TAWDRY GLORIES

SOLOMON'S TEMPLE WHEN COMPARED WITH THE FAIR.

General Description of Vista and Scheme and Architecture—Palaces and Landscape Dreams Have Supplanted a Tangled Wilderness—The Lewis and Clark Is Beautiful and Increasing in Beauty.

Portland, March 25.—It is a far cry from Palestine to Portland, and a long cry from the time of Solomon and Sheba's queen to 1905. What would the queen of Sheba, who marveled at the tawdry glories of Solomon's temple, have said had she seen a modern exposition?

On a recent Sunday 5000 people visited the Lewis and Clark fair grounds and were surprised at the wonders which they found awaiting them there. Where a few years ago had been a hunting ground, a few months a dreary wilderness, they saw stately exposition structures gleaming in their coats of ivory white staff. In place of the tangled underbrush of the virgin forest they found well-cropped lawns, and where bramble bushes had grown in the past, the roses, Oregon's particular flower, blossomed in riotous profusion of color. The 5000 returned to their homes delighted with what they had seen and convinced that the exposition will be in every way a success.

The general scheme embodied in the laying-out of the exposition provides for compactness without crowding. There are no long vistas of monotonous, white exposition structures to weary the eye; no long aisles to weary the limbs. Entering by way of Colonnade entrance, ornate gateway of the western world's fair, one reaches Pacific court, and passing through it, comes upon Columbia court, the central plaza of the exposition. Here sunken gardens filled with a profusion of tropical flowering plants are flanked on either side by wide avenues, while in the center stands the heroic statue in bronze of Sacajawea, the Indian slave woman who guided Lewis and Clark on their expedition a century ago.

To the right of Columbia court is the agricultural palace, the largest building on the grounds, and beyond it, in course of construction, the palace of manufactures, liberal arts and varied industries, which will almost equal it in size. Beyond this building is a group which includes the mines and metallurgy building, the machinery, electricity and transportation building, and Festival hall, the auditorium of the exposition, which has a seating capacity of 3000.

In the western part of the grounds the European exhibits building flanks Columbia court, and beyond it are located the original Oriental exhibits building, the forestry building and a number of state structures. West of the forestry building, in a little ravine, are situated the experimental gardens.

Astoria drive separates the Experimental Gardens from Centennial park and leads to the Trail and the Bridge of Nations, which, aggregately 2000 feet long, connects the mainland with Government peninsula.

On Government peninsula, which projects into Gullid's lake, the natural grand basin of the exposition, Uncle Sam's magnificent display, characteristic of the United States government's participation in world's fairs, is located.

TO OPPOSE PAPER TRUST

Publishers Form a Combination to Make News Paper.

Articles of Incorporation have been filed with the secretary of state for the incorporation of the Publishers' Paper company, of Augusta, Me., with a capital stock of $6,000,000 and the following directors: William A. Hall of New York, president; James A. Burns of New York, treasurer; Frank E. Noyes of Washington, Victor F. Lawson of Chicago, and Oakleigh Thorne of New York.

It is understood that the company will take over at once 300,000 acres of woodland in New Hampshire and Maine and upon the foundations already laid at Portsmouth construct a paper mill with a capacity of 550 tons per day. The company's water power along the Saco river is estimated at 300,000 horse power. This will be developed for the transmission of electrical power for the company's use at Portsmouth. The charter of the new company provides for five directors to serve until the first annual meeting, to be held on the first Wednesday of May, 1905, at which time 15 directors are to be elected.

It is understood that many of the members of the American Newspaper Publishers' association are interested in the new company and that ultimately the corporation will furnish paper for the leading newspapers of the United States. The company is the outgrowth of the fight between the publishers and the paper trust.

Pensioner 105 Years Old. Ackworth, N. H., March 25.—William Welch, a resident of this place, will be 105 years old tomorrow, having been born during the administration of John Adams, the second president of the United States. He holds the record of being the oldest pensioner of the Civil war, and is just a month younger than Hiram Cronk, who holds the same record for the war of 1812. Welch was over 60 years old when he enlisted in Company I, Fourteenth New Hampshire volunteers. At the last session of congress a bill was passed increasing Welch's pension from $12 to $24 a month.

June 15 will be the Daughters of the American Revolution and American flag day at the Lewis and Clark exposition.

EXHIBIT A REPLICA

SUMPTER'S FIRST CABIN AT LEWIS AND CLARK FAIR.

An Exhibit That Would Be of Really Great Interest, Especially Could the Original Be Placed, Accompanied by "Uncle Dave" Littlefield, Voice and Cane—Both Relics of 1861.

"What's the matter with exhibiting a replica of the first house in Sumpter at the Lewis and Clark fair?" suggested a local mining man this morning. "The old cabin across the river, built in the dim dawn of civilization in this part of the world by those two representatives of the left wing of Price's army, who flew west to avoid suffocation from battle smoke and who named their cabin Sumpter, in misspelled honor of opening gun of the Civil war, would make an interesting exhibit at the big Portland exposition. Every amateur kodak fiend that ever hit this camp has photographed the old cabin, and space writers in innumerable western papers have woven all kinds of romance about it. If we could transport the cabin just as it stands—with crushed roof and sagging walls—it would present a somewhat interest-impelling relic of the time when this great western mining camp was in its cradle.

The best scheme of all, however, would be to send 'Uncle Dave' Littlefield down to the fair and exhibit him as a human document. 'Uncle Dave,' you know, was one of the four men who, in October, 1861, first discovered gold in Eastern Oregon, the scene of discovery being at Auburn, 12 miles southeast of Sumpter. He helped to blaze a trail for civilization and likes to tell about it. His voice can be heard 14 blocks away when in private conversation, and if we could only provide him with an easy chair in the mines building, for instance, give him a heavy cane, with which to indulge his yearning to pound on the floor in emphasis of his remarks, and provide a convenient decanter of the good old stuff, I'll wager that Uncle Dave would advertise this camp to the queen's taste."
