IDAHO HERD LAW HURTS SHEEP INDUSTRY

The Boise Capital News is somewhat alarmed at a "herd law" passed by the recent session of the Idaho legislature. The News fears that the sheep industry will be ruined by the law. It says:

Were the sheepmen of the last legislature who were almost strong enough in that body to secure the repeal of the two-mile limit law, caught napping after all?

That is the question that is agitating sheepmen just now as the full effect of another law which was almost unanimously passed begins to dawn upon them.

The law that is causing this agitation is known as the "Herd District Law" and was introduced by Jones of Shoshone, one of the insurgent forces, for the purpose of relieving the conditions in the thickly settled farming districts of north Idaho where stock has been allowed to run at large much to the detriment of the farmers and was aimed more particularly at hogs but it takes in the sheepmen also.

Under this law a majority of the qualified voters of any precinct or number of precincts, or any part of one or more precincts, may petition the county commissioners of their county asking that such district may be created into a "herd district."

In their petition they may designate what animal or animals they wish excluded so that if they wish they may have sheep only excluded from the district entirely. The petition may also specify the time of the year that they wish the prohibition to be effective. The county commissioners, after giving notice of time for hearing on the petition shall grant the same if it be found that a majority of the districts have petitioned for it and are satisfied that it would be to the best interests of the district.

Any person violating the law shall be fined not less than $1 for each animal and for each day that it shall be allowed to be at large within the district, and the pending of one action shall not constitute a bar to the bringing of other actions.

The owner shall also be liable in civil damages to any person injured by the animals trespassing without regard to the condition of his fences or whether he have any fences at all or not and the person damaged shall have a lien upon the stock for the amount of the damages and the cost of the proceedings to recover the same and may take the stock into custody until all such damages are paid.

The law goes even much further than this and provides that any one may take up any such animals which may be about to commit a trespass and may hold them until a reasonable charge shall be paid for his trouble and expense in taking them up and holding them shall have been paid.

It is claimed that this law, rigidly enforced, would put the sheep industry practically out of existence insofar as it is necessary for it to use public grazing lands, and sheepmen are becoming considerably agitated over it and are asking what their representatives in the legislature were doing when the bill was passed.

NO WOOL CONTRACTING.

Brief Review of Wool Situation from Shepherd's Bulletin.

The Shepherd's Bulletin says of the wool situation: There is nothing doing in the way of contracting. In Arizona sales of early shorn wools continue to be made at prices ranging from 16 to 19 cents, which prices are a little less than those paid last year.

They are held here at 25 to 26 cents for the lightest and most attractive wools, the clean cost being figured on the basis of 65 cents.

The prospects point to a good clip of territory wools, but prices which many growers are talking are considered too high. The growers in some cases, notably in California and Utah, are firm and want about the same prices as last year, but the dealers are not inclined to pay last year's prices, even where they know that the shrinkage is lighter than it was then, as is said to be the case with the California southern spring and Red Bluff wools.

In Utah wools are firmly held, although a number of dealers who were in the market have withdrawn; but it is said that there will be no weakening out there between now and new clip time.

While Texas wools are attracting but little attention, owing to the small supplies here, prices hold very steady on the few wools remaining. What call there is is principally for the fall wools, to be used in kersays and woven dress goods, and they command practically the same prices as before. The sales of the past month were limited to 125,000 pounds of fall, which were taken at 22 to 23 cents in the grease, the clean cost being 55 cents, clean. There is nothing doing in Texas as yet.

California wools have been almost wholly neglected, the fall wools, which were sent on her and secured, meeting with but little call. Occasionally a lot is disposed of at about 60 cents, clean.

Oregon wools have been fairly active at 22 1-2 to 24 cents for fine eastern staple.

The Mindoka Project Popular.

D. W. Ross, supervising engineer of the reclamation service, has returned from Mindoka. He is very much pleased with the manner in which the canals are acting. When these were constructed the engineers thought it would take a long time to soak the ground when the water was turned in, as the soil was sandy and seemed likely to take water like a sponge. Mr. Ross reports they have been very agreeably disappointed in that particular. When they got ready to puddle the canals and later on, they turned in 22 inches at the headgate and it flowed through the canal so rapidly that it bothered them to keep things ready ahead of it. In one instance it got ahead of the men and washed out a little ground at a point where a box was to go in.

An interesting feature of the developments there is that the population has changed almost completely since the tract was opened, those filing on the land having sold out to persons coming later. Mr. Ross thinks nearly 95 per cent of the original locators have sold out. They held on during the dry time; a class of people then came along with more money, willing to pay them good prices and the first-comers sold and moved on. In some cases as much as $50 an acre has been paid.

An immense amount of work is being done by the farmers, and it is the opinion of Mr. Rinkie, who is in charge, that 20,000 acres will be in crop this season.—Boise Statesman.

