Government restrictions are designed with laudable but frequent mistaken intention, consequently amendment at frequent intervals is desirable. This week a big band of Idaho lambs of only feeding quality reached Chicago in which scab was detected. Feeders by the score were ready to take them at $4.50 because of this infection—not a serious matter by any means—they were of necessity sold as culls at $4, a ruinous price, while at the same time a lot of valuable raw material was destroyed. But for a government regulation requiring double dipping and 19-day quarantine these lambs could have been finished. Any intelligent feeder would have given them a second dinping at home. It is obviously a case that points to the necessity of an amendment in the regulations.—Chicago Livestock World.

Crowd Assembled in Front of Strain's Store Last Evening and Tried to Prevent Clothler From Doing Business-Clerks Not Responsible for Egg Throwing-Strain Arrested for Disorderly Conduct, But Charge Withdrawn This Morning.

The Pendleton Retail Clerks' Asso ciation is at war with Paul Strain, proprietor of the Hub clothing store, at Court and Johnson streets. The union and the clothier clashed last when the latter close his place of business at 6

A delegation of more than a score of clerks congregated in front of Strain's place last night and when he but of late years he has resided at refused to close he was jeered by the Eugene, where he was associated with crowd. Fully 250 people assembled crowd. and the excitement for a while was high. Eggs were thrown, but the clerks declare none of their men were responsible for this. City Marshai M. J. Carney, who was present ordered Strain to before the recorder this morning, but when the matter was reported to Re-corder Fitz Gerald he criticized the action of the chief in allowing the crowd to form in front of the Hub.

"The ordinance is very plain," said e justice. "When three or more the justice. persons congregate in one the street and are told to move on the street and are guilty of a misand refuse, they are guilty of a mis-demeanor. When you tried to disperse the crowd and the people refused to go, you should have placed them under arrest.

Strain declares that rival merchants of Pendleton are behind the clerks, but the union men deny this. "We are simply working to preserve our short hours," said President Ma-cey, of the Clerk's Union. "There are 75 male and 50 women clerks in this city working until 6 o'clock in the evening. We have been a long time in securing these hours and if Strain remains open each evening it endanwelfare. comply with our request 6 o'clock, but he has broken his word."

Strain says: "The crowd congre gated in front of my place, insuited my customers and threw rotten eggs articles yet remain for sale but the my consider are confident of being able to at me, and when I exclaimed against sisters are confident of being able to at me, and when I exclaimed against lit, they accused me of disorderly conduct and the marshal stepped up and placed me under arrest. ing he withdrew the charge."
