ARRANGING DETAILS

WOMEN OF WOODCRAFT
AFFAIRS IN PORTLAND.

Will Advertise at Once for Bids for the Erection of a Three-story Steel and Stone Building to Cost Between $45,000 and $50,000—Board of Managers Has Appointed a Building Committee—Consolidation of Leadville and Pendleton Headquarters Will Be Made by October 1.

A. D. Stillman, legal adviser for the Women of Woodcraft, returned home this morning from Portland, where he has been with the other head officers of the order on business connected with the establishment of the headquarters there. The following account of the work done was given by Mr. Stillman this morning:

"The order has bought a quarter of a block on Tenth and Taylor streets owned by the Pacific University, paying for the property $20,000. The deal was completed Tuesday afternoon and bids will be advertised for at once for the construction of the building, which has to be ready for the occupancy of Grand Clerk J. L. Wright and his office force by October 1.

"The building to be constructed will be three stories in height and of steel and stone. It will cost between $45,000 and $50,000. The basement will be used for a storage room in which to put the records and supplies of the order, while fire-proof storage vaults will be constructed on both the first and second floors. These floors will be used as the office rooms of Grand Clerk Wright, who has 15 clerks and stenographers, and by Mrs. Carrie Van Orsdall, grand guardian of the order, who has five clerks. The third floor will be fitted up as an auditorium in which will be held the meetings and conventions of the Women of Woodcraft.

"The board of managers of the order has appointed a building committee consisting of Grand Clerk Wright, Grand Guardian Van Orsdall and Grand Managers Hawkins and Hurley. The committee will have charge of the construction of the building, and will pass upon it and accept it when finished.

"According to the directions of the national convention at Los Angeles, the change of headquarters from Leadville, Col., and Pendleton will have to be made by October 1, and it is expected that the building here will be finished by that time.

"Those who were in Portland yesterday to investigate the title of the new property and witness the transfer from the old owners to the new, were Mrs. Carrie Van Orsdall, grand

INDIAN SCHOOL CLOSES IN JULY

MAJOR M'KOIN DECIDES TO HOLD TERM LATE.

Believes Better for Indian Children to Be in School Than Attending Indian Feasts and Festivities—Indians Complain Somewhat at the New Arrangement—Cash Cash in Favor of Major McKoin's Plan—Past School Year Has Been Very Successful.

The Umatilla Indian agency school will not be closed this season until some time in July, according to the decision of Major McKoin, agent and superintendent.

The custom has been to hold commencement or closing exercises about the first of June as with other schools, but this will not be done this year. Major McKoin believes that it will benefit the Indian children more to remain in school during the month of June and part of July than it will for them to be roaming over the hills attending feasts and celebrations, and it will be his object to discourage the younger Indians from joining in these tribal festivities.

The Indians are dissatisfied with the new arrangement and many of them are complaining about the delay in closing school. Cash Cash, the well known Umatilla, who has two children in school, is in favor of having school continue until Major McKoin sees fit to close it, but others of the tribe desire an early closing.

A well known Indian who is opposed to having the school remain in session during June, says the reason he wants his children to quit school is that he has almost three acres of hay to cut and needs his children to help him stack it. He also says the reason Cash Cash wishes the school to keep is that he has but a half acre of hay to harvest and can attend to this task without the aid of his family. Others who wish their children to be at liberty during June say they have several wild ponies to break during the summer, and desire the aid of their big girls and boys in this work.

However, the school will remain in session until some time in July and most of the children are in regular attendance every day. The schools have been very successful during the past year and rapid progress has been made by all the pupils. Exercises for closing day will be arranged by the teachers, assisted by the superintendent.

ESCAPED FROM COURT HOUSE.

Darling Girl Made Her Getaway With a Blanket Rope.

An unusual episode occurred last night at the county court house. It was an escape—not from the county jail, but from the jury room, instead.

The prisoner was a young woman named Darling, and she was being held for an official of the Boys' and Girls' Aid society of Portland. For safe keeping over night she was placed in the jury room adjoining the circuit court room, and the door was locked. This morning when the officers looked for their captive she was gone, and a rope made of two blankets and hanging from a window, showed the manner of escape.

The young lady is now being sought by the officials and if caught will be remanded to the society in Portland. She is a parole from that institution, and for a time past has been working in a private family here. However, of late her conduct has been such that it was considered necessary for her to be sent back. However, the young lady (who is said to be 17 years of age and being large locks older,) evidently has no great desire to return to Portland even if the fair is now opened.

PORTLAND SNUBS THE STATE.

Very "Small" Tactics Which May Hurt Exposition Business.

According to several Pendleton people who returned this morning from Portland, the streets of that city presented no unusual appearance yesterday. While they state that quite a number of prominent people from over the state are there for the opening there was nothing in the shape of a mob there last evening, not being as many as usually attend the state political conventions.

The escort for the vice president made a good appearance, with the cavalry troops in the lead, but it is said that but little excitement was caused by the event, and few turned out to see the procession. Also, those who have just been through the grounds say that the work is not completed by any means, and that some of the streets through the grounds are not yet in shape. Of the county exhibits Coos is said to have a splendid one, and is said to represent about $16,000.

In the ceremonies attending the reception and escort of the vice president there is said to have been a noticeable absence of prominent men and officials of the state outside of Portland. Vice President Fairbanks was met and escorted through the city by Director Goods of the fair association. Neither Governor Chamberlain, President Myers of the state commission, or any other members of the commission aside from those in Portland were there. Senator Fulton, who rode in the last carriage, is said to have been almost the only prominent representative from outside of Portland.

Considerable criticism is being expressed over the apparent desire of the Portland crowd to leave the rest of the state out of the proceedings, and unless the policy is soon changed it is feared the quarrel will have a bad effect on the success of the exposition. From all accounts the state commission has little say in the arrangements, although the state really financed the project by giving $500,000 at the start. In view of this, the opinion is being expressed that Governor Chamberlain as the executive of the state, should have been shown some consideration.

COMMENCEMENT AT THE ACADEMY.

president; Miss Myrtle Hawks, secretary; Roy Penland, treasurer.

Banquet at Assembly Hall.
The members, together with the trustees, faculty and guests of honor, then repaired to the assembly hall of the academy, which was tastefully decorated and where an excellent banquet was prepared for 40 people by the ladies of the Presbyterian church, the retiring president acting as toastmaster.

The keynote of the evening was sounded in the introductory remarks of the toastmaster who took as his theme, "Lest we forget," and spoke in part: "Remember now thy Alma Mater in the days of thy youth when the evil days come not. For whether the wheel be broken at the distern, or the ploughshare bright or rusted in its furrow, or the field with waving grain or troublesome tares abound; whether the cup with sweet or bitter run, the leaves of life are falling, one by one, the wine of life is oozing drop by drop and so ere the evil days draw nigh, when life becomes a burden, let us lighten its mighty weight to live for a little hour or two in the pleasures of the past."

"To here our common path has led us, but hence—like as the wind scatters its burdens with a frolicsome fancy, so has duty written for us a similar fate. As the years go by how good it is to be called from labor to refreshments! While here, like as the snow lighting on the desert's dusty face a little hour or two and is gone, so for the time be our cares and sorrows as together we feast and toast the success of our old academy. How fitting this feast, lest we forget."

Those who responded to toasts were Prof. Bleakney, Miss Ada Brown, Miss Jennie Perry, Rev. Egerton, Miss Mabel McMill, Miss Myrtle Hawks, Miss Vera Marston, Mrs. Bleakney, Miss Maude Crawford, Elmer Yates, and Rev. Hall.
