WILL ENFORCE RULE

MUST NOT TRAIL SHEEP ACROSS RESERVATION.

This Is the Word Received by Agent McKoin From the Secretary of the Interior in Answer to Letter From Secretary Fulton—A Legal Battle Will Result to Determine the Controversy, if a Test Case Is Made.

Major J. J. McKoin, agent at the reservation, received a message by wire yesterday from the secretary of the interior advising him that the previous orders in regard to the trailing of sheep across the reservation must be rigidly enforced. The message came as an answer to the letter which Senator Fulton wrote the department a short time ago in behalf of the sheepmen of this county.

As a result of the above, sheep will be allowed to cross the reservation this summer only after a legal battle in which the court shall hold that the road across the reservation is a public highway, and that as such may be used by the sheepmen. After the recent conference between the sheepmen and Indians it was said by the former that should Senator Fulton's request be refused, a test case would be made, with the hope that the court would hold the road a public highway.

Major McKoin states that his instructions are strictly to enforce all regulations in regard to trespassing on the reservation, and that such will be done.

BENEFITS IN SIGHT GAMES ARRANGED

OPINIONS RELATING TO THE DEVELOPMENT LEAGUE.

Judge Lowell Says It is Tending to Obliterate Artificial Lines of Division in the State, and That It Will Promote Railroad Building Into the Interior—Also Favors Free Navigation Past Oregon City.

Judge Stephen A. Lowell, who returned this morning from attending the meeting of the State Development league at Portland, reports that the meeting was interesting and successfully conducted, though not quite so well attended as was the one last August.

"The principal benefit of such a meeting," said Judge Lowell to the East Oregonian this morning, "is that it brings the people of the various portions of the state into closer touch, and tends to obliterate the artificial lines of division."

One of the most important things done, as far as Eastern Oregon is concerned at least, was the passage of a resolution advocating the building of railways into the interior. This resolution was presented by Portland people and was warmly supported by those from east of the mountains. Judge Lowell believes that the action of the convention on this subject will be of benefit, inasmuch as it will show the strong sentiment in favor of transportation for the now isolated counties.

"Portland people are interested in the matter because of the danger of lines being extended into Central Oregon from California, and thus the jobbing business of that section be diverted to San Francisco," said Judge Lowell.

A matter of considerable interest to Western Oregon was the action taken in favor of opening the Willamette to free navigation at Oregon City.

Those present at the convention from Pendleton were Judge Lowell and County Judge Bean, R. Alexander and George Hartman, Sr., were also in Portland during that time and attended a portion of these sessions. Others present from this county were W. R. Parker and Sid Saylor of Umatilla.

The matter of a reduced rate out of Portland to the other points in the state was taken up by the convention, and in answer to the request of the meeting, General Passenger Agent Craig announced that but one fare will be charged for the round trip from Portland to any other place in the state during the fair. This action the railroad had refused to take until the matter was taken up by the league, and it was one of the good results of the convention.
