- A Nautilus was wrecked upon a reef.
- An Oyster said: "Had you been firmly fixed
- And rooted in the mud, you would not stray.
- Dashing on rocks and reefs, all broken thus!"
- "True, I am wrecked," the Nautilus replied.
- "And you are safe from storm and tempest; yet
- I envy not your safety. I have seen
- Sunlight and darkness, evening and the dawn
- Of day; my little ship, now sinking fast,
- Has sailed the ocean; I have looked upon
- The splendors of creation; while you lay
- Sucking the sludge and groveling in the ooze!"

THE BEST KIND OF CHARITY.

Very few people who do not follow closely the work of the Salvation Army in the various cities of the country, understand the scope and character of the charity practiced by this organization.

The tendency is too often to ridicule the work of the army. Especially do the gossips, which cause over half the misery in the communities, make it a practice to belittle and abuse this poorly paid, self-sacrificing host of faithful workers, as they carry on their secret mission among the poor families of the cities.

In Pendleton, as poorly as this city supports a corps of the Salvation Army, the members are doing a noble work of relief, many pitiable instances of poverty and suffering being relieved by them, while the facts that surround the particular cases are kept secret.

To the personal knowledge of the East Oregonian, there are at least half a dozen poor families in care of the Salvation Army; one family is receiving wood from the barracks, another clothing for the children, another food, another has been furnished work to do, to keep the wolf from the door, another is furnished with reduced house rent, the army paying a portion of the rent to enable the poor wife and children to have a shelter over their heads, another's water bill is paid, another's grocery bill is partly paid, to make good their credit, and so on indefinitely through the entire gamut of misery and suffering, even in Pendleton the plentiful, the noble and unostentatious work of this band of workers goes on constantly, and few people imagine the scope and meaning of it.

More encouragement should be given these people. They are part of the greatest relief organization in the world today. These members are part of the most active charitable organization on earth. It is safe to say that the suffering in the large cities is reduced by half by the work of this army.

In another view of the matter, it is profitable, if you would look at it from a business point of view, to have this organization in the community. They do a work of relief that would fall upon the taxpayers, were it not for the voluntary charity of the Salvation Army. The county would be forced to relieve much of the suffering relieved by these people. The city would be forced to conduct some sort of a relief bureau, if it were not that the Salvation Army conducts a voluntary system of relief.

Pendleton gives the most unwilling and stunted support to the Salvation Army, of any city in Eastern Oregon. In La Grande, where there is a large population of railroad men the army maintains a large corps and does active work all the year. In Baker

City the organization is strong, and does an enormous amount of work among the poor. It pays to support an active, intelligent corps of workers. It reaches a class of needy people who really deserve help and who are not reached by other charitable organizations.

TOO MUCH MONEY FOR FAIR.

What will the state fair board do with $10,000 appropriated by the legislature for improvements?

The board says $5000 was sufficient for improvements, but the bill was passed with double that appropriation. Will the money be husbanded and part of it saved over for the 1906 fair, or will the board spend it on thick?

The Salem Journal, in speaking of the state fair, says:

The state fair board has decided for them, that there can be no state fair held this year.

The bill that passed the house cut out the holding of a fair this year, but appropriated $10,000 for improvements.

It was supposed that the senators from Marion county, to whom the bill was referred in the senate, would hold it up.

But they were offered $5000 additional for improvements and decided that was better than a fair.

Now the state fair board are worrying how to expend that much for improvements. About $5000 was all that was needed.

It would have painted all the buildings, put in drain tile and made sewer connections, and some new buildings.

Why not save about half that money and have a rousing fair in 1906? Why make unnecessary improvements at all?

The fair is a farmer's fair, and let us make it the best fair for the farmer.

The La Grande Observer makes the following pertinent comparison for Oregon's benefit: The people of Oregon, on reading the numerous thrusts made at our state, ostensibly in a humorous vein, by the press from outside the state, because of the dilemma into which one of our United States senators, two representatives in congress and numerous other prominent citizens of the state have been placed by the United States grand jury, feel very much like the Rooster boy, who in hunting coons one night, barefooted, knocked the nail off of his big toe on a beech root.

On being asked by his companions how he felt, pointed to his bleeding toe and said, "It hurts too bad for me to laugh with you and I am too big to cry."

