MANCHURIA LUMBER RIVALS OREGON

In the summer of 1905 Consul General Thomas Sammons of Newchwang, made an extended trip into Manchuria, and visited Antung and Mukden in connection with the opening of those treaty ports. A comprehensive report on the mineral, forest and agricultural possibilities of southeastern Manchuria was made to the department of state by Consul General Sammons, from which are taken the following paragraphs on the Yalu lumber district:

Inasmuch as the Pacific coast states of America, and other parts of the United States as well, are heavily interested in the manufacture and sale of lumber, and as some of the manufacturers of American lumber anticipate that the Yalu river district will soon come into sharp competition with such of them as enjoy oriental sales, it may be well to point out that during the Russo-Japan war, commercially speaking, that industry on the Yalu was practically dead. The exact area of the Yalu river timber belt, together with the total estimated stumpage, is extensive both in the extreme southeastern Manchuria and northeastern Korea.

During normal years it is estimated that lumber, mostly 8-foot sticks of 12 to 24 inches square, to the value of from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 gold, has been shipped from Ta Tungkou, at the mouth of the Yalu river, on the Manchurian side, which has heretofore been the chief shipping point for all of the Yalu district output.

The logs were floated down the tributary rivers in rafts, and during high tide were landed on the higher levels of the mud flats surrounding Ta Tungkou. They were there assorted, graded and sold. Large seagoing junks to the number of from 4000 to 7000 carried them away to Chinese and Korean coast points, where in turn they were whipsawed by hand into rough boards and planks.

The average annual native customs collected on the export of logs from Ta Tungkou has been, approximately, 150,000 Antung taels, or about $125,700 gold. The total customs revenues of Ta Tungkou have averaged 200,000 taels annually, thus showing that by far the commerce of the port was chiefly confined to lumber. During the late war the Japanese army made extensive use of the Yalu river lumber.

Five Pieces of Lumber.
Not all of the sticks or logs from the Yalu river district are 8 feet in length. Some magnificent pieces of lumber were seen at Yunganno and New Wiju, on the Korean side of the river, where the Japanese military authorities operate sawmills. At the former place the longest piece, said to be the largest ever seen there, was 20 inches square and 40 feet long. They were free from knots and compared well in surface appearance to the best logs found in the states of Washington and Oregon. These Yalu river logs are, in nearly all cases, hewn square and cut into desired lengths before being placed in the river and subsequently collected into rafts. The grain is found to be finer than that of the fir lumber of the Pacific northwest.

"Pneumonia's Deadly Work" had so seriously affected my right lung," writes Mrs. Fannie Connor of Rural Route 1, Georgetown, Tenn., "that I coughed continuously night and day and the neighbors' prediction—consumption—seemed inevitable, until my husband brought home a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, which in my case proved to be the only real cough cure and restorer of weak sore lungs." When all other remedies utterly fail, you may still win in the battle against lung and throat troubles with New Discovery, the real cure. Guaranteed by Tallman & Co., druggists. 50c and $1.00. FARMERS KICK ON SACKS.

Walla Walla Jute Mill Management Is Criticized.

The opinion is prevalent among the most prominent wheatgrowers in the Walla Walla district that the manipulation of the grain sack question in the last state legislature is not satisfactory. M. H. Paxton, one of the large wheatgrowers of this district, says:

"The result of the law governing the price and distribution of prison grain sacks just enacted, will probably be that the penitentiary will have their sacks on hand at the end of the season. Farmers up in Spokane and Whitman counties can not afford to buy pen sacks at 9 cents with the local freight added and without any assurance that they can secure all they need at the same figure of the Calcutta sack dealers in Portland.

Does Not Regulate the Price.
"Instead of the penitentiary jute mill acting as a regulator of the price of grain sacks its usefulness has been destroyed in that capacity, because some of the farmers who were unable to procure prison made sacks at the reduced price could not see that because of the penitentiary product they were getting their sacks at a much lower figure than they otherwise would."

Mr. Paxton believes that a great mistake was made in the state attempting to make a profit on the grain bags manufactured at the penitentiary which, in view of the present high price of jute, brings the price close to that asked for the Calcuttas. If the state had kept the price down to about the cost or a trifle more, then the penitentiary would serve as a most effectual regulator of the price of grain bags. Another serious mistake was made in not purchasing their supply of jute when it was offered at 18 cents instead of waiting until it had advanced to 28 cents. And even at that figure they have but a small portion of the season's supply on hand.

The Cause of Many

Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.
