VERDICT FOUND AFTER 18 HOURS.

These the first to change was Mr. Cargill, both of the others going over at the same time.

Yesterday Afternoon. The following is an account of the proceedings yesterday afternoon, which occurred too late for publication last evening:

Colonel Raley's Address. "May it please your honor, and gentlemen of the jury:

"For almost two weeks we have attempted to wade through this pile of books and this mass of evidence in order to sum up the case that you may arrive at a just verdict and a just conclusion as to whether or not there is a shortage in the sheriff's office."

"I want to say to you that there is no shortage in the sheriff's office, and I believe before I am through that you will come to the same conclusion."

Two Defenses. "Now a defendant, when he is upon trial, is entitled to every defense that he may make. If, at times, there has seemed to be a difference between my co-counsel and myself it is because there are two defenses.

"I have taken the position from the opening of the trial that there is no shortage. If my argument differs somewhat from the argument of my co-counsel take into consideration that there are two defenses.

"Take the receipts that were issued out of the sheriff's office whenever one of you paid in his taxes. You take a receipt. When that is done so much money should be charged against the man who received it. Whenever the sheriff accounts to the county treasurer for the money he should be credited and after the final settlement there should be no charge against him. When some of the money is not so turned over there would be a shortage. But if you undertake to say that for one certain year or one certain time all the money is not accounted for, is it fair to say that there is a shortage? The expert has testified that a greater amount was paid in some years than was collected. In summing up this case we must first determine if there is a shortage.

Raley's Theory of Erasure. "Here is where the difference between the two defenses clash. But I cannot afford now to explain how that exists. I don't care who made the figures. I don't know whether Davis made those figures or not, and I don't know whether they were made by Funk. I don't want you to detract from the argument of Judge Fee. The theory is just as plain to me as if I had seen those figures changed. If I had seen there I would have done the same if my theory is correct. Now, you take into consideration the amount of the receipts written and not entered on the register amounting to a great number of pages, and I come in and ask to pay my taxes and have a long list of land. I wait for you to make out the receipts, but there is a large number and getting tired I say I will go down town and come back. Mr. Taylor, or someone adds up those figures and sets down the correct total. Mr. Davis comes back to the office and puts down the figures that have been footed up in pencil, but when he goes to make up the cash there is not that amount on hand. Why? Because the man for whom the receipt was written did not come back that day. But the next day, for instance, the party for whom the receipt was written comes back and does pay it in the meantime several like occurrences have happened and it is necessary to change this amount on the register to correspond with the amount that was received.

Phelps Closes Arguments. Shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday the district attorney took the floor for his closing address, which was in part as follows:

"Gentlemen of the jury, were it not for the very unusual arguments and I might say very unusual defense that they have made, I would submit the case to you without any further argument on the part of the state, but in view of the statements that have been made in one theory of the defense, I deem that it is necessary for me to take up the argument of this case and go to some extent into the details."

"I realize the fact, gentlemen, that you have been detained here a long time. You have been asked to examine a great number of figures, and I say to you, and I suppose that you agree with me, that there is no necessity of going over all these amounts again. The defendant, himself, got upon the witness stand and admitted every item that we have undertaken to prove.

"In the beginning they were going to prove that there never was any shortage in the sheriff's office of Umatilla county. A few days later they said there was a shortage, but that somebody else got it. I will never practice law again. Now, I don't want to put you to sleep, but of business, but I want to say that the American citizen has the privilege of changing his mind. Colonel Raley will change his mind."

After a lengthy discussion upon some of the receipts and reports, Mr. Phelps continued, "They got Mr. Buchanan upon the stand and Colonel Raley began to fire questions at him and Mr. Buchanan was ready and willing to answer, and from the time that that witness has been upon the stand they have been afraid of him. They have been afraid to point their finger at him for fear of an electric shock.

"Why, gentlemen, I would have been glad to have found that there was a mistake in that report. I don't want to convict a man when he is not guilty. Does the jury think that I am trying to defraud T. H. Taylor out of any money? I tell you it would have been the happiest day of my life if it could have been demonstrated that no money was taken out of this office. Gentlemen of the jury, it was rumored last July that there was a shortage in the sheriff's office and what should I do? Deny it or investigate it? Investigation brought out the fact that there was a shortage.

"I want to say, gentlemen of the jury, that I have allowed a lot of stuff to be brought in here that should never have been allowed here. When they say that we are trying to clear T. H. Taylor or Mr. Funk or Mr. Blakley, or any other man at the expense of this defendant, they are telling something that they know nothing about. I tell you, in the eyes of the law, that no person should be above another. And I tell you while I am district attorney of this office that they will all look alike. I will give to this man who hasn't a friend on earth the same consideration that I would give to the first in the land.

"I am sorry that I stand here to prosecute this defendant. I have never had anything but the most kindly relations with him. I am sorry but, gentlemen of the jury, we must not allow sympathy or prejudice to enter into this case. Gentlemen of the jury, we are, for the time being, occupying the same positions and they just as well say that you are trying to send this man to the penitentiary as to say that I am trying to do it.

"If the evidence says, in this case, that this man is innocent why, in God's name, acquit him.

"After this rumor came up in this office, what did they do? They sent for some expert to come in and expert the books, and you will remember, gentlemen of the jury, that they have no interest contingent upon the result in this case. They were paid their money and went on their way rejoicing, and Mr. Buchanan was summoned back here by myself to testify as a witness upon this trial.

"Now Mr. Taylor had turned over everything in his office to C. P. Davis; his books, his money and more important than anything else, gentlemen, his absolute confidence.

Here followed a lengthy discussion of some of the testimony and of the receipts and records.

In conclusion he said: "I have done all that is in my power to do. I have brought before you all the evidence and after I have done that, my duty is ended, and your duty commences, gentlemen."

Charge by the Judge. It was after 5:30 when Mr. Phelps finished and Judge Ellis began at once upon the charge to the jury. When he had finished the bailiffs were sworn and the case turned over to the jury at 6 o'clock.

CANDIDATES ARE NUMEROUS. Papers Being Filed With Secretary of State Every Day.

The Salem Statesman gives the following account of political activity at the capital:

E. W. Bartlett of La Grande, filed his petition in the secretary of state's office yesterday for nomination on the republican ticket in the Tenth Judicial district, comprising Union and Walla Walla counties.

William A. Taylor of Macleay, filed his petition in the county clerk's office for nomination on the republican ticket for representative in the legislature and signed a declaration that he would support for United States senator the man who received the highest number of republican votes.

Hon. W. H. Hobson of Stayton, joint senator for Marion and Linn counties, was in the city yesterday canvassing the situation with a view of deciding whether to accede to the wishes of numerous friends who insist upon his candidacy for one of the two senatorships from this county. He will probably make the race.

Hon. J. D. Simmons of Monitor, a member of the house in 1903, and one of the three men who voted on the first last and all ballots for the people's choice for United States senator, is in the city and will probably file his petition for nomination as a representative today. He inclined to sign statement No. 1 and remain consistent with his record.

A FACT PROVEN.

Should Convince Even the Most Skeptical of Its Truth.

If there is the slightest doubt in the minds of any that Dandruff germs do not exist, their belief is compelled by the fact that a man, who had been infected with the germs became bald in six weeks' time.

It must be apparent to any person therefore that the only prevention of baldness is the destruction of the germ-which act is successfully accomplished in one hundred per cent. of cases by the application of Newbro's Herpicide.

Dandruff is caused by the same germ which causes baldness and can be prevented with the same remedy—Newbro's Herpicide.

Accept no substitute. "Destroy the cause you remove the effect."
