WHEAT MARKET STRONG.

In Chicago it Again Goes Above the Dollar Mark.

Since the recent flurry in the price of wheat in Chicago, the local market has been on the upward trend. There is practically no wheat being offered to the shippers, but what little there is, is bringing from 70 to 75 cents per bushel.

In speaking of the wheat market today, E. W. McComas, one of the prominent buyers, said: "The price which is prevailing here is higher than the eastern price warrants. The price offered in Tacoma is about 52 cents, while the price in Chicago is now only about 10 cents higher. The rule is that there should be a difference of 30 cents between the two points."

ABOVE ONE DOLLAR IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, May 21.—Wheat again went above $1 today, July closing at 101½.
