

DON'T BLAME HER

For she cannot help it. Women are often cross, irritable, hysterical, and declare they are driven to distraction at the slightest provocation. Men cannot understand why this should be so. To them it is a mystery because in nine times out of ten this condition is caused by a serious feminine derangement. A remedy is necessary which acts directly upon the organs afflicted, restoring a healthy normal condition to the feminine system, which will quickly dispel all hysterical, nervous and irritable conditions. Such is

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

The following letter serves to prove this fact.
 Mrs. Mattie Copenhaver, 315 So. 21st St., Parsons, Kans., writes: "For two years I suffered from the worst forms of feminine ills, until I was almost driven frantic. Nothing but morphine would relieve me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me health and happiness and made me a well woman."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?
 Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

NEW YORK LETTER

New York, Jan. 25.—The poor have their troubles, as well as the rich of this big city. Statistics estimate that 175,000 men and women are now out of employment and are wandering the streets of New York, facing starvation. One of the most pitiful cases of extreme poverty yet reported was that of Eugene Halle, a young German composer and musician, who came near forfeiting his life in order that his wife might be provided for and that he could continue work on an opera which he hopes will place him in the front ranks of musical composers.

Halle resides in a little flat in West 83d street. Some time ago, the fever of ambition firing his veins, he abandoned his music classes and began the composition of an opera founded on "Viola d'Amore," permission having been granted by the author, Hans von Wolzogen, the distinguished German poet.

Then the young composer gave an evidence of devotion such as is seldom in evidence in modern life. Realizing that his savings would not be sufficient to support two during the period required for the production of the opera, he gave all his money to his wife to provide food for herself and baby, telling her that he had made arrangements to take his meals with a friend.

Carrying out this pretense he left the flat at meal times, returning to resume his work with the feverish intensity of a man whose life depended upon the issue, and who was even then slowly dying of starvation. For days and weeks he lived with scarce a mouthful of food, until he collapsed and was taken to a hospital. Careful attention and nursing brought the composer back to life. Now, aided by Heinrich Neyn, a wealthy artist, he is pursuing his work under more favorable conditions.

Nothing is needed to complete this little romance of real life but the completion and success of the opera to which Halle came near sacrificing his life. Perhaps that last chapter may be added in the future.

For President—Bill Haywood.

A man who not many months ago occupied a prison cell, charged with being the most ruthless arch-conspirator of the century, recently faced a New York audience as the logical candidate for the presidency of the United States. Eugene V. Debs, the Indiana orator who has twice led the socialist "hosts" to defeat, has apparently retired from the field in favor of William D. Haywood, he who was acquitted of complicity in the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg, after Harry Orchard had accredited him with being the inspiring force in the assassination of scores of men during the western labor war. Now the accredited mouthpiece of the Western Federation of Miners, Haywood is touring the country as the acknowledged standard-bearer of the social democracy, whose nomination for the presidency is a foregone conclusion.

Whatever may be thought of Haywood's party and policy, those who see and hear him recognize a man of great force of character. Lacking the scholarly brilliance of the French-American Debs, he is yet in possession of a wide knowledge that is startling in one who has spent the greater part of his life in the mines. The days, and weeks, and months spent in the Boise jail was fruitful of wisdom for this chosen leader of the "proletariat."

That period offered him the leisure for a protracted course in science, literature, sociology, economics, history and law, and he improved it to the utmost. To the knowledge of human nature in the rough, gained in the western mines and as a leader of that most militant of labor organizations, the Western Federation of Miners, Haywood has added the polish and culture that comes of reading many books.

He is a serious man, this stocky, heavy-set son of toil, and bull-dog determination is reflected in his single eye and in his square-jawed face, and his bulky, sinewy form suggests the strength of a giant and the hardihood of the pioneer. He does not consider the presidential nomination of the "red-card" party as a joke.

With Fabian socialism, drawing-room reform and kid-glove revolution he has nothing in common. He gives the impression of a man of action, of one who does things. It may be offered as the "one best bet" of the day that Bill Haywood will never occupy the presidential chair at Washington. In the eyes of most of his fellow citizens, desirable and otherwise, he is riding a nightmare after nothing. At that, he will doubtless ride a good race, and be cheered in the stretch by more Americans than have ever before applauded a socialist presidential candidate.

Liquor Dealers on Strike.

The strike of the tenement dwellers of the east side was but a trivial thing compared with the latest calamity that threatens New York. A dryness like unto that of the desert of Sahara will envelop the metropolis, unless the brewers recede from their demands for an increase of $1 a barrel in the price of beer. As an alternative, the doors of the saloons will be locked and the white-robed, he-angels of Bacchus will depart and be known in the accustomed haunts no more. And the convivial New Yorker, unless he be of the wine-bibbing or cocktail-consuming class will be deprived of his accustomed foamy beverage and, perforce, go sober to his bed.

'Tis a dreary prospect offered by this threatened strike of the saloon-keepers, and, like most modern calamities, it is due to the wicked and grasping machinations of a trust. The alleged combination of New York brewers is held responsible for the present crisis and their nefarious tactics may become the subject of a legislative investigation. If it has no other result, the incident may supply inspiration to the prohibitionists. The liquor dealers have declared solemnly against a business devoid of profit. Moral, deprive them of profit and the traffic will be effectually squeezed. Easy, isn't it?

MANY PEOPLE ARE TRYING IT

LOCAL DRUGGISTS ARE KEPT VERY BUSY

No Sufferer of Kidney Trouble or Rheumatism Should Leave It Untreated—Get the Ingredients from Any Good Pharmacy and Mix Them Yourself.

That the readers of this paper appreciate advice when given in good faith is plainly demonstrated by the fact that one well-known local pharmacy supplied the ingredients for the "vegetable prescription" many times within the past two weeks. The announcement of this simple, harmless mixture has certainly accomplished much in reducing the great many cases of kidney complaint and rheumatism here, relieving pain and misery, especially among the older population, who are always suffering more or less with bladder and urinary troubles, backache and particularly rheumatism.

Another well-known druggist asks us to continue the announcement of the prescription. It is doing so much real good here, he continues, that it would be a crime not to do so. It can not be repeated too often, and further states many cases of remarkable cures wrought.

The following is the prescription, of simple ingredients, making a harmless, inexpensive compound, which any person can prepare by shaking well in a bottle: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Karkon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Any first class drug store will sell this small amount of each ingredient, and the dose for adults is one teaspoonful to be taken after each meal and again at bedtime. There is enough here to last for one week, if taken according to directions. Good results will be apparent from the first few doses.

NET PROFITS

WHEN you advertise you expect to get something out of it—more than you put in it; if you don't, it's a losing game—and losing money is poor policy.

But—it's not how much an ad costs—it's how much profit it brings you.

Net profit---that's the main thing.!!

ADVERTISING is not a magic art. All it is, is putting into print effective selling arguments a good salesman would use orally. Write those arguments in an attractive style—bring out the merits of a proposition so that the other fellow feels an instinctive desire to possess it—tell him why he should buy it and then finally satisfy him that the price is right.

To get the best results, cater to the largest number you can reach among those who make good wages and live well—people who can afford to buy what you have to sell.

The East Oregonian's readers are composed of that class who willingly pay 65 cents a month for it in preference to buying the cheaper papers. Net result—they are people who can afford to buy what you have to sell.
