GENERAL NEWS.

The new Christian church, which was erected in Silverton, Ore., during the winter, will be dedicated the first Sunday in May. The building is about complete, and the society is now holding services in the basement of the building.

At Middletown, N. Y., Mabel Guy, aged 19 years, was shot in the head by another young girl who was playing with a 22-caliber pistol supposed not to be loaded. She walked a mile with the bullet in her brain. Surgeons failed to find the bullet, but believe she will recover.

Young & Co., of Salem, have secured the contract to erect the new Odd Fellows Home, in Waverly addition, Portland, on the East Side. The bid was $25,000, and the building is to be finished by September. Excavation has already begun. The building will accommodate 75 beneficiaries and all the officers and employees.

Captain E. W. Bell, for seven years chief of the federal secret service in the northwestern states, has resigned. It is believed he will be succeeded by Thomas B. Foster, who has been his assistant. The district comprises Washington, Idaho, Montana, Oregon and Wyoming. The headquarters are at Seattle.

A disastrous fire took place at Stevenson, B. C., when 62 cabins burned to the ground. Ten men had narrow escapes. The row was near Chinatown, which burned down Friday morning. It is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. The cabins were owned by the Lighthouse Cannery company.

The saloonkeepers of Tacoma have organized to fight the Sunday closing, and announce that they all purpose keeping wide open Sunday, April 14, and every Sunday thereafter. Prosecuting Attorney Rowland announces that he will prosecute anyone or everyone who discards the law.

the drafting of a new contract for the reclamation of the W. E. Burke segregation of 9000 acres of arid land in Harney valley by the pumping system, and the state land board passed the matter over until a subsequent meeting at Salem, when Mr. Burke's presence will be requested.

The boiler of engine 2618, third helper on a Southern Pacific freight train, blew up at midnight on the Tehachapi mountain, California, and instantly killed Bob Machin and Fireman Vaughan. Brakeman H. B. Jones was badly injured, but will recover. Four hours later a Southern Pacific passenger engine, No. 2702, blew up while leaving the roundhouse at Mojave, Ariz., and Acting Hostler H. B. Ernest and Helper D. Shea were killed outright.

STRUCK OIL IN NEZ PERCE.

Immense Flow of Petroleum Found While Boring for Water in Nez Perce County, Idaho.

What is perhaps a permanent flow of oil has been struck on a farm in Nez Perce county, Idaho. For years oil experts have prospected in various parts of the inland empire, but have found no permanent flow of oil, until a well drill penetrated this flow yesterday.

A special from Lewiston to the Oregon Daily Journal says of the important discovery:

Nez Perce is wildly excited over the discovery of an oil gusher on the E. G. Casson place, two miles from town, at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon and hundreds of people viewed the phenomenon today and yesterday. A steady stream of oil is pouring from a hillside and efforts are being made to control the flow. All last night men worked casing up the opening so that the valuable fluid, which is flowing at the rate of 30 gallons per minute, can be saved.

Petroleum was accidentally struck while S. P. Connor was drilling a well for water. He had reached a depth of 220 feet with no sign of water when the drill suddenly sank in a subterranean cavity. Immediately the bituminous liquid began oozing from the ground and when the bit was removed it spouted forth to the height of 10 feet.

This eruption continued for one hour. It then grew less forcible and finally subsided into a steady flow.

LA FOLLETTE AN ORATOR.

His Addresses Are Fiery and Fascinating.

Senator La Follette, who will lecture at the Christian church next Monday night, April 15, is an orator of national fame. A writer in Munsey's Magazine says of him as an orator:

Governor La Follette is the orator. When he takes his seat, a few weeks hence, in the United States senate, the torrent of his eloquence may chill and freeze; but in Wisconsin, among his farmers, he is irresistible.

About seven years ago it was my privilege to hear him at his best.

It was in the little Wisconsin town of Reedsburg, in a park surrounded by a double circle of farmers' bugles and packed inside with men, women and children, in holiday clothes. La Follette spoke from the grand stand, shaded from the sun by the branches of a tall elm. It was an anti-boss and anti-railroad speech. La Follette is anti-something-or-other. To fight with words is his food and drink. Peace and quiet are as monotonous to La Follette as they are to a storky petrel.

It was an afternoon in July, but he spoke with the fire and fury of a campaigning revivalist. One moment both arms were raised high above his head; the next, with both fists clenched, he rushed upon an imaginary foe.

He was vividly dramatic, yet not like a poseur. It was a speech of intense feeling, rather than one of reflection. Soon he was perspiring like a stoker. Off came his collar and tie, then his coat and then his vest. It was frenzied politics. The speech came in passionate scraps between roars of applause. Speaker and audience acted and reacted upon one another until the enthusiasm becomes almost a conflagration.

TRAVELING MEN KICK.