Death From a Crushed Finger.
An accident, which at the time of its occurrence seemed insignificant, resulted in the death of a man. A freighter brought little pain, was the result of the death early yesterday morning in a local hospital of John Harley, 45 years of age, a well known freighter who had driven in and out of Boise over the Idaho City road the last five or six years.

Last Tuesday the deceased was loading his wagon in this city and while putting a heavy barrel on the wagon the middle finger of his left hand got caught between the bottom of the barrel and the floor of the wagon and was badly smashed, although it caused little pain at the time.

The freighter took his load out, bound for Centerville. When he arrived at Placerville the entire left arm had swollen to several times its normal size, the result of blood poison setting in, and at Placerville he turned the team and freight bills over to another who drove on to Centerville. Harley returned to Boise and consulted a physician who sent him to the hospital. Here every effort was made to save the man's life, but toxemia had reached such a stage that his recovery was impossible.—Boise Statesman.

Doing Business Again.
"When my friends thought I was about to take leave of this world, on account of indigestion, nervousness and general debility," writes A. A. Chisholm, Treadwell, N. Y., "and when it looked as if there was no hope left, I was persuaded to try Electric Bitters, and I rejoice to say that they are curing me. I am now doing business again as of old, and am still gaining daily." Best of all tonic medicines. Guaranteed by Tallman & Co., druggists, 50c.

Need of Farm Machinery in Italy.
The British consul-general in Italy, says that the disastrous eruption of Vesuvius and the continuance of the Calabrian earthquakes have effected the curious change that the agricultural population of the central provinces is migrating to the south in search of work. In the meantime landowners are suffering sore straits in the matter of labor for their estates; and the result must be, the consul says, an outcry for labor-saving appliances, of which manufacturers should take advantage. He suggests that the visit of an agricultural expert would be very desirable to decide the type of machine most suitable for the land. In every case the machine should be as light as possible, the horses being small and bullocks being generally used for heavy draft purposes.

Osteopathy.

Dressing for Treatment.

Many women, and even timid, bashful men are frequently prevented from taking osteopathic treatment through fear of exposure and embarrassment. This idea is probably generated through failure to distinguish the osteopath from the masseur, whose work is upon the bare skin, while the osteopath works through one or two thicknesses of clothing. Men are treated through the underwear, having to remove only the coat, vest and outer shirt. Women remove the tight garments about the waist and put on a kimono or wrapper.

The object in dressing a patient is merely to free the body so that the tight muscles and ligaments and slight bony displacements may be detected, and so that force may be applied to correct them. Friction on the skin, it is thus seen, forms no part of the work, so nudity is of no purpose.

Osteopathic treatment is far less embarrassing than other systems. The cause of trouble can be located in external parts, bones, muscles and ligaments, the embarrassing local examinations are far less frequently necessary than in systems depending on reaching the trouble through the symptoms.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

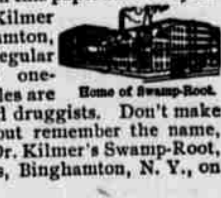

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

The regular and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

PERTINENT POINTS FOR PIANO PURCHASERS

The following points are not original with us. They are so full of truth, however, that we reproduce them. They may set you thinking. If any of them strike home and the coat fits, put it on.

- No. 1. Buy the best always. But as cheaply as possible, but do not expect to get a really good thing without paying its corresponding price.
- No. 2. The man who thinks he can buy the best for the market price of the poorest must get his experience, and he pays dearly for it.
- No. 3. The man who thinks himself so shrewd that he is bound to get a better bargain than anyone else is the one to overreach himself.
- No. 4. The man who cannot endure to pay a fair price for the thing he wants, wastes his money, buys what he does not want and that which does not suit his family.
- No. 5. The man who is so suspicious that he determines to trust no one but himself, is the man who oftenest gets cheated.
- No. 6. The man who wants the best, but buys something which is claimed to be "just as good," at a lower price, finds after he has paid his money that the article is not as good, and if it were it would have sold at the price of the best.
- No. 7. The man who takes everyone else word except that of the honorable dealer, is the man who often pays dearly for the advice that he supposes he is obtaining free.
- No. 8. BUY AT HOME.

Now, a word as to ourselves. We can furnish you with a first class piano, can give you much valuable information, can tell the truth about our own instruments and those of our competitors, but we cannot compel our customers to believe us if they are determined not to do so. "You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink." We want the piano business of Pendleton and vicinity. We have the stock, the assortment, the buying facilities and the selling prices, which ought to get it. We have the integrity of purpose, the broad business methods, which ought to inspire confidence. We ask the privilege of showing you our line of goods, of quoting price and of showing you what inducements we can offer to secure your trade. Will you see us before you buy? It can do no harm, it may do you some good, and we shall feel that at least you are fair-minded and willing to be convinced.
