FIRST SHEEP IN UMATILLA COUNTY

JACOB FRAZER BROUGHT IN 2200 IN 1886.

James Hackett, Well Known Sheepman, Was Probably the First Herder in the County—Worked for Frazer for 10 Years and Then Formed Partnership—Hackett and Frazer Brought in the First Merino Bucks Ever Owned in the County.

James Hackett, the well known sheepman of this city, was one of the very first sheepherders ever holding such a job in Umatilla county. He has passed through all the successive stages of the sheep business, from that of herder to be one of the principal sheep owners of one of the greatest sheep counties in the state.

Hackett was born in Sacramento, Cal., and came to this county with Jacob Frazer, the man who brought the first band of sheep into Umatilla county. In 1886 Mr. Frazer went to Umpqua valley, Oregon, and purchased a band of 2200 head of sheep, and drove them across the Cascade mountains into Umatilla county, and located the famous Frazer ranch on Birch creek, now owned by the Gurdarians.

Hackett was a boy 10 years old at that time and herded this band of sheep on the foothills, around the present site of Pendleton, and a few years later formed a partnership with Mr. Frazer in the sheep business.

Although other sheep had been driven through the county before this, the band brought here by Mr. Frazer in 1886, was the very first band to locate permanently in the county. At that time sheep were a drug on the market in the Willamette valley and this herd was bought for about $1.10 per head. They had been brought from California into the Willamette valley, and were a very poor grade of sheep.

In 1873, when Hackett had become a partner of Frazer in the sheep business, they bought the first merino bucks ever brought into the county, from John Minto, of Salem, who was a noted breeder of fine stock. From that first lot of merino bucks ever brought in to the county, the better grade of later Eastern Oregon sheep descended.

Jacob Frazer was the first man to send a 10,000 pound shipment of wool down the Columbia river, this being the clip from his herd a few years after bringing the Umpqua sheep here. It was hauled by freight teams from his pens near Pendleton, to Umatilla Landing and thence to Portland by boat. There was little market for wool at that time, and this shipment of 10,000 pounds was looked upon as a wonderful cargo.

Fraud Exposed.
A few counterfeiters have lately been making and trying to sell imitations of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, and other medicines, thereby defrauding the public. This is to warn you to beware of such people, who seek to profit through stealing the reputation of remedies which have been successfully curing disease, for over 35 years. A sure protection, to you, is our name on the wrapper. Look for it on all Dr. King's, or Bucklen's remedies, as all others are mere imitations. H. E. Unwritten Books.
Goldsmith often raised money or some projected work, then put it aside and started another. He once drew up a prospectus for a "Dictionary of Art and Sciences" and obtained promises of help from his friends, Johnson Reynolds and Burke, but the booksellers were too wary for once, and the scheme fell through. One of his last proposals was the "Survey of Experimental Philosophy," which met with the same fate.

The more practical Dr. Johnson could himself devise and not undertake. He once thought of writing a life of Oliver Cromwell, but it is as well perhaps that he changed his mind. His constitutional indolence was too great to admit of his undertaking many great literary enterprises, and, unlike Coleridge, he was well aware of the fact. He dabbled over his edition of Shakespeare for nine years, although he had promised it in a year, and only finished it in consequence of the attack of Churchill, who accused him of cheating his subscribers.

He for subscribers tells his book And takes your cash, but where's your book? No matter where; wise fear, you know, Forbids the robbing of a foe. But what to serve our private ends Forbids the cheating of our friends?
—Chambers' Journal.

An Orator's Voice.
"In the church," says Emerson in his essay on eloquence, "I call him only a good reader who can read sense and poetry into any hymn in the hymn book." The test is a severe one, for there are hymns which are wanting both in sense and poetry. The essayist doubtless intended to call attention to that charm of a good voice which enchants attention and indicates a rare sensibility in the reader. "The voice, like the face, betrays the nature and disposition and soon indicates what is the range of the speaker's mind. Many people have no ear for music, but every one has an ear for skillful reading."

John Quincy Adams was said to be so good a reader that no man in his time could read the Bible with such powerful effect. Mr. Emerson, who heard the ex-president speak when his fine voice was broken by age, records that "the wonders he could achieve with that cracked and disobedient organ showed what power might have belonged to it in early manhood."

