The Canadian government has entered upon a systematic plan of retiring all American silver money. The method is for all the banks to take in the ordinary course of business all the genuine stuff they can get hold of. It is then melted down by the Canadian government, which redeems it with Dominion money.

One of the most widely traveled men in the world was Prof. Henry A. Ward, who was killed in an automobile accident at Buffalo, a few days ago. His travels were mainly for the purpose of collecting meteorites, and he owned the largest collection in the world, excepting those of the property of the German and Austrian governments.

At least six and possibly double that number of lives were lost as the result of the collapse of a boat landing platform at Manawa Lake, near Omaha, the night of July 4. The dead whose bodies have been recovered are: Lena Rosenblum, Omaha; Bessie Hyland, Omaha; Mary West, Council Bluffs; Mary Looney, South Omaha; Mary Sheehan, Omaha; Scott E. Huff, Omaha.

NORTHWEST NEWS.

Forty-eight drunks were run in at Portland on July Fourth.

The steward of the British ship Australasia, lying at Port Townsend, is dead from drinking poisoned whiskey intended for Captain Hughes.

Only one fire occurred in Portland on July 4, which the fire department avers is the best record for that city in many years. It was insignificant, an old shack at the corner of Fourth and Ash being the victim. It ignited from a bunch of firecrackers thrown upon the roof.

The grandstand at Natatorium park, a Spokane pleasure resort, burned on July 4, in an incredibly short space of time. The crowd had just filed out. Several ball players in the dressing rooms underneath the stand were scorched. Loss, about $7,000, which includes fireworks valued at $1000 stored beneath the stand.

At Portland on July 4 Gordon Allen, aged 19, was drowned in the Willamette, while bathing. Ernest Schmeer, Fred Phillips, George Little and Tony Kwansiewicz were injured by falling off or in front of street cars. These comprise all the deaths of July accidents in that city. The worst hurt was Little, whose leg was crushed.

Barred by Torchlight.

Allerton Hall was upward of four centuries the property and residence of the Kitchingman family. It was the largest and most ancient mansion in Cheltenham, consisting of about sixty rooms, with gardens and pleasure grounds. The Kitchingman family for upward of 400 years were carried from this hall by torchlight to be interred in the choir of St. Peter's church in Leeds. At the interment of any of the family the great chandelier, consisting of thirty-six branches, was always lighted. In the year 1716 Robert Kitchingman died May 7, aged 100 years. He ordered his body to be buried with torchlights at Chapel Allerton. He was interred on May 16, when 100 torches were carried. The room where the body was laid was hung with black, and a velvet pall, with escutcheons, was worn by the chief gentry. The pallbearers had all scarfs, biscuits and sack; the whole company had gloves. Fifty pounds were given among the poor in the chapel yard on the day of his interment. Mary, his wife, died July 28, 1716, aged ninety-seven years. She was interred precisely in the same way.—"Annals of Yorkshire."

For Black Eyes.

It is often the case that people meet with accidents and bruises that cause disfiguring discolorations, from which they suffer not a little embarrassment and annoyance. It is worth while to know that there is a simple remedy and one quite within the reach of every one. Immediately after the accident mix an equal quantity of capicum annuum with mucilage made of gum arabic. To this add a few drops of glycerin. The bruised surface should be carefully cleansed and dried, then painted all over with the capicum preparation. Use a camel's hair brush and allow it to dry, then put on the second or third coat as soon as the first is entirely absorbed. A medical journal is authority for the statement that if this course is pursued immediately after the injury discoloration of the bruised tissue will be wholly prevented. It is also said that this remedy is unequalled as a cure for rheumatism or stiffness of the neck.

HENEY IN PORTLAND.

Land Fraud Prosecutor Ready for the Trials.

Francis J. Heney, former United States district attorney for Oregon, and noted prosecutor of land thieves, has arrived in Portland, says the Oregon Daily Journal. He came alone and was met by United States District Attorney W. C. Bristol, with whom he will be associated in the prosecution of land fraud cases yet to be tried. Heney declined to make any extended statement. He said that he had come to town to take part in the work still to be done in the land fraud cases, but when asked what cases would be tried first he answered: "I don't know." Other questions met with the response, "I haven't anything to say."

