GENERAL NEWS.

The explosion of an ammonia carboy in the Armour & Co. beef killing department at Chicago killed five men and a dozen others were injured.

Joe Appel, a restaurant man of Wenatchee, Wash., was arrested by order of the state dairy and food commissioner charged with handling adulterated meats. He pleaded guilty and was fined $75 and costs.

There are now 7762 Knights of Pythias in Washington, an increase of 736 during the past year. There are 432 Knights in Tacoma and 791 in Spokane. The Spokane lodge has absorbed every other lodge within a radius of 50 miles.

The general land office has determined to expedite the opening of the Coeur d'Alene Indian reservation and directed two examiners to inspect the final surveys as completed this spring so that an allotment of these lands will probably begin this summer and the opening of the reservation should come next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mette were poisoned by their daughter, Mrs. Mary Sladek, for the $5000 they carried as life insurance, is the charge made at Chicago before the grand jury. Mrs. Sladek is in the jail hospital. After the entire Mette family became ill after eating a meal at the Mette home.

Walter O'Neil, the 11-year-old son of Thomas O'Neil, a prominent resident of Superior, Wis., was found dead in a Northern Pacific box car on May 22. One side of his head was smashed. The police believe foul play figured in his death. The boy had been missing since he started for school Tuesday.

Repeated attempts have been made during the past several years to poison the family of Postmaster W. M. Isenhart of Chelan, Wash., and during that time he has had several head of livestock poisoned. No theory is held further than that Mr. Isenhart has incurred the bitter animosity of the saloon element.

It is expected that the Duncans, now in national convention, at Los Angeles, will, before adjournment, pronounce a radical manifesto against the wearing of neckties and fashionable hats, giving as authority Romans 1, 19; I Corinthians x, 32-33. Observance of the sartorial prohibition will be made a test of membership in the church.

If there is a large yield of wheat in the northwest the importers of jute say that a shortage in grain bags, which are selling at nine cents each in Tacoma, is occasioned by the big demand for jute. The market was up to 10 cents. It is firm at nine cents. The importers say they will go no lower unless the wheat crop proves a failure.

D. C. Corbin of Spokane, president of the Spokane International railway, and a millionaire, was recently married in the east to his second wife. He is 70 years of age. To a Spokane-Review reporter he acknowledged the fact, but positively refused to give the name of the bride. However, it is said she was Mrs. T. Peterson, aged 35, a widow who has been Corbin's housekeeper for several years.

The body of Ebert T. Dunning, a well known Los Angeles attorney, was found suspended in the water with a rope tied around its foot at the end of a long wharf at Port Los Angeles. He left a letter to his wife saying that he intended to commit suicide. Failing health, as a result of a serious railroad accident two years ago, was the cause.

The world's milk production for a year by a single cow has been broken by the Guernsey, Dolly Bloom, according to the report of Secretary William H. Caldwell, which was submitted at the annual meeting of the Guernsey Cattle club at New York. Dolly Bloom's record for the year was 17,297 pounds, or about 2923 gallons. She is owned by F. A. Ames of Boston.

FIRST AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

Established by Michigan Fifty Years Ago.

Lansing, Mich., May 25.—Plans for next week's semi-centennial celebration of the Michigan State Agricultural college, at which President Roosevelt will be the honored guest, are now complete. The celebration proper will begin Wednesday morning, when representatives of the farmers' organizations and educational institutions of the state will deliver addresses. Among the scheduled speakers are Governor Warner, George B. Horton, master of the state grange; L. Whitney Watkins, president of the state organization of farmers' clubs; Secretary I. H. Butterfield of the state agricultural society; Frank Hodgeman, president of the state engineering society; President August F. Bruske of Alma college, State Superintendent of Instruction L. L. Wright and President L. L. Jones of the Michigan State Normal school.

Thursday morning will be given up to addresses on the "Development of Agricultural and Engineering Education and Research Work." The speakers will be Commissioner of Education Elmer E. Brown, President W. E. Stone of Purdue university, and Director W. H. Jordan of the Geneva, N. Y., experiment station.

Friday will be the big day of the celebration. Beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning congratulatory addresses will be delivered by representatives of educational institutions and societies from five different parts of the country. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon President Roosevelt will give his address, after which the graduation exercises and conferring of degrees will take place. In the evening the societies will round up the celebration with their banquets, reunions and dances.

The Michigan Agricultural college antedates all similar institutions in the United States. Its origin was primarily due to the efforts of the State Agricultural society, which, after a campaign of 10 years, succeeded in having inserted in the constitution in 1850 a provision for the establishment of a state college. The legislature of 1857 carried this provision into effect and in May of that year the college was opened for students.

"There are more germs in the milk now used in Seattle than in city sewage." The foregoing statement was made by Dr. B. S. Paschall, chemist and milk inspector, who has made many milk tests in Seattle. Few people realize the seriousness of the milk situation in Seattle, said Dr. Paschall.

Osteopathy

ALL FORMS OF DIGESTIVE DERANGEMENTS.

What May Be Expected From Osteopathic Re-Adjustment.

The correction of bodily misadjustments, which is accomplished by the system of manipulation peculiar to osteopathy, effects great results in the treatment of digestive derangements of every variety. Sometimes these disorders are the result of direct interference with the nerves controlling the parts at fault, or controlling their blood supply; while in other cases they are reflexes of other troubles which affect the digestive apparatus through the systematic nervous system. But in any case there is an anatomical cause for the trouble and the osteopath succeeds in finding and removing it. It has long ago been demonstrated that dyspepsia remedies, of the medical variety, are not dependable. All such dyspepsia remedies are based on one of two ideas.

The first is to stimulate the digestive apparatus to renewed activity. But all drug stimulants have their reaction and the last condition is certain to be worse than the first. The second and more reasonable drug treatment, usually pursued only by a few of the highest class doctors of the old school, is to find what is the missing chemical element in the stomach and supply it. This missing chemical element is always, of course, something that the system should itself supply. When it is artificially furnished the parts that should produce it simply have no work to do, become impaired by idleness, and eventually more serious troubles result. The same thing is true in regard to the much-heralded "pre-digested" foods.

The only real way to cure the complaint, or any of the troubles resembling it, is to help nature to herself supply the missing element. This might seem at first a most difficult path to accomplish. But the osteopath knows why the parts furnishing these elements are behind with their work. The diet being reasonable, it is invariably because of some irregularity in the blood or nerve supply to the parts, and his training enables him to find the cause of that irregularity. He then works to re-establish normal nutrition to the lagging parts so that they will be enabled to take up their duties again. And they do it.