A List of Grievances Presented to Railroad Commission.

At the meeting of the state railway commission at the state house yesterday afternoon a sweeping petition was presented by the committee representing the T. P. A., Pacific division, which, if favorably acted upon, will affect a complete revolution of the method of handling traveling men on the railroads of the northwest, says the Salem Statesman.

The demands embodied in this petition may be summed up as follows: Issuance of interchangeable 5000-mile tickets.

Flat rate of 2 cents per mile. No Rebates.

No more coupon scrip books.

While these reforms are perhaps radical, they are also considered reasonable and just, inasmuch as the very favors asked for are and have been in vogue in the east and middle states for some time past.

Judd Geer Appointed.

The state executive board yesterday re-appointed C. A. Park of Salem, and Judd Geer of Cove, to succeed themselves as members of the state board of horticulture, says the Salem Statesman. There is another vacancy on the board which is to be filled at a subsequent meeting and for which position there are said to be two applicants, R. H. Webber and A. H. Sechler, both of The Dalles; but the vacancy will not be filled until the return of State Secretary Frank Benson from California. These officers serve for a term of four years.

DELIBERATE SUICIDE.

Why It Should Excite More Horror Than Any Other Murder.

As to its moral aspects, suicide is manifestly forbidden by the divine law. One of the commandments of the Decalogue declares, "Thou shalt not kill." To make the law as comprehensive as possible it is not said, "Thou shalt not kill thy neighbor," which qualifying phrase is employed in some of the other commandments—as, for instance, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor;" "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house." The prohibition to kill is therefore absolute. It forbids the taking of human life, whether by suicide or homicide.

There is another commandment which says, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Now, the love which we owe to our neighbor forbids us to slay him, and therefore the love which we owe to ourselves forbids us to compass our own death. If the law allowed us to kill ourselves, while forbidding us to kill our neighbor, our love for our neighbor would not be equal, but superior, to our love for ourselves.

Nay, I hold that suicide is a more revolting sin than the killing of another. The closer the ties of relationship between the murderer and his victim the more atrocious is the crime. In the estimation of mankind, a parricide, or matricide, or fratricide, or uxoricide, is a more shocking criminal than an ordinary homicide. And as a man has more intimate relations to himself than to a parent or brother or wife, his deliberate self destruction should excite more horror than the murder of a parent, brother or wife.—Cardinal Gibbons in Century.

BEECHER'S ONLY POEM.

The Verses Were Always Kept Sacred by Mrs. Beecher.

It was related by Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher that during their courtship Mr. Beecher once "dropped into poetry" and wrote a few lines of verse teeming with affection for his sweetheart. But the verses were always kept sacred by Mrs. Beecher, and nothing could win them from her. One day Mr. and Mrs. Beecher were in the office of Robert Bonner, the publisher.

"Why don't you write a poem, Beecher?" said Mr. Bonner.

"He did once," said Mrs. Beecher. "Recite it for me, won't you, Mrs. Beecher?"

But the eyes of the great preacher were riveted on his wife, and she knew that he meant silence.

"Come," said Mr. Bonner, "I'll give you $5,000 if you will recite that poem to me," addressing Mrs. Beecher.

"Why, it ran"—quickly said Mrs. Beecher.

"Enunciate" simply said Mr. Beecher.

And, although Robert Bonner afterward offered to double the sum first offered, he never got the poem from Mrs. Beecher. It had been hidden away by Mrs. Beecher and cherished as one of the dearest treasures her husband left her.

Persian Rugs.

"Antique Persian rugs," said the rug salesman, "are dyed with vegetable dyes; the new ones are dyed with aniline dyes. There's a great difference. Vegetable dyes are fifty or sixty times more expensive than anilines, and they give a color that is literally imperishable, a color that keeps growing richer and richer till the rug falls to pieces. Anilines, made out of coal tar, look well enough at first, but they fade. When a vegetable red or blue would be at its best an aniline red or blue would be nearly white. We civilized people harmed the Chinese by introducing our cheap opium among them, and now we have equally harmed the Persian rug by introducing our cheap anilines among the rug weavers."

The Hydrophobia Menace.

Since hydrophobia is transmitted by inoculation and its virus resides in the saliva of its victim, the only absolute safeguard is to keep dogs muzzled when at large. A muzzle is a nuisance no doubt and in the immense majority of cases needless, for almost invariably the mischief maker is the stray cur, belonging to no one in particular and coming from nobody knows where. But it seems impracticable to frame an effective regulation for the protection of the public from such irresponsible and dangerous creatures without making it applicable to all dogs.—New York Tribune.

Limit of Economy.

"I don't mind a young man economizing when he is out with me," sighed the girl, "but it seems to me that when he takes you in a penny in the slot machine parlor, drops a penny in a slot and hands you one of the ear things while he takes the other limit has just about been reached. Of course you can hear the opera almost as well with one ear, but how does it look?"—New York Press.

