

OREGON SENATORS ARE POPULAR

FULTON AND GEARIN HAVE MANY FRIENDS.

Both Are on Important Committees and Both Have Established Themselves in the Friendship of the Senate—By Their Popularity They Secured Many Favors for Oregon in the Senate.

John E. Lathrop, formerly editor of the East Oregonian, but now private secretary to Senator Gearin, of Oregon, writing to the Oregon Daily Journal from Washington, says of the popularity of Senators Fulton and Gearin:

It will be understood that popularity counts for much in Washington. After a man's measure is taken here, and his capacity is estimated, his efficiency in accomplishing things is then determined. It counts for much if the people here like a senator; he can get things done more quickly, and both the senators from Oregon are fortunate in that they enjoy great popularity.

This truth was illustrated the other day when the senate, by unanimous consent, agreed to the immediate consideration of Senator Fulton's bill appropriating $400,000 for the mouth of the Columbia river. This measure had been added to the sundry civil bill as an amendment. Time was passing and matters of national importance were crowding for attention. So the senators from Oregon decided, if possible, to force action. Senator Fulton, therefore, went to republican members of the senate and secured a promise that no objection would be raised on that side of the chamber to immediate consideration of the bill.

Likewise, Senator Gearin personally interviewed the democratic senators and also secured from them the promise that no objection would be raised. One objection from any senator would have prevented the consideration at that time and matters of such transcendent importance were before the senate for consideration that had action not been secured then the chances were that nothing would have been done by the senate at this session of the congress.

So on March 9 the matter was called up by Senator Fulton, who asked the unanimous consent for immediate consideration and not a voice in protest was raised, even though at that time the senate was quivering with excitement over the railroad rate bill and was stirred to its depths over the staid and Philippine tariff measures. So far as the senate is concerned, therefore, decisive action has been secured, and the unanimous vote given there is weighing heavily with the house of representatives, so that Chairman Burton, of the rivers and harbors committee, is disposed to favor the project.

It was largely the personal popularity of the two senators with their respective parties that effected such a desirable result in the matter of the $400,000 appropriation.

With reference to the irrigation projects in Klamath, Lake, Harney, Malheur, Umatilla and other counties, the two senators are working industriously, missing no opportunity to advance these enterprises and induce speedy action. Indeed, it must be said, in justice to the executive departments, that there is no obstacle in connection with these Oregon projects. However, owing to the vast mass of details which must be handled by the departments, a popular senator can accomplish much in urging action, and this has been done by the two senators from Oregon.

Fulton on Seven Committees.

Senator Fulton serves on seven committees, as follows: Claims, industrial expositions, irrigation, post-offices and postroads, public survey and national quarantine, public lands and revision of laws. Senator Gearin's committee assignments are: Claims, District of Columbia, forest reservations and the protection of game, industrial expositions, national banks, pensions.

Senator Fulton, as chairman of the committee on claims, has wrought a decided change in the methods pursued when he succeeded to the chairmanship of that committee; he laid down the rule that all claims for money to be paid by the United States should be subject, insofar as the committee could determine, to the same principle that would be involved were the case to be brought before a federal court.

"In other words," said the senator, "if a claim come before the committee, which, according to our information, would not be just ground for recovery in a court of law, the committee rejects the claim. If the claim would be good ground for action in a court, stating the proposition in general terms, the committee reports it favorably."

Human Blood Marks.
A tale of horror was told by mark of human blood in the home of J. W. Williams, a well known merchant of Hae, Ky. He writes: "Twenty years ago I had severe hemorrhages of the lungs, and was near death when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. It completely cured me and I have remained well ever since." It cures hemorrhages, chronic coughs, settled colds and bronchitis, and is the only known cure for weak lungs. SUIT FOR DIVORCE.

Mrs. Staples Alleges Cruelty, Drunkenness and Jealousy.

Alma M. Staples has commenced suit for divorce from Arthur M. Staples, and alleges a number of reasons why the decree should be granted.

According to the complaint the two were married at East Portland on March 24, 1900. Within two months after the wedding the defendant began a course of cruel and inhuman treatment towards the plaintiff. It is said he would become drunk, and while in that state abuse the plaintiff by calling her vile and profane names. Also, he is said to be of a jealous disposition and to have falsely accused plaintiff of being unduly intimate with other men. For these reasons a decree of divorce is asked, and also custody of the 5-year-old child.

The complaint in the above case was filed today by J. W. Knowles, of La Grande.

New Christian Church at Yakima.
The Christian church of this city is found to be inadequate for the congregations which assemble there for worship. As the congregation is one of the largest in the city they have determined to erect a new stone church to cost in the neighborhood of $25,000, and not over $30,000.—Yakima Republic.
