

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

No other medicine for Woman's ills in the world has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

No other medicine has such a record of success for woman's diseases, or such hosts of grateful friends as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for feminine ills, inflammation, ulceration, and consequent Spinal Weakness.

It has relieved more cases of Backache and Local Weakness than any other remedy. It dissolves and expels tumors in an early stage of development.

Irregularities and periodic pains, Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility, quickly yield to it; also deranged organs, causing pain, dragging sensations and backache. Under all circumstances it acts in harmony with the female system.

It removes that wearing feeling, extreme lassitude, "don't care" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feeling, excitability, irritability, nervousness, dizziness, faintness, sleeplessness, flatulency, melancholy or the "blues." These are indications of feminine disorders, which this medicine overcomes as well as slight derangement of the Kidneys of either sex.

Women who are sick and want to get well should refuse to accept any substitute for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DESCRIPTION OF IDAHO'S LAKE DISTRICT

W. D. Fletcher, the pioneer bandmaster and musician of this city, who spent a portion of last season in the beautiful lake district of northern Idaho, has written the following excellent descriptive sketch of that country for the East Oregonian:

Lake Chatcolet is one of the many lakes in the Coeur d'Alene mountains. It is in Idaho, 22 miles from Tekoa on a branch of the O. R. & N. running from Tekoa to Burke.

Its altitude is 2100 feet above sea level and is noted for its abundance of fish and game, and also as a great summer resort. It is a fresh, clear body of water about three miles long and one mile wide, surrounded by mountains on three sides and the beautiful St. Joe river on one side.

People go there from all parts of the country for a summer outing and you can see tenting parties in every direction, particularly on the banks of the St. Joe river and from its mouth to Coeur d'Alene City, a distance of about 35 miles, the banks of Lake Coeur d'Alene.

There is no lack of small boats for hire. One evening I counted 40 at the boat house and they were not all in. These can be rented by the day or month at a reasonable figure.

There are three kinds of fish in the lake which are the most numerous—black bass, trout and perch. 'Tis but a few years ago that there were no fish in the lake but trout, which is the native fish.

Bass were planted in a lake adjoining (Hayden lake) which overflowed, carrying the bass into lake Chatcolet. The bass immediately commenced war on the trout and so successful have they been that now you will catch 50 bass to one trout.

The bass are of a canabalistic nature, eating all the trout spawn and small trout they can find so it will not be long before the bass will have full possession of the lake. There are many ways of catching these fish. The old fashioned hook and line without any kind of a pole or bait; trolling with a spoon or spinning minnow, they will raise to a fly.

A good many fishermen use what is called a buck tail, which is made to represent a large fly with a black body and long wings made of hair.

I had greater success with a spinning minnow than any other way. This device is made to represent a minnow about three inches long and covered with hooks (mine had 15) with a fan shaped ring at the head and tail which revolve as you pull it through the water.

You fasten this to a line about 50 feet long, then throw it out in the lake the full length of the line. This is done by taking hold of the line about six feet from the minnow and swinging it around your head until you get the impetus. Then pull the minnow in to shore, hand over hand.

In this way I have caught a great many bass, some of them weighing three and one-half pounds, and I tell you when you get one on your hook that weighs that much you will think you have got something.

One day I saw an old fisherman trolling with a field mouse and fishing with a buck tail at the same time. He told me that there were times when the bass preferred the mouse to anything. The bass are good eating, some say its good as trout. They are good, but I prefer trout.

There are times of the year when the lake is covered with ducks, geese and other game. There are a few ducks there the year around and mud hens by the hundreds.

I think I am safe in saying I have seen a thousand mud hens in one flock. I made the remark one day to a gentleman who had lived about the lake for years 'that I had seen mud hens in many parts of America, but never saw more than two or three together at a time, and they were not considered good to eat or for anything else.'

He replied that mud hens are good eating and told me how to prepare and cook them, so the next time we went gunning we brought home 12 mud hens besides some ducks. We gave away all of the mud hens but three, thinking that was enough for an experiment, then we prepared and cooked according to instructions, which were "to skin them like you would a rabbit; remove the entrails and wash thoroughly in salt water. Fry or stew as you would a duck." The meat when cooked resembles that of a jacksnipe both in taste and appearance. We thought it good and were sorry we gave any away.