Charity.

The lady was making some remarks about the kind of clothes some other ladies at church had on.

"The finest garment a woman can wear," said her husband, "is the mantle of charity."

"Yes," she snapped, "and it's about the only one some husbands want their wives to wear."

The Fun of It.

"Why did you do that?" demanded the teacher.

"Oh, just for fun," replied Tommy.

"But didn't you know it was against the rules?"

"Sure! Dat's where de fun comes in."—Philadelphia Press.

RAILROADS MUST GIVE ESTIMATES

WASHINGTON COMMISSION REQUIRES FIGURES

Estimates of all Roads Now in Construction Must Be Made for the Use of the Commission—Statistics Must Be Complete in Detail—Commission Wants a Basis.

Within 30 days the work of estimating the cost of the railroad lines in operation within Washington will be completed, says an Olympian dispatch. Within two weeks notice is to be served upon the railroads that a public hearing will be held by the State Railroad commission to legally fix the valuations of the railroad lines for rate-making purposes, and a hearing will be set down as soon thereafter as possible.

This announcement was made at Seattle, according to the Times by Halbert P. Gillette, the New York engineer who was retained at a salary of $1000 a month to estimate the cost of reproducing every line in the state. Gillette says his work is practically completed and that the railroad commission is justified in calling its public program within two weeks.

The program of the railroad commission is to establish the cost of reproducing each railroad system, and to use these figures as the basis for future rate-making. Hearings will be given and the railroads are to be permitted to introduce testimony controverting the railroad commission's testimony. If the findings of the commission are unsatisfactory to the railroads they will have the privilege to appeal to the courts.

Must Ascertain Costs. It has been held frequently by the courts that the railroads are entitled to earn a fair return upon the valuation of their property. Until this valuation is found, the railroad commission has no basis upon which to work in ascertaining the rate that can be legally fixed in this state.

The commission must first estimate the revenues due on account of investment and then figure in the costs of operation, maintenance and legitimate extensions, or the sinking fund that should be maintained.

The last legislature authorized the commission to proceed with its program and to hold the hearings planned. A part of the $75,000 appropriation made for the commission was set aside for the purpose of completing this inquiry, which has already cost approximately $20,000.

Northern Pacific officials anticipated a similar action on the part of the Interstate Commerce commission, and filed with the commission a statement showing the present valuation of the railroad's property is $29,000,000. Whether or not these figures will be introduced on behalf of the Washington inquiry is an open question.

Roosevelt has appointed Ralph W. Tyler, a negro, of Columbus, O., to be auditor of the treasury of the navy department. Tyler is the man who it was announced had been considered by the president for a federal position in Ohio, particularly that of surveyor of customs at Cincinnati.

OSTEOPATHY

ITS GROWTH—WHY.

Never has any system of healing made such rapid progress as has osteopathy. But 13 years ago it was practiced by but one man, the founder. Today over four thousand graduate osteopaths are scattered over the world. When one thinks that to be an osteopath is not merely to adopt a fad, but that it requires a long and hard course of study, much expense and hard labor, it gives a seriousness to the subject that some are not willing to grant.

With the field of healing abundantly filled with medical men, and pre-empted by jealous legislation, that a new system can get a foothold, is abundant evidence of solid foundation and merit. When it is seen that a large percent of these four thousand osteopaths are university and college graduates and teachers leaving their profession, it shows that osteopathy is not a fad of the idle person to dote his mind on, but a profession of worth and profit in which they are casting their hopes in the struggle for advancement. An investigation of the principles of osteopathy reveals the why of all this. Simply that Osteopathy is a LOGICAL AND EXPLANABLE SYSTEM. It depends upon none of the mysterious and hidden principles of medicine, Christian science or magnetism, requires for its acceptance none of the credulity or superstition of medicine, nor the blind confidence in the ability of the doctor. But based upon the plain mechanical principle, teaching that with every part of the body in its correct position the forces that run the body, the nerve force and blood supply will be furnished each organ in the proper amount so that each will do its part as designed; and that when some part fails to work properly its force is deranged by some obstruction which must be found and removed. Just as when a watch or other piece of machinery is out of order, something is obstructing the power from the mainspring to the hands. These are principles that all can see and understand. This is why osteopathy has made such rapid progress.

The Panama Canal is a tough proposition and a big enterprise, but our government is determined to complete the task it has undertaken. With this object in view, a large corps of army engineers, who are inured to hardships have been sent to the scene of activity and are now busily at work. So are we determined to accomplish the object we have in view—that of retaining the continued patronage of all admirers of good, up-to-date clothing. That's why we have exercised so much care in the selection of our Spring and Summer stock, for 1907.
