THE FULL MEASURE LIQUOR HOUSE

Umatilla County Settlers on Canadian Soil.

Rev. G. W. Rigby, who with his son M. A. Rigby, returned a few days ago from Alberta, talks very entertainingly of the country and of the Umatilla contingent therein.

He met James Nelson and Nick Taitinger and Myron Briggs, mention of whose holdings and ventures in taking horses into Alberta has been made through the East Oregonian of late.

McIntyre of Athena, who bought land there, has a good place and excellent prospects, as has young Hendrickson, who went there about a year ago, shortly after being married. Mr. Hendrickson has also a good farm. Jacob Jacobson is also located on a good farm, with every prospect of succeeding.

Mr. Rigby also met Angus Gillis, who, with his brother-in-law, C. C. Sharpe of this place, owns 640 acres. Mr. Gillis went there last winter and paid $6 per acre for land for which they have since been offered $10 per acre. This is the ratio of increase in value common to holding of all the people from this country.

Harry Bixby, the carpenter, went there last spring, and has either a half section, or 480 acres, and has laid the foundation for wealth. Harry Stevenson and his four brothers and father, all formerly of Helix, are in the same neighborhood on the most liberal terms, or purchased at a low figure and rapidly increasing in value. The Stevensons have been there from three to five years, have good ranches and are doing well.

William Colwell of the reservation, owns two sections of land 10 miles north of the neighborhood in which most of the other Umatillians have located. Robert Laing of this place, owns two sections in the same neighborhood, and A. Kunkel owns two sections also.

Rigby's Own 2240 Acres.

The three Rigbys, G. W., W. T. and M. A., own "amongst them," 2240 acres, and Mr. Rigby avers that there is not over five acres of this entire acreage that cannot be plowed. Like the land owned by most of the parties named, it is typical Middle States prairie land—black and almost bottomless soil, a wide savannah covered with grass, and not a stick of brush, or a shrub. The Rigbys paid $8.50 per acre, and it could have been bought a year ago for one-third less. It was entirely unbroken, and with no other improvements of any kind.

W. T. Rigby remained, and will return in a short time. He is building a dwelling and doing some fencing before winter sets in. All the Rigbys will remove there in the spring with their families, with the possible exception that Father Rigby and his wife will not go.

Another man met by G. W. Rigby was Ed McCandish, also formerly of Pendleton vicinity. Mr. Rigby advised the young man to get married, and as an inducement offered to perform the ceremony free of charge. He made the offer on Monday evening. The young man got a hustle on him and was married by Mr. Rigby Thursday evening.

All these people, with the exception of those living 10 miles north of "the Umatilla settlement," live 16 miles southeast of Claresholm, which is in Alberta, 80 miles south of Calgary, and approximately 80 miles north of the Montana state line.

Mr. Rigby notes that excellent coal can be bought for about one-half the price of the same grade of coal here.

Also, that barbed wire is somewhat cheaper, but that cedar posts cost more, which brings the cost of wire fencing up to just about what it costs here. Agricultural implements are in general somewhat cheaper than here.

Calgary has approximately 10,000 inhabitants and Claresholm 500, and both are growing rapidly. In Calgary is building the finest Methodist church Mr. Rigby ever saw, of a native building stone which is very fine and exceedingly cheap.

Mr. Rigby states that notwithstanding its many and obvious advantages, that country has all the disadvantages peculiar to any new country, and then some. The water is liable to be, in any neighborhood, almost unusable from alkali, while the water on an adjoining farm is very fine, or a fine quality may be found in another place on the same farm.

Timber is scarce and lumber high.

H. B. Kelso, of Hillsboro, has begun suit against the Club saloon of that place to recover $600, being double the amount lost by him in a gambling game.
