HEYBURN WANTS A LAND COURT
 LAND LONG AND SHORT HAUL LAW

"I shall again introduce the land court bill and the bill providing an amendment to the present long and short haul clause," said United States Senator W. B. Heyburn, who is a business visitor in Lewiston, Idaho, and was asked by a reporter of the Daily Teller of that place what measures important to Idaho would be advocated by him during the next session of congress.

"The land court bill is important to every state where large sections of the public domain are located and was introduced last winter and is now before the committee. I shall reintroduce this bill at the coming session and while it will take some time to secure its passage. I shall labor until it becomes a law.

"By the provisions of this proposed act a federal land court will be established before which all questions between entrymen and the government will be determined. At the present time there is too close a relationship between the executive department and the department of justice in the handling of the government lands and their distribution and because of this condition many of the controversies have been determined by clerks in the department offices who may have had no particular knowledge of the law or of the legal rights of the parties concerned.

"The amendment to the long and short haul clause will provide for an equitable freight rate to all points of the railroad systems and eliminate the possibility of discrimination. By its terms in no case shall transportation company charge more for a short haul than for a long haul where the short haul is within the territory of the long haul.

"To illustrate just what is intended, the cities of the state of Idaho are now paying for Eastern freight the rate from the shipping point to Seattle back to Idaho. The new bill will place all cities upon an equal footing."

Senator Heyburn was asked how a proposition would be received by congress to condemn the Clearwater river as a navigable stream for the purpose of improving the river for logging and mill operations.

"Navigable rivers cannot be condemned," replied Mr. Heyburn, "and from the information I have been able to secure the citizens of the upper river country are adverse to having the river closed to navigation.

"It has been the policy of congress never to close a river that has been designated as a navigable stream, but it often seeks to improve streams so that they may be navigated. If the people of the upper river believe the Clearwater acts as a governor of freight rates, it would be unjust to them to close the river for any particular section of the state or for individual interests.

"I believe, however, that if the people here wanted to install a dam with locks that would permit steamers or other craft to pass or if the people at any point desired to construct a bridge with a draw which would not interfere with navigation, there would be no serious objections to such improvements."

RESUME LAND FRAUD CASES.

Over 30 Cases Now Awaiting Trial in Federal Court at Portland. United States Attorney William C. Bristol returned from San Francisco and Los Angeles this morning, after holding conferences with Secretary Garfield and Francis J. Heney in regard to the Oregon land fraud situation, and, it is expected that a resumption of the famous Oregon land fraud cases will commence some time in the next two months, says the Oregon Daily Journal.

Whether Mr. Heney will come to Portland to participate in the prosecution of the land fraud artists cannot be determined at this time, because of the great amount of work confronting the noted prosecutor in the graft trials in San Francisco.

Mr. Bristol's trip south is believed to have resulted favorably for the prosecution, and it is probable that larger appropriations and additional help will be allotted to the local federal attorney's office. More than 30 land fraud cases are on the docket awaiting trial besides a large number of other criminal cases, including those in which the defendants have been lying in the county jail for more than a year without having an opportunity of going into court for trial.

HEROISM OF GENERAL STARK.

William E. Curtis Writes of the Old Hero of Bennington.

William E. Curtis, traveling correspondent for the Chicago Record-Herald, has spent the past summer in the mountains of New Hampshire and writes entertainingly of the life and deeds of General John Stark, the hero of the revolutionary battle of Bennington, who is buried at Manchester, N. H. Mr. Curtis says:

A sarcastic yankee once declared that Vermont's greatest battle was fought in the state of New York by Massachusetts militia under the command of a New Hampshire man who was guilty of mutiny and treason by disobeying orders when he attacked the enemy and was under censure from congress at the time. This statement is somewhat exaggerated, but, nevertheless, comes pretty near to the truth.

