The company has increased its holdings by purchase from settlers and others, owning today considerably more than a million acres.

The policy has been to sell timber where actually needed by mills, otherwise to hold for future high prices. Members of the company said recently that within a very few years its holdings will be worth $50,000,000 in spot cash.

WANT A SHELTER FOR HOMELESS MEN

A shelter for destitute men is the latest project to be launched in this city by the Salvation Army. Major Robert Dubbin, commanding the North Pacific division, who was in Pendleton last night, declared that some place for men who are in need should be opened in this city.

"I would like to find out whether the business men of Pendleton are in favor of such an institution," said Elnagin R. Kuhn, in temporary charge of the local corps. "A resort where the men can read and find healthy amusement and a place to sleep, is badly needed. Scarcely a day passes that we are not approached by some young man who is hungry and without a place to sleep. We have to take them in the lodging houses."

"If possible I would like to secure a large room, upstairs over some store, that could be converted into a dormitory. The army has these shelters in Seattle, Portland and Tacoma and Spokane. One is to be opened in Walla Walla shortly."

"We endeavor to have a wood yard in connection with the shelter, in order to allow the applicants for beds or food an opportunity to earn what they get."

The annual harvest festival of the army is on this week. It closes Saturday night with an auction sale at the barracks of the goods donated.

READY FOR THE FAIR.

Steve Bailey, of Seattle, brought an excellent bunch and the Cushman string was in the lot. Mart Lynch also arrived yesterday from North Yakima with Francisco, the Walla Walla favorite. Francisco is in fine fettle and it is expected that he will do some fast racing during the early hours of the day.

The track is being worked every day and will be in excellent shape for the opening of the fair.

Demands for stalls and pens for blooded stock are coming in daily and every bit of the available space has already been reserved. Carpenters are at work constructing an additional number and Secretary Caswell says he will be in a position by the middle of the present week to supply all the demand. SAYS COMBINES ARE HERE TO STAY

BEN HOLT SAYS INDIAN OBJECTION IS GROUNDESS

Agitation Against Combined Harvesters Said by Mr. Holt to Be Inspired by Agents of Stationary Machines—He Claims the Combined Saves the Indian Much Money—One Indian Saved $1000 on 200 Acres This Year.

The agitation among the Umatillas regarding the use of combined harvesters, declares Ben Holt, manager of the Holt Brothers Combined Harvester Company for the Northwest, is the work of certain stationary agents. "The Indian," said Mr. Holt this morning, "is not opposed to the combine; as a matter of fact he knows it saves him money."

"I was talking to a prominent Indian farmer yesterday who informed me that he saved fully $1000 on a 200-acre field by harvesting it with a combine. This little talk about losing their straw, is merely an excuse. The Indian who protests has been urged to do so."

"Business this year in my line has been better than ever before. The combine is no longer an experiment and the farmers realize this. The stationary machines must go."

Mr. Holt makes his headquarters in Walla Walla. He departed this morning for The Dalles and Portland.

NEW BOAT SATISFACTORY.

The Mountain Gem Now in Service on Upper Snake.

Lewiston, Oct. 4.—The first two carloads of wheat brought by the steamer Mountain Gem from Astoria Friday, went out yesterday morning over the Northern Pacific.

The wheat was billed to New York. The second cargo was loaded in Northern Pacific cars Saturday and will go out this morning, the shipment also being destined to New York.

On the trip to Astoria today soundings will be made by Captain Gray at shallow points in the channel, to determine whether the boat can be loaded to full capacity with safety. The boat on the last trip conveniently brought down 1050 sacks, but the full capacity of the craft for carrying wheat, with the galleys removed to the upper deck, is 1800 sacks.

It is shown by the soundings that despite the extreme low condition of the water, the channel will enable the boat to pass over the shallow places, a full cargo of 1800 sacks, or 120 tons, will be brought out today.

In the construction of the boat the lower deck has been designed especially for freight service and every inch of deck space is made available.
