A nameless man, amid a crowd
That thronged the daily mart,
Let fall a word of Hope and Love,
Unstudied, from the heart:
A whisper on the tumult thrown,
A transitory breath—
It raised a brother from the dust,
It saved a soul from death!
—Charles Mackay.

"BACKWARD, TURN BACKWARD!"

"Backward, turn backward, Oh Time, in your flight!"

This morning a party of people started from Pendleton over the Blue mountains to La Grande by stage coach. To some of these people this was a frightful experience. Some even doubted their ability to make the trip.

But it is only a quarter of a century since there was no other way for the passenger to make the trip. The pioneers knew no other mode of travel. The mothers of the present generation crossed this way, and many of them even walked and helped push their heavy laden wagon over the mountains, watching murderous Indians skulk in the timber at the same time.

And yet the modern man wonders if he can live to ride in a coach 50 miles in June weather with civilization all about him!

If your telephone is out of order this week, remember that the telephone is but 20 years old in the Inland empire. If your electric light fails you, remember that even coal oil was a luxury in Pendleton not many years ago. And when you worry if a mail train does not arrive on time this week, remember that but a few years ago, mail was a very uncertain thing in Pendleton. If a bridge washed out on the wagon road or if the mud holes were unusually deep, the stage was delayed even worse than present-day trains.

And people who are kicking about bad roads today have climbed over the hills of Umatilla county many a time, before there was a road built in the county. And many of them swam streams before county bridges were known.

Strange how luxuries change human nature. It would do humanity good to go back to the pioneer days for a year. Modern conveniences would be more keenly appreciated after such an experience.

COURTESIES OF POLITICS.

The democrats of Umatilla county have been so well pleased with the services of Frank Saling, county clerk, that they refused to name an opponent and Mr. Saling will receive almost the entire democratic vote of the county. The same is true of J. W. Kimbrell, county surveyor. The efficiency and popularity of these officials is something to be proud of, and the people of Umatilla county care little for politics after all, when it comes to a question of capability and fitness.

The election of T. D. Taylor for sheriff is conceded on every hand, because of the same feeling existing among republicans toward Taylor, as exists among democrats toward Saling and Kimbrell.

There is such a thing as personal fitness and no political sentiment can override it. No matter what strings are pulled against "Til" Taylor, his friends in both parties feel assured of his election.

The same is true of Dr. C. J. Smith. He is a typical legislator. He is aggressive, broad-minded, public-spirited, quick to grasp an opportunity for his county and keenly awake to the public needs. He has had the necessary experience to get results for Umatilla county. He is a recognized power in the state senate, and as a co-worker with Walter Pierce, who is one of the very best legislators in the state, he will be in position to bring to Umatilla county a prestige in the legislature which no other man in the county could bring under present circumstances.

There is no opposition to William Slusher, republican nominee for joint representative for the Umatilla-Morrow county district, and democrats are glad to have such an able man for this place as Mr. Slusher, and will vote for him with pleasure.

With the same feeling of liberality and broad-minded fairness, republicans will vote for the democratic legislative candidates, James T. Lieuallen and Cecil R. Wade, because these men are pledged to statement No. 1 and represent forcibly the new and virile public sentiment of the state upon this popular reform.

At the close of the present campaign there is a feeling all over the county that the contest has been fair, and strictly upon the merit of the candidates and not upon partisan grounds, to any extent. The people of the county are becoming more and more independent each year and listen less and less to the paid ward heeler whose business is to peddle slander and abuse on the quiet.

This independent tendency on part of the people is highly commendable. There should be no political lines in county elections. Business capacity and personal fitness should govern in all cases and the quicker the people cut loose from partisanism in county affairs, the quicker taxes will be reduced and the surer will be the financial basis of the county.

Taking inspiration from President Roosevelt, a republican, and from Governor Folk, a democrat, both of whom respect and encourage independence and aggressiveness, the people of the country are drifting away from the narrow partisan spirit which has corrupted and weakened the government from the United States senate down to dog catcher.

HAVE YOU GOT THE HABIT?

How many time have you poked your nose into your empty postoffice box this week?

Although everybody in Pendleton knows that there are no mail trains running yet, the postoffice is visited regularly by the business man, the hopeful lover, the letter-writing woman and the bill collector.

It is strange to think how firmly a habit becomes fixed in a community. After all, communities are like individuals. They have all the eccentricities, peculiarities, weaknesses and strength of the individual.

You have seen a sweet old lady turning the house topsy-turvy looking for her glasses, with the lost article hanging innocently upon her forehead, unmindful of the havoc it is causing.

This is a miniature picture of the entire community going a dozen times a day to look into its empty postoffice box, when it knows that miles of track are out of commission on every side of the city.

"Fiddler" Schmitz of San Francisco

"Human Life," of Boston, contains the following interesting account of Mayor Schmitz, of San Francisco:

When Mayor Eugene F. Schmitz, of San Francisco, went to California a score or more years ago, as a young fellow facing his first battle with the world, he made a precarious living by his fiddle. He applied his instrument with the vim and determination of sturdy German-American young manhood and fiddled so well that he gradually fought his way, step by step, upward.