Stark's family were Scotch Presbyterians. His father was born in Glasgow and came to this country in 1720, when he settled near the falls of the Amoskeag on the Merrimack river, just above where the town of Manchester now stands. There he lived until his death in 1758, when he was buried in the old churchyard in Manchester. He had four sons and they were all engaged with him in cultivating the farm and running a sawmill—one of the first if not actually the first, manufactory of any kind upon that river.

When John Stark heard the news from Lexington and Concord on the 19th day of April, 1775, he was busy in his sawmill. He gave instructions to his men to finish the logs that were waiting the saw, went to his house half a mile distant, changed his clothes, bade his wife good-bye, mounted a horse and started for the scene of hostilities.

Along the route he was joined by other patriots, and by the time they reached Medford they went into camp, were organized as the First New Hampshire regiment, and John Stark was elected colonel.

At Bunker Hill he deliberately walked 40 yards in advance of his earthworks, drove a stake into the ground, and told his men to hold their fire until the enemy reached that point. The order was obeyed.

STANDARD OIL'S DISCRIMINATION

AMERICAN OIL CHEAPER IN EUROPE THAN AT HOME.

Monopoly Has Discriminated Shamelessly Against American Consumers, as Shown by the Report of Commissioner of Corporations Smith—Below Is Given a Small Part of His Testimony—Prices Not a Result of Supply and Demand.

Washington, Aug. 11.—In his report to President Roosevelt on the petroleum industry and practices of the Standard Oil company, Commissioner of Corporations Herbert Knox Smith says in part:

In the business of selling petroleum products in foreign countries the price of the Standard Oil company has apparently been to sacrifice the interests of the American consumer for the purpose of securing the Standard's foreign business, which is a very important one. In 1904 over 55 per cent of the illuminating oil produced in this country was exported, of which the Standard exported about 87 per cent.

The relative movement of oil prices as distinguished from their absolute level has shown for the last eight years a startling disparity between the United States and foreign markets, particularly from 1902 to 1905. The American price steadily advanced from 1897 to 1902. The New York export price advanced much less up to 1902, declining in 1904, and the Hamburg (Germany) price shows practically the same movement as the New York export price, while the London price shows a steady decline from 1901 to 1904 and a very important drop during 1905.

The course of American and foreign prices in the last five years covered by this report has shown a greatly increased divergence, in general the American prices going up and the foreign prices showing a marked decline.

Still more remarkable is the comparison of the absolute level of prices (as distinguished from their movement) of the United States and foreign markets.

Monthly Prices Compared.

It should be noted in comparing absolute prices of American with foreign markets that a difference of about 1 cent a gallon must be allowed for on account of the difference in the quality of oil sold in the two markets, water-white oil being the basis of the American prices and standard white the basis of foreign prices. Water-white oil is worth about 1 cent more than standard white. One cent a gallon should be deducted from the difference between American prices and foreign prices.

The following summary statement shows the averages of the monthly prices for the periods specified after deducting costs and duties:

Average United States price (June, 1903, to August, 1905)	10.3
Average German price (June, 1903, to August, 1905)	7.3
Excess of United States price (less 1 cent)	2.0
Average United States price (January, 1903, to August, 1905)	10.5
Average English price (January, 1903, to August, 1905)	7.3
Excess of United States price (less 1 cent)	2.2
Average United States price (October, 1903, to August, 1905)	10.4
Average Danish price (October, 1903, to August, 1905)	7.2
Excess of United States price (less 1 cent)	2.2
Average United States price (September, 1905)	9.0
Average Belgian price (September, 1905)	6.0
Excess of United States price (less 1 cent)	1.1
Average United States price (September, 1905)	9.0
Average price in the Netherlands (September, 1905)	7.0
Excess of United States price (less 1 cent)	1.0

Similarly for the leading oriental markets:

Average net price in United States (January, 1903, to May, 1905)	8.4
Average net price in orient (January, 1903, to May, 1905)	4.8

Excess of United States price (less 1 cent)

Not a Case of Demand and Supply.

