WILL REVIEW MURDER SCENE.
Martin Case Will Be Directly Before Grand Jury.

District Attorney G. W. Phelps will leave for Milton in the morning for the purpose of going over the ground of the Preston murder, and to gather evidence in the case. No information will be filed against Martin by the district attorney, and the case will be given to the grand jury. Owing to the fact that the program for the first week of the coming session is now all made up, the Martin case will not likely be tried until late in the session.

At the time of the killing of Preston the district attorney was at Heppner attending court, and was given no direct notification of the affair, which he states should have been done by the Milton authorities. Also, he was considerably misled by some of the accounts published of the affair, the Tribune report classing the killing as practically justified, and later giving the coroner's verdict as exonerating Martin before the verdict, which was of an entirely different nature, had been given out, as Coroner Henderson preferred to withhold the verdict pending the preliminary examination.

Free Facts About the Fair.
The Lewis and Clark fair association has issued a small booklet giving prices at all the hotels and lodging houses in the city and other information which will be gladly received by visitors. The rates at the Inside Inn, within the exposition grounds, are from $3 per day up to $7 including breakfast. Other houses outside of the grounds offer rooms from 50 cents per day up, according to the accommodations and there is every evidence that there will be no hold-up on the part of the hotels.

Governor Chamberlain on Train.
Governor Chamberlain passed through this morning from Union, where he addressed the public schools on commencement day and visited the state experimental farm. He was en route to Portland, and expressed himself as being delighted with his visit to Union county.

Poor Fruit Prospects.
Karl J. Stackland came over from Cove today. He reports the Cove apple crop practically destroyed, and the same is nearly true of the pears; but the prune crop will be very light, and the cherry crop will run from 10 to 20 per cent, according to location and variety. Peaches, he says, are a total failure, strawberries may make a two-thirds crop, other berries are all right.—La Grande Observer.

Haystack Postoffice Burns.
Dave Barnett was in town today and tells us that W. F. Hammer's residence in which was located the Haystack postoffice, was burned last night. A portion of the household goods and some of the postoffice records were saved. The loss was partly covered by insurance.—Madras Pioneer.

Limiting Weight on Bridge.
The county court has made an order forbidding more than 20 head of horses, cattle or mules, or 200 head of sheep passing over the bridge across the John Day river at this place at one time.—Monument Enterprise.

PLEADS FOR BOYS

MEACHAM MOTHER PROTESTS AGAINST GAMBLING.

Cigar Stores and "Gallon Houses" Ruin Many Young—Hopes the Grand Jury Will Investigate the Situation at Meacham—Pleads for Protections for the Country Boy as Well as the Boy in the City.

Meacham, Ore., May 22.—(To the East Oregonian)—Since you have closed gambling in Pendleton and drove out the objectionable characters I understand one of the leading tinhorns of that city is coming to Meacham to start a cigar and tobacco store, with an innocent "club" room in the rear.

If there is any way in the world to head off the gambling features of this innocent cigar and tobacco store, I would like to know it, as just such dives as these ruin more boys and young men than any other form of gambling.

Last year a "gallon house" was run here, and whiskey was sold by the pint, quart, gallon, drink and in every other quantity, and games were conducted in connection, it is said, and when that joint closed, I was in hopes that we would be rid of such places here.

There are perhaps 20 young men here who will be patrons of the cigar store and who will be tempted by the card games that will accompany the place, and I hope the coming grand jury finds that this place is a fit subject for examination.

The same kind of a "gallon house" was also started at Kamela, by a Pendleton gambler, and he expected that the helper engineers and firemen stationed there would break their necks to buy his booze, but they had better sense and he soon closed up there for lack of business, his only patrons being a few wood haulers who had no corporation rules to train them to better habits.

Kamela had more sense than the tinhorns thought it had, and his investment was unprofitable. I hope that some way may be found to guard our country towns and villages against these vampires, just as the cities are guarded. Mothers here are just as much concerned about their sons as in Pendleton or elsewhere.

Respectfully,
A MEACHAM MOTHER.

Portland Schools to Close.

Portland's public schools, will close June 14, or one week earlier than originally scheduled. The board of school directors have had such action under consideration for some time, and at the meeting last night decided that as the schools would be badly disorganized on account of the exposition it would be advisable to close them on June 14.