St. Joe river heads in the Idaho mountains, is fed by numerous streams, the clear water being one of the largest and empties into Coeur d'Alene lake. It is navigable for about 30 miles, runs through a large part of the Nez Perce reservation.

Steamboats run every day from Coeur d'Alene City to St. Marie, a point on the river 18 miles from its mouth. Smaller steamers go up past St. Marie to the head of navigation. The St. Joe is a beautiful, clear stream, very deep. Some say it has no bottom, but I guess it has, though a 50-foot line does not reach it in places.

The largest steamers running from Coeur d'Alene City up this river are the George Oakes and the Idaho, each capable of carrying about 500 people. There are many smaller steamboats which ply from Coeur d'Alene City on the river. Lumber, timber, dairy products, stock and mining are the principal businesses on the river. There are a number of towns on the O. R. & N. branch—Harrison, Burke, Mullen, Wardner and Wallace. Wallace is one of the most up to date mountain towns I ever saw.

It is the county seat of Shoshone county. It is 80 miles from Tekoa. Its altitude is 2745 feet above sea level. has a population of about 5000, has a paid fire department, etc., electric lights, paved streets, fine buildings and a system of gravity water works with a pressure sufficient to throw water wherever required.

It is situated in a great mining section, about the center of the greatest silver and lead belt in the world. The mills for reducing the ore from this belt are not surpassed by any, not excepting the great mills in Australia and South Africa. These latter may have greater capacity, but in point of machinery and facilities for taking the metal from the ore there is no better made. Later on I will tell you how the ore is mined and conveyed to the mill, and the process it goes through to obtain the metal.

SETTLER'S HOME BLOWN TO ATOMS.

Family Have Narrow Escape Near Wardner.

Wardner, Idaho, May 2.—With their home blown to atoms by the explosion of a large quantity of dynamite, themselves cut in many places and badly stunned by the shock, and their hired man blown many feet from the house by the powder and badly injured, E. A. Carlson and wife have reached Kingston, eight miles below Wardner, after a hard journey down the river.

They relate a harrowing story of their nearness to death at the hands of would-be assassins. The Carlsons reside on a ranch up the North Fork river and had just completed a large new house on their ranch. Last evening, just after retiring, a terrible explosion of dynamite took place, completely demolishing the house and furniture, and throwing the inmates many feet through the air, injuring and stunning them. The hired man was found 50 feet from the house in a dazed condition. All the animals in the barn north of the house were killed or injured and the barn torn down.

Just who set the blast off has not been learned as yet, though officials are at work on the case and expect to capture the parties soon. It is stated that some Finns living in the woods near by have been making threats against settlers, and the work of dynamiting is laid at their door.

Great excitement is felt all along the river by the many settlers. Serious trouble is looked for unless the officers are strong enough to prevent a riot.

RENO IS BANKRUPT

NEVADA'S MINING CENTER
IS IN SORE STRAITS

Threatened With Deficit of $100,000 and Income Will Not Meet Expenses—Cost of Conducting the City Is Close to $20,000 Per Month—Mayor Is Not Worried Over the Outlook.

That a good town may become financially embarrassed if not carefully managed, is shown by the fate of Reno, Nevada, which it is declared is in a most serious condition. A press dispatch says of the fate of Reno: Reno has been dashed upon the ragged rocks of bankruptcy.

Whether or not there are any frenzied finance methods involved is not known, but it is true that the treasury of the mining center is empty, and that the property owners of the city are confronted with the unwelcome news that they are threatened with a deficit of $100,000. This disclosure was made by some interested taxpayers who got busy and made an investigation.

Reno has an income amounting to more than $7500 per month for taxes alone. In spite of this the city awoke today to find itself bankrupt. But the mayor says he is not going to burn any candles to do any figuring, and Councilman Kinney, who has aided in the work of passing upon the bills, is not wearing a troubled look. In fact, no explanation seems to be forthcoming. It was shown by the investigation that the cost of conducting the affairs of the city has cost close to $20,000 for each 30 days and that the council has no system of checking bills.

Sounds funny doesn't it—but it's true. You can get a brand new liver—just as active and healthy as a liver can be—by the simple process of taking an occasional NR tablet according to directions. And when you have the new liver it means that all the ailments that came from the old one—such as constipation, biliousness, sick headache, indigestion, dyspepsia, stomach trouble, rheumatism, malaria, chills and fever, pimples and bad complexion will disappear.

Take an NR tablet to-night and you'll feel better in the morning.
