CATTLE SHIPMENTS

How Animals Are Loaded on Board Vessels in Hawaii.

Afterward I was taken to Kawaihae, where I saw cattle loaded in a most cruel manner. It was a little after 6 o'clock when I landed on the beach among a lot of cowboys and half-naked natives. The cattle were corralled under the trees, and when one was ready to be taken aboard a rope was tied about its horns. A cowboy on horseback then rode into the surf, dragging the frightened steer into the water. The rope was tossed to a half-naked native who was swimming, and he in turn carried it to the men waiting in a small boat. These men pulled the animal, which must now swim or drown, to the boat and tied him by the horns to its side. After eight steers had been tied up in this manner the engine on the steamer was set to work and the boat pulled alongside by means of a rope. The cattle were then hoisted on board by the use of a bellyband. The method of handling these dumb animals is brutal, and while the men seem to use as much care as possible in moving them about, their pitiful bellowing caused by fear made as pathetic a scene as I have ever witnessed. Thousands are shipped every year, and it seems that some more humane method of putting them aboard might be adopted.

The Japanese sailor on these ships is said to be the best for keeping the ship clean, while the native excels in handling the boats, especially in rough water. The Hawaiian is a born swimmer, and native boys will follow these vessels for several hundred yards as they are leaving Honolulu, swimming alongside and diving for coins thrown overboard by the travelers. The passage on these boats is always rough, and on the Ewalani, as the ship lay at anchor out in the channel, the nights were intensely warm. Freightage in this way is necessarily expensive, but those in authority say that it is the only way practical, as no wharf could withstand the lashing of the waves caused by the mad fury of the winds during the winter. At that season it is often impossible to make landings along the rocky coast of Molokai. Leslie's Weekly.

The Electro Magnet.

In engineering works the electro magnet is taking a very prominent place. This device dispenses with hooks, slings and other lifting apparatus. By throwing a switch controlling the current the magnet is energized and thereby attaches itself to the bars, castings, scrap or pig iron which it is desired to lift. The magnet poles are shaped according to the nature of the material to be raised. For heavy rails they are oblong and are slung from the crane hook by a short chain. Castings weighing over two tons are successfully handled by electro magnets. Another use to which the electro magnet is put is in breaking old castings so that they may be melted and utilized. To accomplish this the magnet is made to lift and drop a steel ball weighing from one to six tons.

Passing of a Famous Bridge.

At last the old bridge over the Golden Horn at Constantinople is about to be done away with and replaced by a new structure. An amusing tale is told in connection with the efforts of an American firm to secure the order. With a view to impressing the sultan with the quality of its work an elaborate painting was prepared for presentation to his majesty showing the bridge as it would appear during a storm which would have done credit to the Atlantic. However, the firm was informed that the sultan would be so horrified by this view that it at once prepared a picture showing the bridge as it would appear on a beautiful summer's day. Even this, however, Reuter says, failed to effect its purpose.

Picture Frame Reform.

A campaign against the classical gold frame one constantly sees on pictures is being made by an American artist, Charles Field of St. Louis, now in Paris. He contends that every frame an artist possesses should be especially designed as regards molding and carving to fit a given canvas, so it becomes not only part of the picture, but also the thing that shows it to best advantage. The movement has caused much interest and comment in American art circles. Already John Martin of New York has taken up the new idea, and two of his pictures will be exhibited in the coming autumn salon framed in this way. Argonaut.

Cold Steel.

A new bayonet and also a new sword have been decided upon, but it is not known when they will replace the present regulation weapons. The sword is designed for thrusting and will be long, straight and narrow, after the pattern of the rapier. The bayonet, too, will be long and thin, so as to give its wielder a good reach. It was said some time ago that the days of long range fighting had made the bayonet almost obsolete, but the Russo-Japanese war proved that hand to hand fighting has by no means been relegated to the past. London Court Journal.

Dangerous Sense of Humor.

George G. Morton, a machinist residing on Russell street, has very sore ribs and all because he laughed too heartily. He was thoroughly enjoying a joke played on a comrade with a garden hose, and as he watched the sport from a window he laughed with great gusto, so much so that he was seized with pains and had to be helped to a seat. A medical man was called and found that he had fractured a rib and had torn away part of the lining about another rib. Bermuda Royal Gazette.

MORE LINES FOR SALEM.

Electric Railways to Cover the Willamette Valley.

