SWELL THE PAYROLL.

The resumption of the Pendleton Woolen mill after a suspension of several months pending legal proceedings, is the best news item that has been published in Pendleton for many a day.

The woolen mills furnish work for a number of skilled laborers. These laborers bring their families here, spend their salaries here, build up homes, become patrons of schools, churches and societies, and in every way add to the permanent wealth and foundation of the city.

No other institution has given Pendleton a more wide publicity than her woolen mill and the East Oregonian hopes to see this institution continue in operation as long as the city stands.

A payroll is what is needed in Pendleton. The farming community is excellent, the livestock interests are permanent and secure, but the city needs a permanent and substantial payroll. Idle capital in Pendleton banks should be in use, furnishing labor for hundreds of workmen and bringing in returns to its owners. The object before the commercial interests of the city should be to bring manufacturing enterprises here. No matter how small they are. Broom factories, cigar factories and other small industries furnish labor and are permanent resources. Let us swell the payroll in every possible way.

GOOD ART IN THE HOMES.

The Evening settlement of London has adopted a scheme for putting works of real art into the homes of people unable to buy them.

Reproductions of Watts, Burne-Jones, Millais, Rossetti and other great artists have been collected, put into simple frames and are being loaned to members of the Workingmen's Picture Gallery at the rate of a penny a month for each two pictures borrowed. At the end of the month these can be exchanged.

Art, one of the best gifts of heaven to man, never was intended to be exclusively a luxury of the rich.

Like literature, it is the common heritage of all.

It is a universal language which all can understand, and the message it conveys goes to the heart as well as the mind.

The part which it has played in the education and advancement of mankind toward a common understanding of itself cannot be measured.

It enlarges the view of life and enables us to understand aspirations, struggles and passions that are tremendous forces in the world and in our own individual lives.

One's real nature may be known better from the kind of art he loves than from the books he likes, because art love is less of the mind and more of the soul.

So powerful is the influence of good pictures in their constant force of suggestion that criminologists are learning to hang them in prison cells as a most valuable element in discipline and reform.

Anything which gives genuine and wholesome happiness among the classes whose pleasures are few and makes the bare homes more cheerful and attractive is a mighty influence for good.

CAUSE OF FLOODS.

General Manager J. P. O'Brien, of the O. R. & N. system, who was in the city last week during the high water, struck the keynote of the flood situation in eastern Oregon in a conversation in this city.

He said that the denudation of the mountains along the sources of the streams would increase the danger from floods every year, as there was no timber left to hold the snow, or to catch the rain and cause it to soak into the ground. Rains which now visit the denuded forest sections flow directly into the streams as into a trough, there being no foliage, growing timber or other obstruction to prevent it.

But what are we going to do about it? The constant denudation of the forests goes on year after year. No effort is made to replenish the timber supply, and the only logical conclusion is that as years go by, cities and settlements below will be more and more threatened and will be compelled to go to more and more expense to insure their existence.

For every tree cut from the mountains, the government should demand that another tree be planted. This will lessen the danger. Nothing else will insure safety from destructive high water hereafter.

HEALTH MORE THAN MONEY.

A Chicago health inspector admits that many diseased cattle and hogs are slaughtered and their meat sold to American consumers, and justifies the practice by saying that otherwise the loss in diseased animals would amount to $3,000,000 a year, most of which, we take it, would fall on the packers, though some, perhaps, on the cattle and hog raisers, says the Oregon Daily Journal.

This inspector is apparently a very good one—for the packers, and for the stockraisers with diseased animals to sell—but the people should demand that no time be lost in kicking him without much ceremony out of his office. Three million dollars is quite a sum to be distributed among the packers and possibly the sellers of diseased cattle, but the health of many millions of people is of still greater importance.

True, this officer assumes that meat of cattle affected with tuberculosis, lumpy jaw, and other diseases, is not infectious, but let him and those who hold that it is as good meat as any, eat it; other people don't want it at any price.

The man who willfully and habitually sells diseased meats ought to be held a greater criminal than a robber. What crimes of the protected trusts will be shown up next?

SENATOR CLARK QUILTS.

What a flinty heart beats in the breast of Senator Money Bags Clark, of Montana and other places, says the Seattle Star.

He is a member of the United States senate. He has nobbled with greatness. He has lived where the epaulets grow. On Sunday afternoons he might even stroll past the White House and compare that ornate structure with his palace, which Thomas Lawson named the "buldest and brassiest home in New York." He has had spread before him the fact that money will buy almost everything—except real popularity, the confidence of the people, and the ability to wear one's clothes as if they were made for him.

Mr. Clark refuses to be a candidate for re-election. Fame does not seem to have satisfied the gnawing in his breast. Notoriety and his picture in a thousand papers has not warmed his heart. He is through, done, finished, disgusted with public life.

