OREGON HOLDS RAIN RECORD.

Wilson, Tillamook County, Had 136 Inches of Rainfall in 1904.

Wilson, in Tillamook county, is the wettest town in the United States of which the weather bureau has any Rain falls there to the depth of 136 inches every 12 months. It mists, patters, rains and occasionally pours from beginning to end of the year, says the Oregon Daily Journal.

Fearing that something might be wrong with the gauge for measuring the precipitation at that place, Assistant District Forecaster Wollaber this city, made a special trip to Wilson to make a thorough inquiry into the situation. The instruments were found true and the only reason for the large amount of moisture which they showed was held to be due to rain, rain, rain.

The station is in charge of Mrs Jennie Reehr, who has been measuring the falling waters at the same spot for the past 13 years. Mr. Wollaber says that she is one of the most cap-able persons in the service—careful and conscientious. Moreover, the gauge and instruments used at the station are perfect.

Wilson nestles in a canyon, on each side of which the mountains rise to a height of 1500 feet above the level The weather experts are of the opinion that the topography of the country contributes very largely to the excessive rainfall.

"There may be other points in Til-tamook county." said Mr. Wollaber. pneumonia. But when coughs and colds are properly treated, the tragged of the consumption, and three doctors gave her up. Finally she tood Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and colds, which cured her, and today she is well and transported. It is probable that there are points in southeastern Alaska where the annual rainfall is heavier, but of course this is merely conjectural. Clear Water, Jeffersen county, has an anwell and of all dis-Guaran-allman & the United States, although Neah Bay, Wash., is a close second.

AGAINST THE MACQUES.

Abolish Social Evil.

One of the most important of the bills introduced before the legislature during the present session is the one introduced before the house Thursday relative to husbands who connive at the prostitution of their wives, says the Salem Statesman.

This bill also applies to persons who

This bill also applies to persons who live off or accept the earnings of prostitutes or who solicit persons to go to the houses of ill-fame for im-moral purposes. It also provides against the admittance of females under the age of 18 years of age into houses of ill-fame. For the violation of the law, if enacted, the transgres-sor would be arrested on the charge of felony and if convicted, sentenced to a term in the state penitentiary of not less than one year or more than

This bill is for the direct purpos of driving out of the state the most disreputable and objectionable class of men known as "macques." If such a bill was passed these degenerated creatures would be compelled to face the alternative of supporting themselves by going to work or getting out of the state.

The Salem authorities are now waging a persistent and unremitting war-fare against these leeches of society, but they are unable to do anything

OSTEOPATHY

It is estimated that less than 10 per cent of women are in perfect health. Why this alarming state? For the answer to the greater part of it, we must look to the so-called pelvic dis-eases, or female troubles. It is rare indeed to find a woman in the active period of life entirely free from all these allments. Is it any wonder that scientists are constantly asserting the degeneracy of the human race, when these must be the mothers of it, or that in France and Germany the that in France and Germany the death rate exceeds the births? Is it death rate exceeds the births? Is it any wonder that so many false cures are heralded, and that for years quacks have made this their harvest field? With years of suffering and distress, aches in back, ovaries and uterus, with their reflex accompaniments, headaches, digestive disorders, bladder trouble, etc., is it any won-der that woman submits to the burning caustics, pessary, electric shock, and finally the surgeon's knife, only to find herself at last unsexed, a nervous wreck and a hopeless invalid? Such is the story of a hundred in our own town. Cannot science end this awful tale? If not, a new and hardier race must take the stage. He who brings this story to a close will be greater than any now on his-tory's pages. Such a one is now striving hard for this glorious cause in the person of Dr. Andrew T. Still, the founder of osteopathy. Said Mrs. Senator Jos. B. Foraker, "If the founder of Osteopathy does nothing more in this life than what he has done to relieve the suffering of women, his name will go down the ages as the greatest physician of any age, and one of the benefactors of the

Is this eulogy merited? Let us examine his theory and see if it be reasonable, for we' should reason on healing, although we have never done so. The body is not a mystery, but works by law, just as truly as any other machine. So have a reason.

The uterus and ovaries have an abundant and delicately balanced nerve and blood supply on which they depend to functionate, or perform their duty of life, procreation. Be-cause of this abundance and delicacy of nerve and blood supply, they are easily disturbed. At this point Dr. Still began by asking, "How does this disturbance come about?" Strange it is that no physician ever asked this before, or if he asked, failed to get an answer. Dr. Still never stopped until he had an answer.

The blood to the female organs, as well as to all parts is controlled by the raso-motor nerves. These arise in the spinal cord, pass out between the vertebrae, thence downward through tissues and over joints to the organs. Cut the vaso-motor nerve to any vessel and the vessel wall is paralyzed. Then the force of the blood within the vessel spleads the wall, accumulating an excess of blood, an inflammation or congestion. With these facts of physiology as a starting point, Dr. Still began the search for the agent cutting the vaso-motor nerve. Diligent search recvealed that the vertebrae between which the nerve leaves the spinal cord, were slightly displaced, the ribs, the 11th and 12th, were drawn down and to-gether, and that the pelvic bones, commonly called the hip bones, were twisted. "An idea," says Dr. Still. twisted. "An idea," says Dr. Still.
"These bring pressure and cut off the nerves as they pass by them. If I straighten these it should get the desired result." He did the work. The result you have in the above quotation from the wife of Ohlo's greatest

You have been duped long enough. Henceforth proceed by reason. Investigate. There are several in our town who have been treated. Get a complete explanation and understand. Pick the wheat from the chaff, forpretenders are numerous infest our state until Senator Brown ell's bill, now before the legislature becomes a law and compels all teopaths to go before an examining board. Don't judge Osteopathy by what some pretender has been able to give you. Would you judge n

Frequently we hear, "I have a uterine displacement, so Osteopathy can't help me." Does not the dis-placement come from the stretching of the ligaments, weakened by poo nourishment? What will correct it? Prop it up with a pessary, or correct the blood supply and nourish the lig-aments back to strength?

Hecause you cannot detect the slight displacements of bones, don't be positive there are none. Trained fingers will find them and point them out to your satisfaction. Medical dectors, those who never investigate, often assert that these displacements do not exist, any such we confine. do not exist. Any such we cordially invite to call, as we have some ex-cellent examples of all classes of displacements among our patients.
Osteopathy makes no claim to cure all cases. Some mild cases are incur able, some very bad cases are easily cured. Most depends on the causes whether it be a removable condition or not. Then comes in the recuper-ative power of the body. The longer the case is delayed the more the recuperative power is lost.

Give Osteopathy a chance to save you before submitting to the surgeon's knife, which must forever destroy you as a woman, unsex you, wreck your nervous system, subject you to the terrible initiative of the scar tissue and leave you incapable of motherhood, and unfitted in body and mind for wifehood, a barren the sands of time just liversely. more than to convict them on the share of vagrancy. away.

There is a chance for you. It costs nothing to investigate fully with Doctors Holsington, Despain block, Pen-dleton, Ore., who are graduates under Dr. Still, the founder. They will gladly answer any question.
