Not alone the limb of the tree, but the bear as well, fell on the unfortunate man. The bear showed fight and had it not been for the dogs Fritz's companion would never have succeeded in getting rid of the angry brute. The limb fell across Fritz's head and he died an hour afterward.—The Dalles Chronicle.

Narrow Escape From Fire at Lewiston

A small building in the Northern Pacific switch yards caught fire about noon today. The flames spread so rapidly that Mrs. Charles Williams, wife of one of the men working in the yards, who was cooking dinner at the time, barely escaped with her life. She was surrounded by the fire before she discovered that the house was burning, and had to seize her little child and rush into the flames. A purse hanging on the wall with $53 in money in it could not be rescued.

Mr. Williams lost all of his belongings, beside the money, some valuable notes and account of a grocery business he formerly conducted. He says he cannot estimate the loss, but that the fire leaves him practically destitute.—Lewiston Teller.

STARTED NEW BREED

ORIGIN OF THE POLLED
HEREFORD CATTLE.

Warren Gammon of Polk County, Iowa, by Studying Darwin's Theories, Was Able to Originate an Excellent Breed of Cattle, Which is Now in Great Demand—Long Search After Homeless Stock to Start the Breed.

Farming, an agricultural paper published in Chicago, gives the following interesting account of the origin of the breed of Polled Hereford cattle, which is now sought after by all progressive breeders. Farming sez:

After reading Charles R. Darwin's wonderful essay "On the Origin of Species," Warren Gammon of Polk county, Iowa, now secretary of the American Polled Hereford Cattle Club, was convinced that there must exist somewhere a "sport" or "freak" pure bred Hereford bull or cow that was polled or naturally hornless. For Mr. Darwin says that variation, sports or freaks of nature are constantly occurring among all species of animals, domestic as well as wild.

Mr. Gammon determined to locate such sports, if they existed, and mate them for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not they would breed after themselves. Constant inquiry among breeders in person and by correspondence was maintained; advertisements were inserted in various publications, and in due time his efforts were rewarded by locating in various parts of this country, 17 such animals, four males and 13 females from pure bred, registered stock.

He bought the four bulls and seven of the cows; and by mating them produced pure bred, registered Herefords having no horns, thus laying the foundation for the new breed—Polled Herefords—and established a double standard.

By mating polled bulls with polled cows nearly all the calves "came polled, and when polled bulls were mated with horned cows, something over half the calves were free from horns.

Not having a large number of polled animals with which to establish and maintain a herd the work necessarily started slowly, but now Mr. Gammon reports there are more than 100 head of pure bred Polled Herefords eligible to entry in both the American Polled Hereford Record and the American Hereford Record, and the new breed is in a fair way to a rapid and healthy growth.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold.

A. J. Nusbahn, Batesville, Ind., writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package, and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." Koeppen's drug store.

BRAKEMEN DISCHARGED.

Northern Pacific Attempts to Stop "Box Car" Passenger Habit.

Box car passengers have begun this morning about 20 Northern Pacific brakemen, and as a result there is a list of either 25 or 30 brakemen on file in the superintendent's office of men whose services are scheduled to come to an end as soon as others are secured to take their places. Yesterday eight brake twisters were given their walking papers, says the Spokane Chronicle.

The action of the company has thrown the brakemen into a turmoil and there is plenty of conjecture flying around as to who is to get bumped next. The company has evidently had a spatter or two on the road.

The brakemen are reported to have made a good thing out of the hoboes who beat their way over the line.

"It was a poor day when a brakeman could not clean up from $5 to $10 a day by shaking down the hoboes," stated one of the employees.

"The company takes the stand that the brakemen are collecting money which would have gone to the company. The brakemen, however, feel they are so much ahead for every fare they can collect.

"The company is not robbed of a cent," said one of the brakemen. "When a brakeman gets a piece of money he gets it from a man who would beat his way over the line anyway rather than pay the regular fare."

Rain Increases Pay.

The present rain has caused the price of picking hops in at least three yards in the vicinity of Eugene to advance from one cent to a cent and a half a pound, and that price has prevailed in those yards since yesterday, says the Eugene Guard. As soon as the rain began pickers commenced to desert the yards, and in order to hold them the owners decided to make this advance, with the result that a majority of the pickers have remained. The yards in which the old price prevails are almost deserted.
