To be what thou wouldst truly
be,
Be bravely, truly what thou art!
The acorn houses the huge tree
And patient, silent bears its part;
And bides the miracle of time.
For miracle and more sublime It is than all that has been writ,
To see the great oak grow from it!
But thus the soul grows,— grows the heart,—
To be what thou wouldst truly
be,
Be truly what thou art!
—Joaquin Miller.

PENDLETON A RENDEZVOUS.

Gamblers cannot remain in Baker City, La Grande, Walla Walla, Spokane or any other city or town in the Northwest, so they come back to Pendleton to rendezvous.

If you will stop to think why they cannot remain in those other towns it will be easy to understand why they do remain here.

In the towns just mentioned the officials are strictly enforcing the laws, so the gamblers have no business there. Then if they return to Pendleton what is the logical conclusion?
Why, that the gamblers are not afraid of prosecution and feel that they are safe until another grand jury meets.
And the grand jury, by the way, does not frighten them to any degree.

It is not a favorable advertisement to Pendleton to have it said to strangers that a class of people that cannot live in other Northwest towns flock here by the dozens and are not disturbed.

What will intending homeseekers ask on ascertaining the fact?

Why, of course, they will ask if the same does not apply here that applies in Baker City? And if so, why it is not enforced here as in Baker City.
This is the whole truth. The law should be enforced until it is repealed.

ROOSEVELT'S MISTAKE.

After this whitewashing of Paul Morton President Roosevelt will find it hard to regain his old reputation for right thinking and fearless action.
A Quay, a Platt or a Murphy in his place could not have shown grosser discrimination in favor of a personal friend.

Here is a prominent railroad official who has frequently confessed to violating the interstate commerce laws.
He is promoted to the cabinet. Further evidence of his guilt is discovered. But he is a close personal friend of Mr. Roosevelt, and Mr. Roosevelt forbids his prosecution.

Better lawyers than Mr. Roosevelt find ample grounds for action against Mr. Morton and other Santa Fe officials. Their motives are known to be disinterested and above suspicion.
But Mr. Roosevelt, with executive, not with judiciary powers, declares his friend Mr. Morton innocent and prevents the courts from hearing his case. The coddling of Loomis was an unfortunate mistake, but the protection of Paul Morton takes on some of the aspects of a national scandal.

In every railroad headquarters in the country there will be rejoicing.
To save Paul Morton from the necessity of defending himself Mr. Roosevelt has practically issued a general amnesty to all railroad lawbreakers.
Personal guilt is abolished. Only corporations can sin, and for them the penalty is a trifling fine. In order that Paul Morton may go scot-free Mr. Roosevelt makes a dead letter of the statute.

President Roosevelt has deliberatly and with set purpose committed one of the gravest blunders of his administration.

STABILITY OF THE SOUTH.

In an address before the University of Louisiana the other day a distinguished member of congress from Massachusetts, Mr. McCall, made the following complimentary allusion to southern statesmanship:

"To my mind," he declared, "the striking thing in the history of the South has been her fidelity to that high kind of liberty which would protect the individual from the encroachment of the government.

"The South has usually stood for the idea that the best government is that which governs least. Your government must maintain order, provide for the common defense and administer justice and perform those simple and long-recognized functions which it belongs to the government to perform.

"But when it attempts to regulate everything by arbitrary statutory rules, when it attempts to put fetters upon the stag so that it may not outrun the tortoise, and aims to establish a millennium by statute government, it becomes not a beneficent institution, but a means of repression, destructive of individual growth and antagonistic to the general progress of the race.

"The distrust of the central government that pervaded the South at a critical time in our history was due primarily to the fear that the more the great governmental functions were taken from those immediate agencies of government set up among the people and under their eyes transferred to the distant and central government, the greater danger there was of the development of a despotism.

"This idea was never more vital than today, and by remaining faithful to it the South will render an inexhaustible service to the country, and, indeed, will safeguard what is most valuable in American liberty."

This was the theory of Mr. Jefferson and of that brilliant galaxy of southern statesmen who sought to maintain this government as one of "equal rights to all and special privileges to none." The present trend of national politics has emboldened Mr.
McCall to speak out in meeting.
Southern heaven is working.

RAISE THE LICENSES.

The only way in which Umatilla county can avoid a certain deluge of prohibition is to cut out the dives, make the liquor traffic respectable, and enforce the laws on Sunday closing, saloon boxes and selling whiskey to minors, and the only way to accomplish these wholesome things is to raise the saloon licenses and thus drive the dives and joints out of business.

Twelve decent saloons in Pendleton taxed $1000 or $1200 per year would supply all the legitimate demand for whiskey in the city, and would furnish just as much revenue as is now obtained from 30, many of which are absolutely a disgrace to the business.

Nearly half of the present proprietors of Pendleton saloons are highly respectable men outside of the business, and would willingly obey the law but for the contemptible dive-keepers who have no respect for laws, the rights of others, decency, manhood or anything else.