During 1904 and 1905, a period when the Standard claims that an oversupply existed, that company actually took large quantities of oil in Russia to supply its trade in Europe and the orient. During 1904 it shipped from Russia over 1,500,000 barrels of illuminating oil for distribution in European and Asiatic countries. It has secured large crude production in Roumania and has established refineries there and in other countries for refining foreign crudes.

It is perfectly evident that the Standard has not always been concerned with maintaining the export trade in American illuminating oil, but has been solely interested in maintaining its own domination in the markets of the world, frequently at the expense of the United States.

Having a monopoly at home, it has charged such prices as it could thereby extort, and the American consumer has had to pay these prices. Meeting competition abroad, it has given the foreign consumer enormously lower prices, and it has used the profits made at home to maintain its position abroad, so that the American consumer has been severely discriminated against for the purpose of maintaining, not the dominance of American export trade, but the dominance of a particular combination which has used its power frequently and conspicuously to the disadvantage of the American public.

HE COULDN'T BREAK INTO JAIL.

He Even Acknowledged Voting the Republican Ticket.

For the first time in his judicial career Probate Judge Worstell of Wallace, was beseeched yesterday afternoon by "Red" Watson, a well known miner, to inflict a 10-day jail sentence, says the Tribune of that place. Weston pleaded with the court to send him up, saying he had been on a bat for about three months, and really wanted to sober up. "It's the only way I can get all the booze out of me," he said.

When the judge recovered from his amazement he explained to the mining man that he could not commit him to jail unless he had disobeyed some law, and so far as he knew there was no law against filling up and keeping full for any period of time that might be desired. The unfortunate miner then offered to go out and break a window, start a fight, or do anything that would entitle him to the privilege of the county bastille. Still the judge refused, and warned Weston against wilful violation of the law.

"But, judge," he said, "you don't know how it is: I work on the 2200-foot level of the Frisco mine, where it's always wet and cold. I come to the top and I want a drink; one makes me feel like another, and after I've had that I don't care what happens; well, it's been like that for three months now. I've paid out $43 in fines in two months."

"Being barred from doing mischief in order to get sentenced, Weston tried to convince the court that he was a bad man and deserved to be locked up.

"What crime have you committed?" he was asked.

"Every one on the calendar," he promptly replied, "and I have voted the republican ticket."

Even this did not convince Judge Worstell, and Weston went away grumbling about having paid taxes for 20 years and not being able to go to jail when he felt like it.

WOULD HAVE DIED BUT FOR CUTICURA

Five Children Suffered With Fearful Skin Troubles—One Little Girl's Eyesight Was Endangered—A Grateful Woman Writes of

FIVE PERFECT CURES BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Cuticura Remedies saved my two children. My little girl's face was so covered with sores that she could not see and I thought at one time that her eyesight was gone for good. After two doctors had failed to do her any good a friend asked me to try the Cuticura Remedies. I did so and in two or three days we could see a great change and in four weeks she was well and her face was smooth and had cured nicely. She had been sore for three months so that she could not rest night or day. My little boy was sore all over. His head was a solid scab. First we tried a doctor who did him no good, but the first time I bathed my son's head with Cuticura Soap and put Cuticura Ointment on it he rested better at night and the next morning his head was much better. In five weeks he was well. I cannot say enough for the Cuticura Remedies for if I had not used them my baby would have died. My little sister, Nora B., had a terribly sore face. I told my mother of the Cuticura Remedies. She used them and the child's face soon got well after the best doctors had failed. Pearl B. used Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills for sores on her body and face, and little Pinky B. had a sore head. Her mother used Cuticura Soap and Ointment on it and she was soon well. Mrs. Mary Hicks, Sutherland, Dinwiddie Co., Va., Apr. 15, 1907."

ECZEMA ON FACE

Cured by the Cuticura Remedies. "I had eczema in very bad form all over my face for the past four months. Physicians in several towns prescribed for it without giving me any results, but four weeks ago I commenced using the Cuticura Remedies, consisting of one cake of Cuticura Soap, one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and to-day I am perfectly well. Nettie Helgeson, Ridgeway, Iowa, Mar. 4, 1907."
