FOR AN OPEN DITCH

OREGON IRRIGATORS STAND FOR FAVORITE PLAN.

Will Attempt to Secure a Recommendation for an Open Canal System of Winter Irrigation for Eastern Oregon—Officers Elected for the Oregon Delegation Were E. L. Smith, President, and F. F. Stanley, Secretary.

The Oregon delegation to the National Irrigation congress met yesterday afternoon at the Oregon building on the exposition grounds and elected E. L. Smith of Hood River, chairman, and F. F. Stanley, secretary. Selections in accordance with the requirements of the national congress were made as follows:

Vice-president for Oregon, Col. R. C. Judson of Portland; member of the executive committee for Oregon, Fred S. Stanley of Portland; member of the resolutions committee, W. R. King of Ontario; member of the nominations committee, O. A. Stearns of Klamath Falls.

Several members of the delegation stated that they expected to emphasize the importance of the open ditch in the reclamation of arid lands, especially in Eastern Oregon, and that it was probable that before the congress ends the subject would be brought forward for discussion by the delegates.

The federal government never has recognized the open ditch as a part of the general reclamation scheme; only reservoir projects have been endorsed by the government engineers.

"It is not a theory that we are advocating," said H. C. Willis of Echo, to the Oregon Daily Journal. "We have the tangible evidence of the value of the open ditch to show to any one who will come to Echo, Maxwell, Umatilla or Irrigon. The last named town is just outside of Umatilla county, but uses water from the Umatilla river.

"The Maxwell Land & Irrigation company, of which J. F. McNaught is manager, has 4000 acres under the open ditch and will have 4000 more covered by spring. The Butter Creek Irrigation company has 10,000 reclaimed. The Cold Spring Irrigation company has let contracts for ditches to cover 10,000 acres, work to be completed by January 1. The W. J. Farnish company has let contracts for canals to cover 20,000 acres and work is now in progress. At Irrigon, 2000 acres are actually under cultivation and 50,000 acres will be before long. A Tacoma colony is negotiating with the Butter Creek company for an extension of its ditch with a view to bringing 10,000 acres more under water.

"On Butter creek for 40 years O. F. Thomson has been raising alfalfa by the open ditch irrigation, and along that creek are scores of farms on which the same has been done.

"With the open ditch as the basis of its prosperity the Echo country has this year produced 7000 head of beef cattle, worth $250,000; 10,000 stock cattle, worth $200,000; 40,000 sheep, worth $72,000; 2000 horses, worth $60,000; wool worth $65,000; 50,000 tons of alfalfa hay, worth $350,000; wheat worth $260,000; fruit worth $30,000; 1000 tons of sugar beets, worth $4000, and dairy products worth $25,000.

"There is no antagonism between the open ditch and the reservoir plans of the government. The open ditch merely does immediately what the reservoir scheme will do in time—reclaim the arid land. Later the reservoir may be added, if it is desired, and the engineers decide it to be feasible for that region."

SAVED HIS COUNTY $5000.

King County Sheriff Forced Northern Pacific to Pay for Deputies.

Sheriff Lou Smith has been doing a little frenzied financiering—but of a most commendable sort, says the Seattle Star.

In the past 19 days Sheriff Smith has saved King county just about $5,000. Better still, the $5000 was paid by a corporation.

It was all very simple. When the Northern Pacific had an internal rumple and found itself with a string of striking operators reaching from St. Paul to the Pacific on its hands it appealed to Sheriff Smith for deputies to protect its road in King county. The octopus thought it would require about 40 deputies to keep things orderly and nice.

Lou Smith sat down and figured it all out. He could not see that anybody's property other than that of the Northern Pacific was endangered, and the peril, if any there was, came from the internal mechanism of the octopus itself.

So the sheriff couldn't see just why King county should send out 40 special deputies at its own expense. He therefore told the octopus that if it wanted any deputies to protect it from itself it could furnish salaries and transportation for every man sent out. This, he said, was final.

The result was that each of the 40 deputies sent out was put on the Northern Pacific payroll, and each was furnished with transportation as an employee of the road. The men were sent out August 2, and reported on Monday morning. To each was due 19 days' pay at $4.50 per day, the entire force costing the octopus $3420 for salaries. Transportation and incidentals, which would have cost King county upward of $1,000, brings the figure saved to King county up to about $5000.

BROOM CORN $80 PER TON.

Strong Demand for New Crop in Willamette Valley.

A new product for the farmers of Oregon is being developed in a way and there seems reason to believe it will in the future prove a valuable product. Since the Salem broom factory has been operated here in Salem there has opened up a pretty good demand for broom corn and now there is an offer of $80 per ton for it, says the Salem Statesman.

At Derby & Wilson's there is being shown a few samples of what can be done in the way of raising broom corn, and it would seem that the prospects are good for those who would enter this new agricultural field. A. W. Froegel, who lives on Kalsey bottom, has a half acre of it, and it is doing remarkably well.

The broom corn of the east is largely a failure this year on account of the dry hot winds and there will be a heavy demand for this material. Again the acreage in the east is reported very slight this year, fully half less than last year.
