RICHES CAUSED ALL HIS WOES

FRANK GOULD SAYS

Millionaire Betrays Love for Wife in Railing Against Fate That Made Him Rich—Mother of Woman Trying to Effect a Reconciliation and the Breath May Soon Be Healed.

Hot Springs, Va., April 24.—Broken in health, worn to a shadow by constant worry and remorse over a quarrel with his wife which has resulted in a separation, Frank J. Gould tonight cursed the fate that made him rich and blamed his wealth for all his woes. The cause of the numerous stormy scenes between himself and his wife was traced to the vast wealth and natural charms of the woman which made her the idol of society and the recipient of many gallantries. That Gould is still desperately in love with his wife, that he would give all of his millions for the old love of the woman who sought a separation, that unless he and his wife are reconciled a kind Providence may end his troubles is the belief of all his intimate friends. News from New York tonight was to the effect that the wife had also repented and is listening to the counsel of her mother, who is urging her to go back to her husband. The strain of Frank's troubles is said to be telling on both George and Helen Gould, and the family is making every effort to heal the breach. The cause of the quarrel is said to be due to the gossip of tale bearers who have been tattling both to the husband and wife, and intimating that each was untrue to the other. There was a story afloat in New York to the effect that the wife had been cornered and a reconciliation may occur at any moment. It is stated on the highest authority that there will be no action for divorce by either party.

officials, who permit logs of No. 2, or lower grades to be exported into the United States, is believed by some of the lumbermen of this part of the country and of the Sound.

It is said the trouble will arise over what is a No. 2 log, as it is pointed out that the loggers of the British Columbia side desiring to get rid of their No. 1 logs will be tempted to have them scaled as No. 2, or worse, until they get them out of British Columbia; when they reach the Washington side of the line they can have another scale.—Spokane Chronicle.

WYOMING COAL

Brigham Young Opened First Coal Bank in Early Days.

The coal and oil of southwestern Wyoming have for many years commanded a wide interest, says a government bulletin. As early as 1848 Fremont found beds of coal in this region, and in 1848 an "oil spring" near the site of the present town of Hilliard as noted in "The Latter-Day Saints Emigrants' Guide," a little book by W. Clayton. It is reported that Brigham Young had a shallow well dug at this point, which is now known as the Brigham Young oil spring.

Coal mines at Frontier, Diamondville and Cumberland, in Uinta county, now produce about 2000 tons of coal a day, and some oil wells in this region furnish a small yield of oil. An extended report on this southwestern Wyoming field, by A. C. Veatch of the United States geological survey, prepared especially with reference to the coal and oil, has just been published for free distribution as professional paper No. 56 of the survey.

The area considered comprises the extreme southwestern corner of Wyoming, and a small portion of Utah. Mr. Veatch discusses the geology of the region, gives detailed descriptions and sections of the coal beds and presents a history of the development of the oil field, including a list of wells drilled, well sections and other details.

The report contains several excellent maps and many other illustrations. One of the maps shows the irrigated and irrigable lands of a part of the region, and a minor section relates to underground water.

The oil of this region is of very high grade and the areas in which it may probably be found are of large extent, as is indicated on the maps accompanying the paper.

It is noted that the government is today the largest owner of lands in this region. In the two most important coal fields, which cover an area of 221,797 acres, the government still holds 106,622 acres, and 76,038 acres were included in the Union Pacific grant.

Found Long Lost Parents.

After traveling all the way from the Philippines with her two little girls, intending to reside temporarily with her parents, whom she had heard had settled here, Mrs. Charles Koenig was on the point of giving up the search this morning and was in the deepest despair at her failure to find Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barry, her aged father and mother, and was at her wits end to know just what to do, says the Yakima Republic. Then she called at the sheriff's office and with in half an hour Deputies Coy and Metzger had located the old people, residing at 215 North Third avenue. And that home is today the happiest in North Yakima.

The circumstances of the case are unusual. Mrs. Koenig had not seen her father and mother for 18 years. The family formerly resided in Minnesota but some years ago Mr. and Mrs. Barry went to northwestern Canada and the children, four girls and a boy, scattered. Mrs. Koenig married a young German soldier in the United States army and he is now and has been for some time past a quartermaster sergeant stationed in the Philippines.

RAIN NOT NEEDED, SAYS THIS MAN

DECLARES GRAIN WILL NOT BE INJURED YET.

County Commissioner of Walla Walla County Says Present Dry Weather Will Not Do the Damage It Would If It Came a Month Later—Wheat Plant Just Taking Root.

Although many people throughout the country claim that rain is needed at present, at least one man, who is well versed in wheat raising and the conditions surrounding it, thinks differently. County Commissioner Geo. Struthers said this morning that he did not think rain is needed at present, although he maintains that rains similar to the one night before last and yesterday morning will do no harm, says the Walla Walla Bulletin. "We could do without rain for a month yet," said Mr. Struthers, this morning, "and the wheat would not suffer in the least. Possibly the ground would get a little dry, but it would tend to harden the young plants, and if rain comes at a month from now, wheat would mature much better than if we have plenty of rain now and have a dry spell a little later."

"At present the young plants are just taking root. When the sprout comes out of the ground, it does not grow very high before it has exhausted its supply of nourishment from the seed. Consequently it commences to send out sprouts into the ground, which form the roots, so that nourishment can be taken from the ground. While the plant is making roots the sprout running out of the ground does not grow any, and is apparently at a standstill."

"At this time many people become alarmed, thinking their wheat needs rain and will not do well without it, but the plant would be better off without rain at this period, as too much water tends to make the plant root too fast, with the result that a dry spell coming on later will do the plant more harm than had the plant rooted in a slow and substantial manner."

Mr. Struthers claims that wheat on Eureka flat never looked better and prospects are for a bumper crop. Reports from every section of the wheat-raising country are to the same effect, and the man who has several hundred acres of land in wheat is now wearing a broad smile on his face. "Few people realize," said a well known rancher today, "what excellent prospects we have for a record-breaking crop this season. I have been raising wheat in this country for the past 20 years, and I do not recall a season when the prospects were so good as they are this year."

"What rains we have had have been general over the country, coming as gentle showers, and there is every reason to believe these showers will continue as long as they are needed. I for one do not think there is any reason for wheat raisers to worry, for I believe the crop this season will equal, if not exceed any previous record that has been made in the inland empire."

Whitman county wheat growers have broken the record in number of sacks contracted for. Through the Farmers' Protective union orders were given Wednesday for 376,000 grain sacks.

Irrigation Talk No. 5.

WIND.

Mr. Peterson of Astoria went out to see our lands on one of those recent windy days. The agent tried to get him to wait until next day. He insisted, saw the lands and bought.

After the deal was closed the agent remarked: "I feared the wind would frighten you away." "No," said the visitor, "I looked at some lands ten years ago in another now leading district, I struck a sand storm and was glad to get away with my money and my life. Today that land cannot be bought for ten times what I could have gotten it at then. I am not going to let wind scare me out again." Mr. Peterson is going to set his land to peaches.

There are many Umatilla county people who will in a few years, be telling of when they could have bought $500 to $3000 land for $100, under the Funnish Irrigation Project.