Box Makers Meet.
Baltimore, Mr., Feb. 28.—The National Association of Box and Box Shook Manufacturers, began its annual convention in Baltimore today with headquarters at the Hotel Belvidere. About 150 leading manufacturers were present from various parts of the country. The business sessions will continue until the end of the week and will be devoted to the discussion of prices, material, supplies and other matters of mutual interest and importance.

Michigan Democrats.
Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 28.—The Michigan state democratic convention assembled here this morning and was called to order by T. E. Tansner of Detroit. The convention will nominate a candidate for justice of the supreme court and two regents for the state university, to be voted for at the spring election.

How Smith's Friend Got Through.

They were out in Kansas about 100 miles and wanted to reach Kansas City. One of them had a pass for John Smith and wife. He was John Smith all right, but his friend could hardly pass as Mrs. Smith. Although they were practically without funds, they boarded the train. "Take a seat in the rear of the car," said Smith to his friend.

Then Smith went forward and sat down by a young woman. Soon they were talking like old friends, and the subject of tickets was brought up by Smith. He asked her to let him see her ticket. It was not of the variety that requires the signature of the purchaser.

Smith examined it until the conductor came through, and then he handed up his pass and the ticket. Pointing to his friend behind, he said, "The extra ticket is for him." The scheme worked. To this day the young woman does not know that she was once Mrs. Smith for a short ride through Kansas.—Kansas City Times.

A Queer Food.

A most singular food is the larvae of a fly common in certain portions of California and known as ephydra. This insect is found in such vast quantities in Lake Mono, Cal., that it is washed upon the shores in vast windrows and can be collected by bushels. The water of Mono is very singular, seemingly very heavy and smooth, like oil, so much so that it resists ordinary wind and refuses to become ruffled. When the larvae begin to appear the Indians gather from far and near and scrape them up, place the wormlike creatures on cloths and racks in the sun and dry them, when they are beaten up and husked, looking then like rice. The Indians call the food koo-chah-bee, and many bushels are collected at his time. That larvae are nutritious is shown by the condition of the Indians, who soon grow fat on the rich diet. Many birds are attracted by the larvae and gorge themselves with the singular food.

Thackeray's Odd Ways.

"He wrote a very small, neat hand and used slips of note paper," said the late John Hollingshead of London concerning Thackeray. "These he would often gather up and put in his coat pocket, leaving his secretary at work, and stroll down to the Athenaeum club. Here, if he could get a comfortable table and was not waylaid by any gossip, to whom he was always ready to give an attentive ear, he would pull out his slips and carry his story a few steps farther. In an hour or two he would again collect the scattered papers and go on to the Garrick club, where, if not interrupted, he would resume his writing. This habit of composing in public frightened many of the old club fogies, who thought they were being caricatured for posterity, and no doubt helped to get him black-balled at the Travelers'."

The Laws of Nature.

The universe is under the reign of law, which is everywhere—in things mean and minute as well as in things noble and great. So far as we have come into an understanding of these laws we have found none defective. No sound philosophy can concede that a law of nature can be one of balance or in any way less than true and perfect. When we advance a theory to the point where it would prove that a law of nature is out of balance and defective, we should know that the conclusion is wrong; that it is our reasoning, and not the law, that is out of balance and defective.—From "Balance: The Fundamental Verity," by Orlando J. Smith.

Her Revenge.

The dinner was in progress. It was a dinner given in honor of some very important new acquaintances. Just before the guests arrived the master of the house had been intensely rude and annoying to his wife, and she had not forgotten it. There was a moment's pause in the buzz of conversation round the beautiful table, gleaming with lights, blushing with roses. Then the wife leaned forward and in a voice soft, but loud enough to attract the attention of the whole company, said sweetly, "By the way, James, what was that story you told me to lead up to in the middle of the dinner?"

Got All the News Promptly.

A countryman gave the following reason for not subscribing to a local newspaper: "I get all the news there is. My wife belongs to the woman's club, one of my daughters works in the millinery shop and the other is in the delivery window at the postoffice, and I'm the village grocer."—Boston Commercial Bulletin.
