NEWS OF MILTON

CAR SHORTAGE CAUSES MILLS TO SHUT DOWN.

No Wheat Shipped in and No Flour Shipped Out—Fuel Scarce and Will Be More So. Probably—Grocery Business at Freewater Changes Hands—Basket Dinner in a Grove, and Lecture by Mrs. Waldo—Big Shipment of Potatoes.

Milton, Ore., Nov. 2.—On account of the shortage of cars the Eagle flouring mill at this place has been closed, and it is possible that the Peacock mill will be closed also. No wheat is being shipped in to be ground, and no flour can be shipped out, making a complete tie-up. An order for 20,000 sacks of flour for retail trade at The Dalles has just been received but cannot be filled for some time.

Fuel is also scarce, and people would suffer if it were not for the wood that is being hauled in from the mountains. Business is suffering to a great extent.

J. H. Hall, cashier of the J. L. Elam bank at Freewater has purchased the entire stock of groceries owned by Andy Johnson at Freewater. Mr. Hall has resigned his position at the bank, and the vacancy has been filled by J. J. Merrifield.

Tuesday next there will be a basket dinner held in the grove by the Moore school house and Mrs. Clara H. Waldo, lecturer for the Oregon state grange will deliver a lecture at that time. Granges have been organized at Hudson Bay, Vincent chapel and at Milton through the efforts of Mrs. Waldo, and it is understood that a few more will be organized in this vicinity.

The Walla Walla Produce company and the S. S. Shields company are shipping out potatoes by the carload of late. The Shields company alone shipped out eight carloads last week.

B. Y. P. U. Social.

On Monday night there will be held a social gathering to which all the young people of the Baptist church and congregation are cordially invited, meeting this month with Miss Fern Edwards, at 200 East High street.

Dairy and Food Commission's Report

The Minnesota dairy and food commission's analysis shows that Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar and Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar contained opiates and croton oil. Opiates are poisons and croton oil is a violent poisonous purgative. Refuse to accept any but Foley's Honey and Tar in a yellow package. Foley's Honey and Tar contains no opiates or dangerous drugs and is the best cough and cold cure. Koeppe's Drug store.

SALEM EDITOR PRAISES EASTERN OREGON

Representative Frank Davey of Marion county, editor of the Salem Statesman, and one of the most interesting characters in the legislature, in writing to his paper of the legislative excursion from Pendleton to Walla Walla, says the following nice and interesting things about Pendleton and eastern Oregon in general:

While we are talking railroads and trolley lines these people are pushing great irrigation and reclamation projects that are already turning what appeared to be desert wastes into garden spots, while the possibilities of the future, according to present outlines, can only be surmised.

The first appearance of irrigation is at Irigton, a live young town in the upper end of Morrow county, where young orchards, alfalfa fields, melon patches and garden spots can be seen in every direction. The water for the ditch used in this section is taken from the Umatilla river through the old Bailey flume started several years ago. There is now considerable capital invested in it and a large amount of land has been platted in small tracts and sold on the installment plan to settlers who are making a good start on comfortable homes.

The next big project, or rather combination of projects, is at Hermiston, a new town between Umatilla Junction and Echo. In this region the United States is engineering one irrigation scheme which will involve the construction of a storage reservoir covering three square miles, intended to store up the winter flood 45,000 acre-feet of water, sufficient to irrigate over 20,000 acres of land. The work on this great enterprise is now in progress.

Then there is the ditch of the Maxwell Land & Irrigation company, which is intended to water another area of over 20,000 acres and the W.

J. Furnish ditch, which will irrigate as much more, all of this being now the home of the sagehen and jack-rabbit, but which under the influence of the water cure will grow the richest kind of crops.

The water for all of these will be taken from the Umatilla river near Echo. In passing through the latter town we noticed the sign not far from the depot, "Watch Echo Grow," and I have an idea that as all those irrigation propositions are fully developed the process of growth of that and other towns throughout this region will be remarkable and interesting.

We found Pendleton a most lively and prosperous city, whose people have faith in the future and are willing to put their faith into active good work. They are now laying bitulithic pavement on the two business streets analogous to Commercial and State in Salem. Main street from the river to the bluff, a distance of nearly half a mile, and Court street a similar distance and the balance of the street is to be macadamized clear to the city limits. The contract price of the paving is, I think, $65,000, and the business men are all proud of it and talk of it with pleasure. Pendleton is humming with industry and alive with public spirit.

The ride to Walla Walla took us through the richest wheat belt in Oregon—the country surrounding Adams, Athena and Weston, then through a splendid fruit country, surrounding Milton and Freewater, then through another wheat belt to Walla Walla.

It was simply a revelation to western Oregon people to see the magnificent farms along this journey of 40 miles and as far as the eye could reach on either side, farms which had been sown to wheat for 40 years and are still bearing 45 to 60 bushels to the acre, farms that are worth 475 to $100 an acre. Umatilla is a great country and the irrigation projects present and prospective, will add much to the greatness.
