BEEF TRUST'S FATE

DECISION MAY BE RENDERED BY JUNE 10.

Fate of the Trust Is Now in Hands of Three Men, Attorney General Moody, Assistant Oliver W. Pagin an Expert, and District Attorney Charles B. Morrison, of Chicago—Report Consists of 2000 Typewritten Pages.

The fate of the beef trust at the hands of Uncle Sam will be decided by three men in Washington this week, subject to the president's approval.

Whether the millionaire meat packers will be indicted and prosecuted as criminals by the government, and who shall be held and who exculpated, will be settled at a conference between Attorney General William H. Moody, Assistant Attorney General Oliver W. Pagin, the indictment expert, and District Attorney Charles B. Morrison, the Chicago prosecutor.

The federal grand jury's long investigation is considered completed, the vast mass of evidence is classified and reviewed, the recommendations to the grand jury by the government legal authorities are now to be decided upon.

Messrs. Pagin and Morrison are now in Washington for the final conference with Attorney General Moody with an abstract of 2000 typewritten pages of testimony and an opinion regarding what evidence would be available for use in a trial of the packers for crime in court.

This will be the first conclusive report on the beef trust inquiry made to Washington, previous representations having been confined to the progress of the investigation. The Government attorneys here have been busy ever since the recess of the grand jury a week ago reviewing and classifying the mass of evidence and making a concrete abstract of results.

Attorney General Moody and Assistant Attorney General Pagin conferred in Washington three weeks ago, but the situation in Chicago was then reported to be so inconclusive as to leave the question of indictments in doubt and not in shape to be considered finally.

President Roosevelt is expected to say the final word on the indictment or exculpation of the Chicago packers in the beef trust after Attorney General Moody has heard from Messrs. Pagin and Morrison a full report of the inquiry. One of the government attorneys said recently:

"The grand jury, of course, must vote indictments, but it is the duty of the prosecutor to advise them on the law and the evidence. The prosecutor must tell them when he is satisfied the evidence will convict in court, and he must advise them when the evidence probably will not convict.

"The evidence in the beef trust investigation is now practically complete, and, although a few witnesses may be called, the chief work of the grand jury now is to consider the abstract of the evidence and vote indictments or no indictments. The testimony fills nearly 2000 pages and an abstract of this is nearly completed, for neither the attorney general nor the grand jury could be expected to read all of that."

A verdict in the case may be expected in a few days.

EXPORTS FROM PORTLAND.

Month of May Produced the Sum of $537,839.

May exports from Portland amounted to $537,839, as follows: 94,411 barrels of flour, worth $358,173; 5,347,015 feet of lumber, worth $55,298; 22,844 bushels of wheat, worth $19,400; machinery, tobacco, etc., worth $104,968, says the Oregon Daily Journal.

Wheat was sent foreign from Portland in May for the first time since February, but the shipment was only 22,844 bushels, sent to Japan on the British steamship Ferndene. From now on until late in the summer it is probable no wheat will be exported unless in small consignments to the Orient. But during the month big quantities of the cereal have been shipped to coast ports—principally to San Francisco and San Pedro.

Because of the fear of seizure by Russian or Japanese warships the value of the exports for the month amounted to less than for any other 30 days during the year. Only two steamers cleared for the far east, carrying valuable cargoes; had the Russian war fleet not been near Japan at least two or three other cargoes would have been sent over.

The following figures show the value of the exports for the past five months: January, $719,204; February, $654,409; March, $1,142,585; April, $637,113; May, $537,839.

Three lumber cargoes went foreign in addition to a small shipment on the Nicomedia. One of these is on board the British bark Dumfreisshire, which left yesterday for Melbourne with the largest cargo ever taken out of here by a sailing vessel; the shipment measures 2,336,343 feet. The total exports of lumber for the month amount to 5,347,015 feet, less by 1,000,000 feet than in April. The lumber sent down the coast in May totals 9,971,169 feet, an average showing for the year. The exports in detail are:

May 10, the British ship Lonsdale cleared for Taltal with 1,439,427 feet of lumber, valued at $14,833.

May 12, the American barkentine Amazon cleared for Manila with 1,434,814 feet of lumber, valued at $14,525.

May 19, the British steamship Ferndene cleared for Kobe and way ports with 22,844 bushels of wheat, valued at $19,400, and 54,268 barrels of flour, valued at $197,603, making a total of $217,003.

May 19, the German steamship Nicomedia cleared for Hong Kong and way ports with 49,143 barrels of flour, valued at $196,570; 336,431 feet of lumber, worth $2650, and enough general freight to make the cargo worth $268,188.

May 29 the British bark Dumfriesshire cleared for Melbourne with 2,336,434 feet of lumber, valued at $23,290.

WAGERS ON THE WAR.

One Moscow Merchant Agreed to "Eat His Boots" if Japan Wins.

Some extraordinary bets have been made on the Japanese-Russian war. A number of Japanese officers have bet that they would be killed in battle, says the Chicago Record-Herald. The money was to go to their widows. One officer, on starting for the front, made the following wager: If he were killed within a month his heirs were to receive $500. After that date he was to pay his opponent 10 yen ($5) a day until he had survived 100 days, after which the bet was to cease. He undertook to expose himself to danger only when military conditions demanded it; in other words, he was not wilfully to let himself be killed.

In a moment of excitement Lomakin, a Moscow merchant, undertook to "eat his boots" if Japan were not forced to sue for peace by July 1 last. Against this his opponent bet 500 roubles. Lomakin ate the boots. But as no time limit was imposed, he cut off and swallowed only a tiny strip each day, completing the achievement on November 20. His opponent absolved him from eating the nails.

A captive Japanese officer imprisoned at Omsk, in Siberia, bet the Russian officer in charge of the prison a kopeck for every minute that Port Arthur held out after June 1. He owed the jailor on October 1 nearly $1000. The Russian asked for a payment on account and offered to terminate the bet. The Japanese said nothing, retired to his room and shot himself dead with a revolver.

Huge Task.

It was a huge task to undertake the cure of such a bad case of kidney disease, as that of C. F. Collier, of Cherokee, Ia., but Electric Bitters did it. He writes: "My kidneys were so far gone I could not sit on a chair without a cushion; and suffered from dreadful backache, headache and depression. In Electric Bitters, however, I found a cure, and by them was restored to perfect health. I recommend this great tonic medicine to all with weak kidneys, liver or stomach. Guaranteed by Tallman & Co., druggists; price 50c.