The following from the Salem Statesman shows the vim with which the people of Salem go about it to secure electric lines for that place. The Statesman says:

A rousing Salem-Stayton electric railroad meeting was held Monday evening at Turner and from all accounts was a most enthusiastic success. It was the first boost meeting ever held at Turner but probably will not be the last. Among those from Salem who attended were A. Hockestein, president of the Salem Business Men's league, and E. Hoffer, president of the Willamette Valley Development league.

The meeting was held at the Masonic hall, which was crowded to the doors. Excellent music was furnished by the Turner band.

Following the meeting it was announced that the committees would commence the sale of stock in the railroad enterprise Wednesday morning. The work will be started today all along the line and it is thought that there will be little difficulty in getting enough money to start the work in a short time.

The following will sell the stock: George Brown, Willis Caldwell, W. L. Freres, Charles Streff and Dr. Beauchamp, Stayton; J. W. Ransom and Ed L. Martin, Turner; Sherman Swank, Charles Hein and Frank L. Pound, Aumsville. Headquarters will be maintained at the Salem Board of Trade rooms.

WORKING ON PARK.

Walla Walla People Are in Earnest in Providing Recreation Grounds.

Ten trenches, three feet deep and each extending clear across a square 40 acres that were dug at the city park yesterday and in addition to this two miles of ditching, a mile and a quarter of pipe was laid, says the Walla Walla Statesman.

To do this work 90 men worked all morning and 102 were employed in the afternoon. The amount of work done by quitting time was surprising. Each of the plumbing shops of the city sent a man to the park to connect the pipes as they were laid.

There will be a hydrant every 125 feet in the park, 125 plugs in all, and the water system it is claimed, will be the best of any park in the northwest, as a 50-foot hose will reach any part of the park.

Already over $2500 has been spent in improving this coming beauty spot and the work is just commencing to show up. When the water is turned on it will soon bring out the grass and make the place a 40-acre lawn.

While the tract cannot be used as a park for several months, it will be well worth one's time to take a trip out East Alder street and see just what has been done.

THE GREATEST AERIALISTS.

Peerless Potters to be Seen Here With Norris & Rowe's Circus.

The Peerless Potters, world's greatest aerialists, with the Greater Norris and Rowe circus, museum, menagerie, hippodrome and congress of nations, which will exhibit in this city Thursday afternoon and night, May 14th, were brought to this country direct from their triumphal engagement at the Hippodrome, London, England.

These performers are American by birth, but have spent most of their time in the capitals of Europe, where their success has been tremendous. They are undoubtedly the highest salaried performers in their line in the world. During the run of the big circus in San Francisco this spring 279,873 persons paid admission during the run of 60 consecutive performances, and the Peerless Potters had the place of honor on the long program that consisted of sensational features.

The press of the city were unanimous in according the Peerless Potters to be the world's greatest artists. Their flights through space are thrilling in the extreme. They turn full double twisters and tripple somersaults 60 feet in the air and catch by their hands and feet as gracefully as butterflies. There are seven performers in the troupe.

READ WHAT THE PRESS SAYS OF THESE ARTISTS

"Miss Branscombe is a ——— and accompanist of ability. —Musical Courier.

"Miss Branscombe, who comes of a musical family, has musical ability amounting to genius." —Kings-ton, Ont., Whig.

"Prof. A. C. Jackson has endeared himself to the hearts of the music loving people of Raleigh and to hundreds of North Carolinians who have been delighted by his exquisite voice.

"He has identified himself with the wonderful progress in the development of musical culture in this city. He possesses one of the best baritone voices ever heard in this state, and has won an enviable reputation as a musician." —Raleigh News and Observer.

"Chicago should be proud of the talent of Gena Branscombe. This young composer is original, and though she writes with great rapidity no two songs are alike. Some of the leading musicians of the country, among them Herbert Witherspoon and George Hamlin, are glad to add her songs to their repertoire." —Musical Leader, Chicago.

At Chickering Hall on Wednesday afternoon Mr. Roy Williams appeared, playing Leonard's Military Fantasia and Dvorak's Humoreske. Mr. Williams does not force tone. His melody playing is a constant flow, always clear. He reached the climax in the Fantasia with great accuracy. The audience was most enthusiastic, and at the conclusion of the Humoreske the violinist was called again and again to bow his acknowledgements. —Boston Times.

Mr. Roy Williams, of Boston, proved himself a musician of high standing. His playing was a delight to those who listened to him. —Worcester Gazette.

"As a song-singer (for the best songs) I never saw his equal, considered under all sorts of conditions." —Mr. Charles E. Woodhull, of Boston.
