Joe Melkel, a pioneer miner of eastern Oregon, has returned to Baker City from Tonopah. He brings personal testimony that more people in the Nevada gold fields die of pneumonia than of all other ailments. It is that region's characteristic scourge.

Conservative men say the recent flood losses in Gilliam county can be put down about as follows: To the O. R. & N., at least $20,000; county wagon roads, $5000; property in city of Arlington, $2000; to stock lost by starving and floods, $25,000, making a total of $52,000.

The destruction of deer in the Clearwater district, Idaho, by cougar, is something extraordinary. The slaughter is due principally to the fact that food is scarce, and the condition of the snow affords the cougar the opportunity he seeks to kill the large game.

There is now setting in a heavy export movement of wheat from the United States, due principally to the failure of crops and the famine in Russia, which is nominally a grain exporting country. Last week there were bought for export to Europe 2,600,000 bushels of wheat. That figure will be exceeded in the current week.

The body of Martin Botcher, who has been missing since December 31, was found in the Willapa river, Wash., 1000 feet upstream from where he attempted to cross the river in a skiff on the date mentioned. Sixty dollars in gold was in his clothes, and there was not the slightest evidence of violence, and all theories of foul play have been abandoned. Yet the body was 1000 feet upstream from the crossing.

At Pullman, Wash., Rev. W. E. Powell, former pastor of the Baptist church, has brought suit against a member of his congregation for commissions due him on alleged sale of promoter's stock in a mining company. The amount claimed is $230 for the sale of 11,500 shares of Dominion Consolidated Copper company stock at a commission of $20 per 1000 shares. The suit is brought against Isaac M. Ely and Hattie Ely, his wife.

At Forest Grove, Ore., J. B. He leaves a large property. He came from Fort Dodge, Iowa, where he was a banker.

REGISTER OUSTED

M. J. NOLAN OUT OF THE DALLAS LAND OFFICE.

Could Not Sustain Charges of Fraud Made Against Receiver Miss Anna Lang and Was Summarily Dismissed—His Dismissal Comes as a Punishment for His Disloyalty to Factional Leaders, it is Alleged.

Another chapter in the factional warfare in the republican party in Oregon is brought to a close by the summary dismissal of M. J. Nolan, register of the land office at The Dalles by order of the president.

The story goes back for a number of years to the time when Nolan was a willing tool of his faction and aspired, in return, to secure a fat place in the government service. He was finally rewarded by being made register of the land office at his home town, The Dalles.

Then the enemies of M. A. Moody, who had secured the appointment of Nolan, began to lay plans to alienate the register and his benefactor and it is alleged trumped up evidence to show Nolan that the receiver of the office, Miss Anna Lang, a close friend of Mr. Moody, was giving out secret information concerning land withdrawals, by which her friend were benefitting. Nolan sent such charges to Washington and offered his resignation. His resignation was refused and he is given a severe chastisement by being dismissed. A dispatch from The Dalles says:

Receiver Anne M. Lang, of the local land office is tonight in receipt of a telegram from the commissioner of the general land office, advising her that the president has removed Register Nolan, and that he has been instructed to turn over to the receiver all government property in his possession. According to the commissioner's directions, the land office will transact no business, but will be open for the information of the public pending further instructions.

Beyond the information contained in the commissioner's telegram, Miss Lang declines to discuss the matter further tonight. Mr. Nolan has been out of town since Saturday, and the land office force knows nothing of his whereabouts.

A Washington dispatch says of the causes of Mr. Nolan's dismissal:

Mr. Nolan's dismissal follows an investigation of The Dalles land office under the personal direction of Secretary Hitchcock, and, while the secretary could not be seen tonight, it is understood that the investigation showed that Mr. Nolan's charges against M. A. Moody, Miss Lang and others were not substantiated, and that his failure to make good was considered sufficient ground for his removal.

It was at the suggestion of ex-Representative Moody that the acceptance of Mr. Nolan's resignation was withdrawn two months ago. Mr. Moody having intimated to Mr. Hitchcock that Mr. Nolan should not be allowed to resign, but should be dismissed. Mr. Moody had previously been advised of the nature of the charges made against him by Mr. Nolan in his letter of resignation, and had declared that those charges could not be proven.

It was intended that Mr. Nolan be punished for taking his radical course, and the only punishment open was to order his dismissal. As far as can be learned, Mr. Nolan is not dismissed

MONTANA FOR A COMMISSION.
Eight Railroad Commission Bill is Passed.

A special from Helena, Mont., says: After a most memorable struggle, not unlike that in the house, where the republicans, through sheer force of strength, had ruthlessly overridden the democrats, voting down amendment after amendment and squelching all sorts of dilatory tactics, the senate today passed the Shaw-Tudor railroad commission bill, said to be one of the broadest and most far-reaching measures of its kind to be found in the United States.

The senate adopted an amendment authorizing the issuance of passes, but in no other important particular was it amended. The house will concur in these and the bill will go to the governor this week. There is a question whether he will veto it or not, although during the campaign he protested vigorously against the naming of railroad commissioners by the legislature. All his other objections have been accepted. The vote was 26 to 1, one republican voting against it.
