Brevities

THE HALL OF FAME.

Lord Charles Beresford, the British admiral, so well known to Americans, has given his consent for his daughter's conversion to the Catholic faith. It is said in Pittsburgh that Mr. Carnegie has in view a plan to give substantial aid to the cities and towns that are struggling to support Carnegie libraries.

The Kaiser has tried pretty much everything but business. He is a composer, a painter, a sculptor, a maker of armies, a preacher, and now he has an art store.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, premier of Canada, on his retirement from office will write a history of the Dominion. In his early years he did considerable newspaper writing. He is a master of the English language.

Louis Madelin, lecturer of the Alliance Francaise in the United States for the coming year, will lecture in the United States and Canada on historical subjects at the leading universities and expects to return to Paris in May.

Clark Williams, who has been appointed by Governor Hughes as superintendent of banks of New York state, is vice president of the Columbia Trust company of New York. Mr. Williams was graduated from Williams college in 1892.

Rev. John Green Brady, three times governor of Alaska, has lost what money he had, and at fifty-eight he has got to begin again. He risked his all in the Reynolds enterprises in Alaska, which were wrecked by the failure of the Reynolds bank at Valdez.

Abbas II, the khedive of Egypt, is one of the most cultured of oriental rulers and is thoroughly European in his tastes and habits. He is an expert linguist, a devotee of music, a composer, a practical agriculturist, a teetotaler and about the only Egyptian man who is not a cigarette smoker.

Both the president and Mrs. Roosevelt are fond of music, and each of their six children inherits the love and has had the advantages of the best teachers. Mrs. Longworth is perhaps the best musician in the family, being a graceful performer on the piano and able to accompany Mr. Longworth in his almost professional skill on the violin.

Louis Gold, one of the best known builders and real estate men in Brooklyn, has had a most interesting career. He was born in the province of Wilna, Russia, and fled Russian persecution and emigrated with a number of others to Argentina. There he was held in peonage, from which he escaped and came to the United States. Today he is rated as one of the Brooklyn millionaires, although he is only thirty-two years of age.

NEW YORK CITY.

The board of estimate of the city says the municipality will spend $15,000,000 more in 1908 than during the present year.

Daily in New York city 49,500 persons pay the street car lines 5 cents for the privilege of hanging fast to straps for from three to fifty miles.

Most of the new houses being built in the borough of Brooklyn are of frame construction, costing on an average $1,100 each, while a majority of those in the Bronx are of brick, each one costing about $3,500.

What was an almost impassable waste of two miles of rocks and brush a quarter of a century ago is now one of New York's most fashionable thoroughfares, possessing natural beauties and artistic structures not surpassed in the city. It is Riverside drive.—New York Herald.

There are more ways than one to kill a cat. In fact, there must be nine ways.

Toothblacks.
"As we have toothblacks so they've got toothblacks in the Sunda islands," said a traveling man.

"What is a toothblack?"
"Don't you know? A toothblack is an old woman with a pot of black paint, a gold leaf book and a set of vegetable brushes. From hut to hut she passes, and for a small fee—a yam, a bunch of bananas, three coconuts—she paints the Sunda islander's teeth a glistening black—all but the two front teeth. These she glides. And the Sunda islander thereafter goes about with a self-conscious smile revealing a truly knock-me-down dental display, a black and gold symphony. It is a common trick among the semicivilized to color the teeth. In Macassar dark brown is the popular hue, and in Japan among the unenlightened classes the teeth of wives are always painted black. In such countries the toothblack is an institution. She goes from house to house as full of gossip as a barber."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

His Profession.
In the midst of our tea drinking in the little Parisian restaurant, says Miss Betham-Edwards in an account of "Home Life in France," a gentlemanly individual wearing a tall hat and frock coat entered and, after a short colloquy with the young master, passed out.

"You would never guess that gentleman's errand," Marcel said, smiling, as he repeated himself at the tea table.

"He looked to me like a rather distinguished customer," I replied. "Some government functionary on half pay or an owner of bonds."

Marcel smiled again.

"That well dressed gentleman, then, supplies us with toothpicks, which his wife makes at home. He calls once a month and takes our orders. I dare say he and his wife between them make from $6 to $8 a week and contrive to keep up appearances on that sum. It is an instance of what one calls 'glided poverty.'"

How a Flea Jumps.
It is said that a flea leaps 200 times its height, and, while it usually does land on its feet, it often falls, especially when it falls on a perfectly smooth surface where the claws can get only a slight hold. A flea has six legs, whose great length and bulk make them so heavy that they must be a great help in keeping their owner right side up when it makes one of these gigantic jumps, and when it lands upside down or in some other way its ability to kick is so great that not more than one wriggle is needed to set things right. A flea's wings are mere scales and of no use; but, small and worthless as they are, they tell the entomologist something about the proper classification of the insect. To the flea itself they have no value.

An Amusing Slip.
A well known temperance lecturer who is an ardent advocate of prohibiting the public sale of liquors was becoming dramatic over the ideal conditions prevailing in a certain prohibition town.

"I am sure all who are present will agree with me," he concluded, sinking his voice to an impressive whisper, "when I tell you that during a stay of over two months I saw but one drunken man—a most refreshing sight!"—Buffalo Times.

Refined It.
A little girl was told by her mother that under no circumstances must she use the word "nigger," as it was offensive to the colored people. The next day at school she was requested to read aloud about a niggardly man, and she astonished the teacher by reading in this wise: "Once upon a time there was a very negrogardly man," etc.

Sunday School Man Coming.
Rev. W. C. Merritt of Tacoma, international Sunday school worker, will be here on April 26 and arrangements are now being made to have him deliver one or more addresses in local churches.

The Fringe of Art.

Elithu Vedder, the painter, lives in Rome, where he has a beautiful apartment, and in Capri, where his white villa looks down on the sea.

"Elithu Vedder," said a New York illustrator the other day, "is as bohemian as ever. Fame has not spoiled him. I visited him last year, and his bohemian ways were delightful."

"You know they tell a story of a visit that he once paid to Alma-Tadema in London in that glittering house which Mrs. A.T.'s money, made in grateful, comforting cocoa, bought."

"The morning after his arrival, very early, before even the servants were up, Vedder began a thunderous knocking on his host's sandalwood floor."

"Alma-Tadema turned in his gold bed, threw back the lace coverlet and sat up."

"Who's there? What is it?" he cried in a startled voice.

"I say, Tadema," shouted Vedder, "where do you keep the scissors that you trim your cuffs with?"—Washington Star.

Truly Admirable.

An Illinois politician who once delivered what seemed to him an excellent and striking speech on the trust question was most anxious to ascertain its effect upon the Democratic part of his audience, these for the most part being Irish.

"Was the speech to your liking, Pat?" he asked an old friend in the audience.

"Sure, it were a grand speech," averred Pat in a tone of such sincere admiration that the politician felt moved to investigate further.

"Was there any part of it more than another that seemed to hold you?" the speaker asked.

"Well, now that ye ask me, I'll tell ye," responded the Celt. "What took me most, sir, was yere perseverance—the way ye went over the same thing ag'in and ag'in."—Harper's Weekly.

Sandy's Opinion.

MacPherson—That whusky's no bad. It's seven years old.
