Oh, for the thrill of the morning When the sun strikes through the mist, And the dewdrops shine on blossom and vine Like faces that love has kissed; When the birds are singing in gladness Half mad with the joy of life, And the soul knows a ruse which is set to a tune That banishes care and strife. It is, oh, to be living, living In the good old world today! With the sunlight's cheer to gladden us here, The storm king beaten and cowed to fear, 'Tis a good old world, I say! —A. J. Waterhouse.

THE IDAHO CRIME.

There are two sides to the murder of ex-Governor Frank Steunenberg and the prosecution of those charged with the crime. That the murder of that honorable and foremost citizen of Idaho was damnable and atrocious in the extreme, no one will deny. That his murderers should be hunted down and made to pay the utmost penalty, no one will deny. That it is the duty of the officers and the people of Idaho and the entire northwest to co-operate to detect and punish those dastardly cowards who have laid in wait for years for this fearless governor, no one denies. But let us be temperate. There is a mineowners' association in the United States just as dastardly in its conceptions and just as merciless in its executions as the Western Federation of Miners ever dared be. In addition it has millions in money and hired rascals in its employ to carry out its designs and accomplish its purposes. When the Independence, Col., depot was blown up with dynamite two years ago and 14 men killed, did not the bloodhound trace the steps of the man who fired the bomb that killed these men, to the door of a hired detective of the Mineowners' association? Was not the bloodhound called off immediately when this fact became public? The mineowners are determined to crush out the miners' union. To this end the officers of the union will be brought into disrepute and made to bear the brunt of every crime that it is possible to saddle upon them. This is not a defense of the miners nor their union, where there is proof that they have done wrong, but it is a defense of them against the dastardly persecutions of the Mineowners' association which, it is alleged, maintains detectives, thugs, dynamiters and assassins to commit crimes which may be charged to the miners. There are two sides to this case and the people must be careful that they do not get the wrong criminal by the throat, in their passion.

BOURNE'S MONEY BAGS.

A southern Oregon paper says that if Jonathan Bourne, Jr., is selected by the people of Oregon as their choice for the United States senate, it will be through his persistent advertising. Bourne is a prince of advertisers.

His money bags are ample. It is even said he paid the Pendleton Tribune $300 for carrying his picture and his "hooray" platform during the campaign, as small and restricted as the Tribune's influence and circulation is.

But, will Bourne's money bags offset his past record in Oregon? Will his $300 contributions to the Pendleton Tribune and other little papers in Oregon wipe away the recollection of the unspeakable headquarters he maintained in the Eldridge block in Salem, during the zenith of his gloomy few years ago?

Will his money bags give him a clean, clear, untarnished record? Will advertising himself and running his picture in country papers conceal his past record in Oregon politics?

Let the people answer. If he used money and depraved methods in Salem a few years ago to tie up the legislature on the senatorial question, is he any better now? Do the people of Oregon wish to select a man with such a record to represent them in the highest law-making body in the land?

Eastern Oregon and Willamette valley, the two great arms of the commonwealth of Oregon, by which the overgrown baby—Portland—is fed, must unite on a clean, capable, untarnished man, who will represent all the state and in whom there are more qualifications than those included in a million-dollar fortune and a paid advertising agency.

THE RESURRECTION.

The Filipinos have a native newspaper in Manila, called "El Renacimiento," (The Resurrection), devoted to the elevation of native life and character, the advocacy of American ideals of government and the uplifting of the ignorant Filipino from his present abject state to a plane of intelligent citizenship.

Thus are the shameless American grafters in the colonial service rebuked by the feeble upward struggle of the savage. Seeing the American in freedom and progress, inspires the Filipino with a desire to climb higher. It is an innate principle in the human mind, this desire to go forward, to ascend to higher planes.

Were the Filipinos given an intelligent, honest, fraternal assistance by the American with whom they come in contact, they would soon become civilized, hopeful, progressive.

But as long as they are exploited by grafters and commercial pirates, the resurrection will never come into their minds and hearts.

On the Umatilla reservation the Indians have formed a society for the betterment of the tribe. It may seem grotesque to those of us who know Joe Craig, the half-breed interpreter, to think of him as presiding officer over a council of his tribesmen, in which the betterment and uplifting of the tribe are to be considered.

