WOODMEN LOSE INSURANCE.

Foreman of Jury Which Returned $2246.13, Was a Woodman.

Moscow, June 1.—Yesterday in the district court, the case of W. R. Trull vs. the Modern Woodmen of America, came up for trial and the jury brought in a verdict this morning in favor of the plaintiff to the amount of $2246.13.

This was a case where John B. Trull, a son of the plaintiff, took out an insurance of $2000 with the defendant association, the policy being drawn in favor of the father. In the year 1902 the son died and after his death the company refused to pay the insurance on the ground that he had died of smallpox, and that the disease was excepted in the policy. The plaintiff contended that it was not smallpox that caused his death, but poison oak, and brought Dr. Taylor from Nez Perce, who had waited upon him, to prove that fact. The defense also offered expert testimony to prove the contrary.

The attorneys for the plaintiff left on the jury a Woodman and he was made foreman. In bringing in the verdict for the plaintiff, he responded that it was his verdict.

The decision here meets with the entire approval of the Woodmen. They have throughout the trial of the case emphatically expressed it as their hope that the lodge be made to pay this insurance.

Saved by Dynamite.

Sometimes a flaming city is saved by dynamiting a space that the fire can't cross. Sometimes a cough hangs on so long you feel as if nothing but dynamite would cure it. Z. T. Gray, of Calhoun, Ga., writes: "My wife had a very aggravated cough, which kept her awake nights. Two physicians could not help her; so she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which eased her cough, gave her sleep, and finally cured her." Strictly scientific cure for bronchitis and la grippe. At Tallman & Co.'s drug store, price 50c and $1.00; guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

Monument to First Settlers.

New Castle, Del., June 1.—A handsome monument erected by the Colonial Dames of this state to mark the place where the Dutch first landed in Delaware, was unveiled today with suitable exercises. Prominent among those who took part in the exercises were Mrs. Herbert A. Claiborne, of Richmond, Va., head of the Colonial Dames of America; James W. Beckman, of New York, head of the Society of Colonial Wars, and Robert Stuyvesant, of New York, president of the Holland Society of America.

A Creeping Death.

Blood poison creeps up towards the heart, causing death. J. E. Stearns, Belle Plaine, Minn., writes that a friend dreadfully injured his hand, which swelled up like blood poisoning. Bucklin's Arnica Salve drew out the poison, healed the wound and saved his life. Best in the world for burns and sores. 25c at Tallman & Co.'s drug store.

8000 Men Get More Pay.

Pittsburg, June 1.—Eight thousand workmen, consisting of pattern makers, machinists, blacksmiths, molders and others connected with the machinery and foundry trades of the Pittsburg district, are benefited by the general advance of 10 per cent in wages put in effect today by the Manufacturers Association of Pittsburg. The increase was made voluntary to the workmen, whose wages were reduced last July on account of a falling off in business.

PORTLAND FAIR OPENED TODAY

speaker of the house of representatives of the United States.
Music.

Address by Charles Warren Fairbanks, vice-president of the United States, and personal representative of the president.

Presidential salute of 21 guns.
Notification by wire to president of the United States of the exposition management's readiness to receive signal to open the exposition.

President Roosevelt touches golden key at White House in Washington, transmitting electrical energy which rings chimes in the United States government building and starts machinery of the exposition.

President Goode then declares the Lewis and Clark centennial exposition formally opened to the world.

"The Star Spangled Banner," by the massed bands with artillery accompaniments and cathedral chimes.
Divine benediction by the Most Rev. Alexander Christie, D. D., archbishop of Oregon.

The national anthem, Innes' band. Centennial salute of 100 guns.

President Goode's Address.

President Goode, of the Lewis and Clark exposition, spoke in part as follows, on opening the fair to the world: Ladies and gentlemen: The states of the Pacific border today give hearty welcome to the world to share with them in the felicitations upon the triumphal achievements on these shores by aggressive American civilization and the signal victories of peaceful conquest.

The people of the Pacific northwest desire to give Lewis and Clark their venerated place in history as surely as they do honor to the man who urged the exploration of what he called "this respectable breadth of country lying westward of the Mississippi river," and it may be that in history President Jefferson's reputation will stand higher for the quiet, determined persistence with which he brought about the Lewis and Clark exploration of the country west of the Rocky mountains than for the acquisition of the territory of Louisiana.

In all enterprises of great moment contributing benefits to the many at the cost of the few, it is gratifying to feel that the law of compensation discloses always a more worthy and moving cause than mere material gain. When we dwell upon the journey through the continental wildernesses and deserts, and think of the explorers pressing onward ever in the very teeth of obstacles that would have turned back many men actuated by the highest resolution, "fiction lags after truth, invention is unfruitful, and imagination cold and barren."

With the opening of the exposition today are consummated the efforts that have been put forth within the brief space of two years to commemorate a century of progress since the explorers commissioned by President Jefferson showed the way to this land. Our centennial celebration constitutes the supreme effort of the people of the Pacific northwest, and more particularly the Oregon country, fittingly to recognize the services performed by Lewis and Clark.

We celebrate today in connection with our sister states of the west the acquisition of the Oregon country to the Union. As the acquisition of this country was the greatest expansion of our national domain and the only section secured to use by right of discovery, so too this centennial is the greatest undertaking of the people. In keeping with the confident prophecy of her great splendid future, the people of the Pacific west have united to prepare a fitting climax for her rapid evolution from pioneerdom.

Fairbanks' Address.

Following is a portion of Vice-President Fairbanks' remarks: Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen: President Roosevelt has taken a very great interest in the Lewis and Clark exposition from its inception, and it is at his request, and on his behalf, I have the great honor of participating with you in these opening ceremonies.

We commemorate an important event in American history. We pay tribute to the intrepid explorers who made their arduous expedition up the Missouri, across the Rocky mountains, down to the Pacific, and pointed the way to this land of incomparable opportunity.

Their fame is secure where the deeds of the men of heroic mold are forever recorded. They were the forerunners of a high order of civilization in a territory which, prior to their venturesome enterprise, was terra incognita.

It was a wilderness, inhabited by the aborigines, into which no white man had entered; it had become the seat of empire—of vast commercial power. We look upon their work with genuine admiration and grateful appreciation.

The expedition which we celebrate was in command of Captain Meriwether Lewis, who had been the private secretary of President Jefferson and of Captain William Clark, a brother of George Rogers Clark, who rendered such signal and lasting service on the frontier during the American revolution.

The small band who composed the expedition possessed the qualities essential to a successful issue. They were young and full of enthusiasm. They had great powers of endurance. They had tact, and they possessed moral and physical courage of a high order.

They went about their difficult and important work in a manner to insure the best results. They not only went to explore an unknown region, but to make such report of their discoveries as would be of the utmost practical value to the world. Their work was no misadventure and no failure.
