Good night? Ah, no; the hour is ill Which severs those it should unite. Let us remain together still, Then it will be good night. How can I call the lone night good, Though thy sweet wishes wing its flight? Be it not said, thought, understood, That it will be good night. To hearts which near each other move From evening close to morning light. The night is good, because, my love, They never say good night. —Shelley.

THE PEACEABLE REVOLT.

In a special message to the East Oregonian today, Thomas W. Lawson, the author of "Frenzied Finance," says the knowledge of the working of the trusts will cause the American people to peacefully, legally revolt.

While Thomas W. Lawson is no saint, and is even accredited with being a trust devil, yet the fact remains that his expose of the inner operations of the financial trust of the United States has awakened the people to the criminality of the combinations, as no other man has ever done.

That Lawson's statements concerning the corruption and crime of the trusts are true is borne out by the fact that the trusts have not yet successfully answered any solitary proposition made by Lawson, although they have in their employ some of the keenest intellects in the world, and by the further fact that threats, overtures, offers, intimidation and every known subterfuge of the trusts has been used in the effort to stop the Lawson expose.

The article in the February number of Everybody's Magazine gives the most vital facts concerning the power of financial interests of the United States, and shows how every one of the great financial institutions is fed and pampered by the corruption fund, sapped from the people through their own servants.

The nose of the common people is held on the industrial grindstone, from year to year, while half a hundred protected bandits, armed with legal powers and protected by congress, draws the lifeblood from industry, and tightens the grip on the people's property and rights by enacting all the commands of the trusts into law.

PRICES OF FARMING LAND.

A prominent farmer, who is a close observer and a cautious investor, declared to the East Oregonian last evening, that it is impossible to estimate the true worth of the farming lands of Umatilla county, in the light of recent investigations.

It had been said by Eastern buyers that $80 per acre for wheat land that would produce but 50 bushels per acre, worth at the highest price about 75 cents per bushel, was too much to pay for this character of land—that it would not yield a rate of interest sufficiently high to make it a profitable investment.

Looking at it as a transient investment, as a speculation on which to realize a fortune in a year, either by reselling the land or growing wheat, it is not a good speculation.

But in another and a higher sense, it is a good investment. If a man is seeking a permanent investment for his means, what more permanent and imperishable property, than real estate, in a new and growing country, can he select? Especially is this true, when the facts concerning Umatilla county farming lands are taken into consideration.

Listen: On a chemical test made at the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, D. C., Umatilla county soil was found to be identical in formation with that of Sicily, where wheat has been grown, with increasing yields for 2000 years; at Helix, Athens and in all the wheat districts, tests have proved that the soil found on the surface is from 50 to 100 feet in depth, without a perceptible change in its composition, with depth; within the past five years, the wheat yield has increased in the northwest portion of this county from six to 20 bushels per acre, and cultivation increases the fertility of the soil, beyond computation; the climate is especially adapted to wheat growing, not a drop of rain having fallen during the harvest season just past, while sufficient rain fell during the growing season to make the crops.

If you are seeking a permanent investment which will not deteriorate with time, but which is certain to increase with skillful husbandry and improving conditions, where can you find an opportunity to equal the purchase of Umatilla wheat land, even at $80 per acre? And what a more magnificent opportunity at $50 to $25 per acre, at which prices the cream of the wheat belt is now selling, when it is sold, at all.

The Inland Empire is now taking treatment from one of the grasping trusts exposed by Thomas W. Lawson. At the bidding of the corporations, Chairman Burton of the river and harbors committee, has decided that Ohio canals, and not Western rivers and harbors shall be the beneficiaries of the present congress. For 30 years this same farce has been enacted in congress. The money already applied to the Cello canal will be worse than wasted, if additional funds are not provided to complete the work. Congress is acting unwisely, narrowly and unjustly in denying the West its legitimate requirements. It is a travesty on civilization for congress to refuse to complete at once the work on the Columbia river bar, and on the Cello canal. Both of these obstructions are barriers to the settlement and civilization of the Northwest. Both of them should be completed and no excuse from congress will be received by the Inland Empire. It is a clear case of corporation dominance. No other excuse can be offered by Burton for his actions.

The irrigation bills will be made a special order in the legislature on next Tuesday, it is understood, and every person interested in the passage of a progressive, modern irrigation law for Oregon, should either go to Salem to urge the passage of the irrigation commission's bill, or write to the members of the legislature from Eastern Oregon. The time has come to take an advance step in this matter. The state is one the eve of one of the greatest industrial eras in its history. If the state laws on irrigation are made to conform to the plans of the government, The millions of dollars now accumulated in the irrigation fund will be distributed in the West, and those states which prepare themselves for government irrigation will receive the benefits of this fund. If Oregon refuses to correct her irrigation code, and dabbles with this subject, she must not be surprised if the fund of which she has contributed the major portion goes elsewhere. The government means business in this matter.