Does Senator Clark realize the hardship to be inflicted on a community by his relentless decisions?

Something on Your Line

is apt to be found time and again if we have provided the line, hook, sinker, rod and all else necessary for spring and summer fishing. We have appliances for every sport you can think of as good as any made—better than most. Whatever your fancy in sports, let us supply the necessities to its enjoyment.

Frazier's Book Store

Why, it is asserted that during his candidacy, money was so plenty that it often floated into hotel transoms that had carelessly been left open, and a man might wake up any morning and find a thousand dollars in his pants pocket, and have no knowledge of the transaction.

Scores of able men too strong to work have looked on Mr. Clark as the "Great American Meal Ticket." He kept money in circulation. It is asserted that he seldom allowed his right hand to know what his left hand was doing. He was liberal to a fault—several of them.

And now that procession of thirsty loafing men is headed for the poorhouse. 'Tis a pitiful sight. Credit gone at the bar and no helping hand near.

A padlock on the Clark pocket-book and a watchman in front. Heaven help the poor. The rich are looking out for themselves.

It doesn't seem possible that Clark would have the heart to do it.

ALCOHOL WILL BE USED.

The following facts concerning the uses of denatured alcohol were brought out before the congressional investigating committee:

The bulk of free denatured alcohol in Germany is used for the purpose of light, fuel and heat. A lamp is now made with a Welsbach mantle which produces a very strong, steady, and high-grade light by the use of alcohol.

Experiments have been made testing this lamp with the most improved pattern kerosene lamps with round wicks and of equal candle power; it was found that a gallon of alcohol would keep the alcohol lamp burning twice as many hours as would a gallon of kerosene burning in the most approved pattern of kerosene lamp which is in general use. In other words, one gallon of alcohol is equal to two gallons of kerosene for lighting purposes. Hence, it follows if the price of alcohol methylated is less than double the price of kerosene its use especially on the farms and in the villages of the country, would become enormous.

During the past few months experiments have been made in adapting gasoline power engines to the use of alcohol. This has been successfully done in Germany for several years, though there they generally mix 25 per cent of gasoline with the alcohol to obtain a more ready ignition of the fluid, which is forced into the cylinder of the engine in the form of vapor. Experiments in this country have developed the fact that alcohol can be used just as readily as the mixture with gasoline or the gasoline itself and the operation of the engine with its use is perfect. The use of small motor engines running with gasoline has become very large. In the estimate before the committee it would appear that 300,000 of these engines were now in use and that the annual output is more than 100,000.

FASTER THAN EXPRESS TRAINS.

When scientists desire to find out how fast a certain bird flies it is necessary only to set up poles and note by stop watches the time the bird requires to cross the interval. The speed of fishes is more difficult to ascertain. Nevertheless, as the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post explains, estimates have been made, showing that the mackerel, considering its handicap in size, comes close to being the champion racer.

Unquestionably the mackerel travels sometimes as fast as an express train at high speed—say at the rate of 60 or possibly 70 miles an hour, other things being equal, the larger the fish the faster it swims—just as the huge steamship is able to travel at a speed much greater than the little harbor tug.

Undoubtedly the energy employed by a fish of great size, such as a 20-foot shark, when traveling at its best, is sometimes tremendous. An ordinary tug, which represents a maximum of energy in a minimum of bulk, utilizes about 200 horse-power. Of course it is only a guess, but it would not seem to be over the mark to suppose that a 70-foot whale makes use of 500 horse-power when it propels its huge bulk through the water at a rate of 20 miles an hour.

A whale, which is a mammal, and not a fish, might be compared to a freight train if the shark is a cannon ball express, but it can beat the fastest ocean greyhound in a speed contest.

The tarpon is probably faster than the shark. It is believed that a tarpon in a hurry can travel at the rate of 30 miles an hour.

GRADUATING GOOD WIVES.

Diplomas certifying that the recipients are qualified to "keep house for husbands receiving $10 a week" were given yesterday to several young women at Chicago Commons, says a Chicago dispatch. The graduates, all of whom are to be married soon, were members of a class in economical housekeeping and cooking.

The economical graduates offered classes in the way of exhibits of breakfasts, lunches and dinners that were attractive, had cost little and were palatable. Each dish bore a card indicating its cost. A breakfast was shown, prepared at an expense of 19 cents and sufficient for four persons. Dinners ranged somewhat more expensive, one consisting of meat, two vegetables, a salad and a pudding for four, being rated at 40 cents.

No man grows old; he becomes old by not growing. Stagnation is not tolerated in nature. It is growth and not youth that determines the period of youthfulness. One cannot continue to grow in size, but he can in quality of organization. As one continuously rebuilds his body, he should build a better body by proper auto-suggestion, and life habits. An ungracious man is useless and Nature buries him internally by appropriating inorganic instead of organic substances.—New Thought.
