BY the consolidation we have on hand two monster stocks of clothing, furnishings, hats and shoes. Either of these magnificent stocks are complete in itself, and neither has a rival in the city in style, quality, workmanship or newness. They are both the cream of the market's swellest and best garments. We are compelled to reduce these stocks without delay and have instituted a consolidation sacrifice sale and propose that it shall be a monument to the union of the stores by giving the most gigantic, startling and bewildering bargains the history of Pendleton has ever witnessed. This sale will be a revolution in value giving; it will surpass in real bargains the most sensational cuts in prices ever advertised.