Hermann Probably First.

When informed that Henry Melndrum had been sentenced, Heney asked as to the penalty imposed, but made no comment. On leaving the railway station, he went direct to the Portland hotel, his usual abiding place while in the city.

It is the general belief that the case of Congressman Binger Hermann will be the first of the pending land fraud cases to be tried, but no admission to this effect has yet been made by any one in authority. A month ago it was predicted that the series of trials would be under way at this time, but it is not likely that a beginning will be made for 10 days or more. Judge Hunt, who is to preside, is still in Montana, but is expected to arrive before the week ends.

Peter West is the attorney for plaintiffs in all three of the suits.

MEAD COMMENDS STATE JUTE MILL

WASHINGTON MAN URGES ACTION IN OREGON.

W. H. Mead, Superintendent of the Jute Mill at the Walla Walla Penitentiary, writes Entertainingly of Washington's Plant—Cost of Plant With One Year's Supply of Jute Was $175,000—Sure Means of Securing Cheap Sacks.

The East Oregonian has just received a letter from W. H. Meads, superintendent of the jute mill at the Walla Walla penitentiary.

Mr. Meads commends the movement of the farmers of Umatilla county to secure a state jute mill, and gives much valuable information on the subject. His interesting letter is as follows:

Walla Walla, Wash., July 6.—(To the East Oregonian.)—With regard to question of the farmers of Oregon organizing for the purpose of petitioning the legislature to authorize an appropriation to be expended on the installation of a proposed jute plant to be located at the state penitentiary at Salem, I would like to be permitted to express the opinion that the object is worthy the support of every progressive man within the borders of your great state.

Speaking from the standpoint of one of experience and in a position to know, I would say that it is my candid belief that such a venture can well be promoted with every assurance of success financially and beneficially, and of a better supply of such commodities as are produced by a prison plant of the character mentioned, and at the same time providing a certain means of saving in cost to the person most concerned—the farmer.

The Washington state penitentiary plant, fully equipped with necessary machinery and one year's supply of jute, cost the state the sum of $175,000.

This type of plant is known as a 700-bloom mill and has an average capacity of 7500 grain bags per day.

There are 280 employees working on an average 10 hours each day, and the yearly output amounts to over 1,200,000 grain bags as well as large quantities of burlap, hop cloth, fleece twine, hop warp, etc., which is extensively used throughout the state.

That there is a good margin for profit goes without saying, when the fact is known that this season's output of grain bags are marketed at the rate of $65 per 1000, or $4 1/2 each.

In my opinion Oregonians cannot put the project through too soon, and in a matter so vitally interesting to the "mainstays" of our country, I should imagine there would be little difficulty of speedy accomplishment.

Trusting the subject of my letter may be of interest to your readers, I am, respectfully,

W. H. MEADS,
Supt. Jute Mill, Washington State Penitentiary.

GOOD REPORTS FROM NOME.

Mining Activity is Pronounced and Shipments Heavy.

The Northwestern Steamship company's steamer Orizaba arrived in port yesterday from Nome with 52 cabin passengers and $750,000 in gold, says the Seattle News.

The latter was consigned to the Scandinavian-American bank, the Union Trust company and W. H. Bard who is connected with the Heney-Bench Mining company at Nome. In speaking of the trip Purser E. B. Tracy said:

"We had a delightful trip both going and coming. We did not encounter any ice floes on the way up and made splendid time."

"The conditions in Nome are very brisk and the shipments of gold that will be sent out towards the close of the season will, in my opinion, be the largest in the history of the country."

"The camp is very active and everybody seemed to be enjoying prosperity. We brought down four tons of whalebone that we took off the whaler Bayless. The Bayless brought in the crew of the wrecked sealer Admiral while we were at Nome. She rescued them off Anadia Point near East Cape. The whalers had not made much of a success up to the time we left. Only one whale was reported as being caught, but the whalers were confident that their catch would yet be profitable before the season closed."

"The whaler Monterey has 10 cases of smallpox aboard. She left two at Unalaksa, six at Sledge Island, and had two aboard when she landed at Nome. This is the only case we heard of during our trip."

The Orizaba is due to sail again on a return trip July 7th.