DISRAELI AND GLADSTONE.

That Disraeli wit was too much for Gladstone. The great liberal had but one adjective for his Tory opponent and that was "devilish." Never during the years of their opposing leadership had the two any social relations; each made light of the other's literary efforts. Some one asked Lord Beaconsfield to define the difference between a misfortune and a calamity, and unhesitatingly it came: "If Gladstone should fall into the Thames it would be a misfortune. If any one should pull him out it would be a calamity."

The best of all the Gladstone-Disraeli stories tells how once at a London dinner party the ladies at the table were asked which they would marry if they had to marry one or the other—the great liberal or the great Tory. All declared promptly in favor of Beaconsfield save one, who hastened to explain that she had rather wed Gladstone that she might elope with Disraeli and so break her husband's heart. This happening was of course retold to Disraeli, and so pleased was he over it that he suspended a cabinet debate on the chances of a continental war in order to relate it.—Warwick James Price in the Criterion.

A DOG'S LONG VIGIL.

After four years' lonely vigil in a deserted portion of the bleak west coast of Vancouver island a faithful Newfoundland dog, still waiting and looking out to sea for its owner to come and take it away, has just been killed because it had grown wild. Philip Nordstrom, who has just returned from a prospecting trip around Quatsino, brings the story.

In 1899 the Peruvian bark Libertad was wrecked, the captain and crew being saved after terrible privation by a passing sealer and landed at Cape Cook. When they set sail in an open boat from Cape Cook the dog was left behind. When seen by Nordstrom the boat was still waiting on the rocks. It had secured food by catching small animals.

THE OLD TO THE NEW.

The dying year upraised his paled hand, Still in the fading vigor of command, And beckoned Father Time, "O Father, pray Witness unto what I write this day. Fetch paper, ink and pen; ere I lie still, For my heir's sake must I make out my will." The things were brought. He gazed with blurred eye. With feeble clutch he wrote: "About to die, Know all men that I leave these things in trust To him who follows me: I leave the rust And vanity of Gold. I leave Regrets, I leave Dull Care, and Social Sins, and Debts." He signed his name. Time read and loudly cried: "Old Year, give more! I am not satisfied. This codicil I now command." And then Once more the paled hand took up the pen, Obeyed to the Witness stern above: "Also, I here bequeath Faith, Hope and Love." —Tom Masson.

CUPID ON "THE TRAIL."

Cupid will be an exhibit on "the Trail" at the Lewis and Clark fair, says the Telegram. So far as known he will make but one appearance, on July 4, when he will unite in marriage, the ceremony being public, the following whose hearts fair would heat as one, their souls already having but a single thought:

Miss Nellie Beardley, of 415 Sixth street, Portland.

Loy Bristol, of 215 Morrison street, Portland.

The fair management, to whom Miss Beardley applied in person, appreciated the attraction that would be presented by a public wedding "on the Trail" and at once closed the "engagement."

Miss Beardley has more than her share of good looks, and says that she is proud to take Mr. Bristol as her husband "before all the world." It is considered likely that other matrimonial candidates will come forward.

Miss Beardley stated that her fiancé has been ill in the hospital for some time, so their intended marriage has been necessarily postponed. But as he is on the road to recovery, it is believed by the couple that the summer will be a fitting time for the ceremony to occur, and the Trail appears to them to be a splendid place, adding historic interest to their union.

Miss Beardley asks no bonus or present, she simply wishes to wed.

New Mayor of Shaniko.

Shaniko now has as mayor, E. D. Woodbury, superintendent of the Columbia Southern railway, vice F. T. Hurlburt, who has been acting in this capacity for about two years.—The Dalles Chronicle.

CUPID'S MIRROR.

"The beauty of a woman's face or figure is but the external sign of the good health within," says Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., the specialist in women's diseases.

Further, to be happy and beautiful one must naturally have good health. Now if a woman has dragging down feelings, together with constantly returning pains and aches, a too great drain upon her vitality and strength, she will never look beautiful. The feelings of nervousness, the harassed mind, the ill-temper, the pale and wrinkled face, all result from those disorders peculiar to women, and the only way to effect their cure is to strike at the source of the difficulty. There is every reason why she should write some great specialist, one who has made the diseases of women a specialty for a third of a century like Dr. R. V. Pierce, founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. All correspondence is held sacredly confidential, and he gives his advice free and without charge.

During a long period of practice, Doctor Pierce found that a prescription made up entirely of roots and herbs, without the use of alcohol, cured ninety-eight per cent. of such cases. After using this remedy for many years in his private practice he put it up in a form that can be had at any store where medicines are handled.

In many cases Dr. R. V. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will fit the needs and put the body in healthy condition. So sure of it is Dr. Pierce, he offers a reward of $500 for women who cannot be cured of Leucorrhoea, Female Weakness, Protrusion, or Falling of Womb. All he asks is a fair and reasonable trial of his means of cure.