But there again is seen the struggling down of the mental and moral resurrection of the savage. The tendency is upward, forward. Intelligent co-operation and honest dealing from the whites will encourage and improve the Indian. His organization may seem grotesque and ogre in our way of looking at the Indian in every day life—but beneath his outward nature there is that eternal hope, the desire to imitate the better element in civilized life.

Slowly the resurrection is dawning in the mind and heart of the Indian, the Kaffir, the Sepoy, the negro and the Filipino. Intelligent and honest co-operation of the whites in every part of the world will cause this dawn to burst into full splendor upon these groveling races.

The white man's stupidity and cupidly forbid the resurrection.

The people of Oregon understand what statement No. 1 means. The politicians are trying to twist it out of shape, to evade it, to find excuses for refusing to take the pledge, but the people are as intelligent as the candidates and the newspapers. The pledge means that the member of the legislature will vote for the people's choice for senator. True, there is no penalty for the refusal to sign this pledge. But Oregon is sick of the politician and the heeler. The people have determined to check the progress of the boss and redeem the state from its disgrace. Those candidates who refuse to take the pledge are defying the people. They are saying that the boss, and not the common people of Oregon, is supreme in the state legislature. There is no way in which this pledge can be evaded by a man who has the interest of the people at heart. It says the legislator shall vote for the people's choice. Is there anything hidden or misunderstood about this plain statement? On what grounds can a candidate having the interest of the people at heart, refuse to take such a broad pledge?

THE CITY.

They do neither plight nor wed, In the city of the dead, In the city where they sleep away the hours; But they lie, while o'er them range Winter-blight and summer change, An' a hundred happy whisperings of flowers.

No, they neither wed nor plight, And the day is like the night, For their vision is of other kind than ours.

They do neither sing nor sigh, In that burg of by and by, Where the streets have grasses growing cool and long; But they rest within their bed, Leaving all their thoughts unsaid, Deeming silence better far than sob or song.

No, they neither sigh nor sing, Though the robin be a-wing, Though the leaves of autumn march a million strong.

There is only rest and peace, In the City of Surcease From the fallings and the wallings 'neath the sun, And the wings of the swift years Beat out gently o'er the biers, Making music to the sleepers every one.

There is only peace and rest; But to them it seemeth best, For they lie at ease and know that life is done. —Richard Burton.

ISLANDS SWEEP BY WAVES.

A tornado swept the Society and Tuamotu islands, in the South Pacific ocean, February 7 and 8. The damage in Tahiti is estimated at one million dollars, and presumably a similar amount of property was destroyed on the Tuamotu islands. The city of Paapeete was inundated and about 75 buildings destroyed, including the American consulate and the French government building.

The schooner Papeete was submerged for an hour near Anna, Tuamotu. Her captain, Philip Michaeli, estimated that the waves were 65 feet high. It was impossible to see 20 feet away. Bridges and roads were badly damaged on the islands of Tahiti. Bread fruit, coconut, banana and plantain trees were blown down in great numbers, which will result in hardships to the natives and materially affect commerce during the next two or three years. The French gunboat Zeele has gone to the Tuamotu islands with supplies of food and fresh water.

The British consul has appealed to his government for aid for 500 British subjects. Some Americans have sustained heavy losses and probably there will be a few instances of utter destitution. The Americans are hopeful of securing help from the United States. Money and food are required.

The cyclone or hurricane reached the velocity of 120 miles an hour. It struck the islands about midnight February 7 and continued until about 4 o'clock on the next afternoon.

THE SILENT LIFE.

Happy the man who has the poet's heart, E'en though he lack the poet's golden tongue! Happy is he who having never sung And hopeless o'er to sing though but small part, Of those fair visions that before him start. Still lives within a world forever young. Still walks in high fancies, noble thoughts among, And feels the influence which the planets dart.

His life is fed from pure unfeeling springs; And silent flows, a stranger to unrest. Like some deep stream that finds its voiceless way Amid the timorous haunts of all wild things, And there unconscious beauty day by day Mirrors within the quiet of its breast. —Lewis E. Gates.

Women Are Barred.

Attorney General Crawford in an opinion rendered upon the request of State Superintendent Ackerman, holds that it is unconstitutional for a woman to be appointed or elected to the office of county superintendent of schools in this state. There is one woman superintendent in Oregon, Miss Emma C. Warren, appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of H. S. Lyman of Clatsop county.
