INCREASING THE MEMBERSHIP. Would Strengthen the Pendleton Commercial Association.

As the Pendleton Commercial Association has in many ways been serving as a county organization, and its benefits have been enjoyed by many from other parts of the county, an effort is now being made to increase the non-resident membership of the association.

Under the rules of the association a non-resident member pays the sum of $5 per year as dues and is not charged the $5 initiation fee imposed upon regular members. By taking out non-resident membership one becomes entitled to the privileges of the club rooms while in the city, and also to participate in the business meetings of the association. Today Librarian A. W. Nye has been engaged in writing letters to a number of prominent men over the county, asking them to take out non-resident membership, and it is thought the invitation will be generally accepted.

GIGANTIC HORSE FOUND.

Bones of Prehistoric Monster Unearthed in Wyoming.

A Lander, Wyo., special to the Cheyenne Tribune says: A discovery of great importance to the scientific world, has been made on the Sweet-water divide, near here, by Arthur Vaughn and Winnie Firestone, of this place. In the form of a skeleton of a gigantic prehistoric animal. The skeleton is that of an extinct animal at least 30 feet in length and in an excellent state of preservation. It was an herbivorous animal and the jaw bone displays powerful grinders that are but little decayed. The fossil is undoubtedly that of the progenitor of the modern horse and probably lived in the early Tertiary period, indicating that horses then were from 25 to 50 feet in height, or as high as an ordinary two-story building.

Dr. Williston, of the Chicago university, and the curator of the American museum, have been notified of the rare find, and both have announced their intention of starting at once for the scene in order to procure the skeleton.

DENIES ALL THE CHARGES.

Nothing Found to Justify an Action for Brutality to Child.

No complaint has yet been made upon the charge of child beating which was reported from the west end yesterday, and it is said nothing more will be done in the matter.

Upon the request of the mother of the girl in question, Marshal Gurdane went to the house yesterday afternoon and he says the girl denied she had been whipped by her mother. According to the latter, she has been forced to tie up her wayward girl in order to keep her from gadding the streets, but she has not been brutal to her. Also, she says that the neighbors who reported her as being brutal yesterday did so without knowing anything about the case.

The "William J. Bryan league" has been incorporated at Springfield, Ill., with the avowed purpose of furthering his candidacy for president. Ex-Mayor Harrison of Chicago, is president.