Over the greater part of Iowa livestock shippers pay a 23 cent rate to Chicago, while packers enjoy 15 1/2 to 20 cent rates from the Missouri river. Does this look like a square deal? On dressed beef between Chicago and the seaboard a 45 cent rate is imposed, while livestock pays 30 cents. Experts are of the opinion that 75 cents on dressed beef would be a more equitable rate. Under the circumstances the surprise is that livestock shippers are able to hoe their own row at all.

Secretary Morton awarded the armor plate bid to the trust, giving as a reason for ignoring the Midvale company that it "couldn't supply the plate," although the company says it could. Secretary Morton also opposes government shipyards, the use of which would knock the ship building trust higher than a kite when it comes to building government ships.

By giving President Roosevelt two battleships, the senate will go far toward consoling him for its amendments to the arbitration treaties.

CODY'S MORALS.

The Salt Lake Herald sums up the "Buffalo Bill" case as follows:

From the testimony in the Cody divorce case, now in progress in Cheyenne, we are forced to conclude that Colonel Cody is a drunken beast, too low for words, that he is a gentleman of the highest class, that he made the life of his wife a perfect hell, and that he was a tender and devoted husband, a kind and indulgent father, and a general all-around scamp who loved his wife with all the strength of his being, and cuffed her around whenever the spirit moved him.

Mrs. Cody, we are given to understand, always acted the part of a good and dutiful wife. She tried on several occasions to poison her husband, she always greeted him affectionately, drank a great deal more than was good for her, she was willing at all times to be reconciled to her husband and treated his overtures with scorn and contempt, thus proving that he was the only man in the world for her and that she loathed him intensely.

All these things and more have we gathered from the highly interesting testimony in the divorce proceedings. The evidence is so clear that we do not see how the court can hesitate for a minute. There is an abundance of evidence to support any decision that may be handed down.

FAITH.

The following poem was repeated at one of the Rev. Thomas Needham's meetings in New York city. It was read at one of his Bible lectures in this city a few days ago and was so favorably received that the request has been received to publish it. It was written by Mrs. Mary Clark, of Newberne, N. C.

I've watched my ships go out,
Each one by one unmooring free,
And as they sailed the harbor filled
With flood-tide from the sea.

The first that sailed, her name was Joy;
She spread a smooth, white ample sail
And eastward drove with bending spars
Before the singing gale.

The next that sailed, her name was Hope;
No cargo in her hold she bore,
Thinking to find in western lands
Of merchandise a store.

The next that sailed, her name was Love;
She showed a red flag at her mast,
A flag as red as blood she showed
And toward the South sped fast.

The next that sailed, her name was Faith;
Slowly she took her passage forth,
Tacked and lay to, At last she steered
A straight course for the north.

My gallant ships they sailed away
Over the deep blue summer sea,
I stood and watched for many a day,
But only one came back to me.

For Joy was caught by Pirate Pain;
Hope ran upon a hidden reef;
And Love took fire and foundered fast
In whirling seas of grief.

Faith came at last, storm-tossed and torn,
But recompensed me all my loss,
For as a cargo safe she brought
A Crown linked to a Cross.

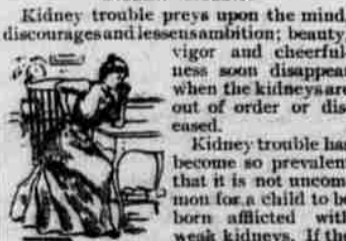

The Woman's Chances.
A man is like a piece of cloth warranted to wash—and matrimony is the laundry. It may improve him, give him starch and freshen him up or it may take all the color out of him.—New York Press.

Those talked of for the republican nomination for governor in Oregon next year are C. A. Johns, of Baker City; L. L. Patterson, of Salem; E. L. Smith, of The Dalles; H. E. Ankeny, of Eugene; W. J. Furnish, of Pendleton.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and saps ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a Home of Swamp-Root pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Horses are valuable just now if you broke. A spoiled horse or an unbroken horse is of no account until he is broke and taught to do what you would have him do. I will take your horse for any purpose for which a horse is intended. Even the wildest can be tamed and controlled, and I can show any man how to keep him so. I have added from $50 to $100 to the value of a horse in 20 days. It is cheaper for you to have your horse broke by one who is prepared to do the work and understands the business than to endanger your life by trying to do it yourself. I buy and sell good horses all the time at the Dutch Henry feed yard.