If this is not done, the people will vote prohibition next time as certain as the sun is to shine. They are heartily tired of the domination of the dive.

THE SOLDIERS OF TOIL.

A cheer for the captains of industry!
Though little they need our applause;
For they sit in state and dignity To fashion the country's laws;
To the north they fly from summer's sun,

To the south from winter's frost; They beckon, and lo, their behest is done,

Not counting toil or cost; They've palaces on the avenue;
By the sea their villas stand;
Their Adirondack camps o'erview Wide parks of forest land; Softly and swift their carriages roll; They've motors and yachts galore; Save only, perchance, a contested soul,

They've nothing to wish for more!
But the private soldiers of industry—
'Tis these I would hail in song, Whose stalwart arms unceasingly Push the great world along; Wherever a spade turns the soil,
Or a rivet is driven home—Wherever is fought the fight of toil Beneath the heaven's blue dome!

Unknown his name, obscure his post, And scant his reward may be,
But for every soldier in labor's host Three cheers—aye, three times three!
—R. H. Titherington, in Tom Watson's Magazine.

PERMANENT WORLD'S FAIR.

It is estimated that the world's fair has cost $50,000,000. Six months hence there will be nothing to show for that outlay except a modest art gallery and a devastated park. It is hardly surprising that many people are asking whether it would not be possible to lay out the money to better advantage, says the Saturday Evening Post.

The great white marble Public library of New York is to cost less than $3,000,000. Sixteen such buildings could be put up for $50,000,000. Suppose a city desirous of spending that amount of money on a World's fair should pay $5,000,000 for a site and for landscape effects and beautify it, and then should group in the most imposing way a dozen marble palaces, each equal to the New York public library, at a cost of $35,000,000 more, leaving $10,000,000 for installing and maintaining exhibits; would not that city have a possession that would attract the admiration of the world?

Such an exhibition would be small compared with the wilderness of stuff at Chicago and St. Louis, but would it not be large enough? Who ever sees everything at a World's fair? The marble exposition would be permanent, and it could be made more perfect from year to year. Everything could be excluded but the very cream of the world's achievement.
All the vulgar advertising features, the miles of canned goods, the flau-ting Pikes and Midways, the slot machines, popcorn and frankfurters could be eliminated. There would be a vision of pure beauty and the sublimation of instruction.

No city on earth would have a spectacle to match such a university of human progress.

The next time it is proposed to spend $50,000,000 on a summer's riot of glass and plaster, to fade away like a dream, would it not be worth while to consider the possibility of putting the money into a form that would be a permanent enrichment of the community and of the world?

LAST WOOL SHIPPED.

Frank Johnson, the Boston wool buyer, has returned to the city and today will begin loading the W. G.
Ayre wool at the depot. This shipment will contain about 200,000 pounds. Mr. Ayre received a few weeks ago 18 cents a pound in advance for his clip, being almost the highest price paid in Baker county for so large a quantity, says the Baker City Democrat.

Mr. Johnson says that he estimates that the output of wool through Baker county this season including the home raise and that shipped here from neighboring counties will aggregate 2,500,000 pounds. Had the growers waited until the present time to sell their clips they could have received 21 cents instead of 15, 16, 17 1/2 and 18 cents.

SAFELY THROUGH
MOTHERHOOD
WITHOUT PAIN.

What a wonderful message of hope and escape from suffering these words carry to that woman who is dreading the hour that shall proclaim her Motherhood. Perhaps for her it is the first time God has blessed her; with what awe and mystery and fear she contemplates the coming event which even now is casting its shadow before in the way of many painful discomforts! The hope held out in these words simply means that childbirth has been turned into an event of thanksgiving and joy, stripped of its agonies and dangers because of the learned skill of man.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

is the name of the remedy which means so much to the expectant mother; she can apply it herself and feel an improvement at once, which but forestalls the pain and suffering which it saves when childbirth takes place.
The testimony of Mothers who have used it successfully will convince you; their words of praise are found in our book, "Motherhood." Send for it.

OSTEOPATHY.

There is a tendency among the "great" doctors to scoff at whatever the people understand. Likewise if an explanation is asked of them, it is given in scientific and abstruse terms, with the double purpose of keeping the inquirer in ignorance and of impressing with the great learning of the doctor.

This is unjustifiable. The average person knows the elements of anatomy and physiology and is competent to grasp the explanation of the body's workings in health and disease, and of why the remedy is expected to cure. But give it in common terms.
Now, why does the doctor mystify?
We quote a leading citizen for the answer: "They don't know themselves. They fail to lay a first cause of disease; fail to maintain connection of the physiology of the body with disease, and doctor symptoms and effects."

Now, this explanation and first cause of disease is exactly what the Osteopaths are giving, basing it upon accepted truths of anatomy and physiology and point out in each individual the cause of disease.