In commenting upon the recent San Francisco disaster and the magnificent manner in which Mayor Schmitz rose abreast of the occasion, a friend recalled his early experiences as a musician, and delving some 2000 years back into history for a simile, remarked: "Nero fiddled while Rome was burning, but Schmitz, fiddler though he is, certainly did not do any fiddling while San Francisco was being consumed."

The wonderful grasp of the San Francisco catastrophe which the self-possessed, plucky mayor exhibited, has been universally commented upon in every description of the earthquake horror. In fact, those who are most familiar with the situation on the Pacific coast do not hesitate to say that had it not been for the instant action for the relief of 'Frisco's starving thousands taken by Mayor Schmitz, that the sweep of the catastrophe would have been much greater.

Even while the buildings which had been the pride of the Golden Gate were crumbling before the flames, the mayor was wiring eastward the query, "how many architects and engineers can you send us to help in rebuilding 'Frisco?" It has been said that of the homeless and the suffering, of the soldier and the officer, of the rich and poor, of those under and those in command, that no one obtained less sleep during the seven days of San Francisco's reign of horror than the man who had been placed at the head of its municipal government.

Mayor Schmitz is known as the "labor mayor." He was elected to his office as a candidate of union labor in one of the most spectacular campaigns ever recorded on the Pacific slope.

With all the energy and pluck with which he carved the first steps of his own fortune, did Mayor Schmitz fight the sweep of graft-rule in 'Frisco and the domination of the reign of political tricksters who had obtained the control of city politics when he was nominated for office. He is the idol of union labor more especially in the west where he is better known, and so great is his influence in labor circles that it is stated he will ask as a personal favor that the members of the San Francisco labor unions do not seek a higher wage rate in the city's time of stress in its work of rebuilding for than was paid before the catastrophe.

The mayor is an athlete six feet tall, an enthusiastic hunter, fisherman and an all-round sportsman. He believes in thoroughly mixing healthy recreation with business cares and frequently steals a day or a week from his arduous duties for a jaunt with rifle, or rod and reel.

HER CHOICE.

Two homes were offered me, the one all fair,
With marble steps and columns broad and tall;
And as I walked adown the stately hall,
One walked beside me with a calm, proud air,
And pointed out the carvings on the stair,
The priceless paintings on each frescoed wall;
While fountains in their rythmic rise and fall
Made music over blossoms bright and rare.
The other home was but a cottage place,
With morning-glories on the porch and fair
Old-fashioned flowers in the yard; but, lo,
Young, warm, impassioned love, with glowing face,
Bent over me and kissed me on the hair;
And I was glad of heart and would not go!
—Etta Wallace Miller in Globe-Democrat.

TAKE HEART.

Though rain may fall, for long, long day,
And all the world seem drear and bleak,
Take heart, bear up, and strive alway,
For light, aye soon, must top the peak.

The Germans have a revolt on their hands, by native subjects in southern southeastern Africa. The rebellion is on a small scale, but is making much trouble, being splendidly managed by a chief of undoubted ability.

TRUTH.

Not to the one who walks the way
That lies in the broadest light of day
May shine such truth as leads aright,
But he who treads life's lonely night,
Who knows how hard man's "lot" may be,
May know that truth is certainty.

Think ye that he who never trod
A cruel road can speak of God?
Nay: thou who judge the erring one
May stand the fartherest from the sun.
For truth as truth, e'en whe nit sends
Its wrecks broadcast to reach its ends.
—Amy Nickerson, in Suggestion.

Several years ago the present king of England, who was then prince of Wales, was so unfortunate as to have a boil under his right arm. As a result of this, when he shook hands with his friends, he was compelled to raise his right hand and elbow to the level of his chin. For several years thereafter this method of shaking hands was common in the "smart sets" of two continents.

CATARRH A GERM DISEASE.

Breathe Air Medicated by Hyomei and Kill the Germs.

Now that physicians and scientists universally agree that catarrh is a germ disease, the reason for the failure of the old-fashioned stomach-dosing in this trouble is readily seen.

Prior to the discovery of Hyomei a treatment which cures catarrh by filling the air you breathe with germ-killing and healing medication, statistics showed that at least 97 out of every 100 persons in this state were suffering from catarrh of some form. Although Hyomei has been known only a few years, the remarkable results following its use are shown by the much smaller percentage of those who suffer with catarrh today.

The treatment with Hyomei is very simple and pleasant; a small inhaler comes with every outfit and three or four times a day Hyomei is breathed through this, making the air at that time like that found on the mountains where the pine forests give off their fragrant and healing balsams.

Used in this way, Hyomei penetrates to the most remote cells of the nose, throat and lungs, absolutely killing all catarrhal germs and effecting a complete and permanent cure of the disease.

The complete outfit costs but one dollar, while extra bottles can be obtained for 50 cents. Tallman & Co. have seen such remarkable results from the use of Hyomei, that they sell it under an absolute guarantee that it costs nothing unless it cures.
