Are We Safe and Good?

The seats are absolutely safe, cannot fall down, being held in place by the Curtis Truss System. No other circus is so equipped.

The detectives with the show are from the R. J. Coach Secret Service Agency at Cleveland, Ohio.

Gambling and catch-penny schemes are not tolerated or permitted.

Pickpockets and sharpers are promptly spotted and locked up.

Special attention called to the Sells-Floto science of tent construction and erection to withstand rain and storm.

No privilege car. Only circus without it. The privilege car is a saloon on wheels, a gambling den that saps the pocketbooks of performers, canvas and other attaches, under cover to public and police, in direct violation of all laws and decency.

WAR ON COYOTES HAS BEEN SUCCESSFUL

The government has just issued the following bulletin concerning the results of the coyote-killing campaign in the forest reserves. The bulletin says:

The forest service has made vigorous efforts to destroy wolves and other predatory animals on and near the national forests, and through its force of forest rangers has carried on the most systematic and successful war on these pests ever undertaken. Besides the regular force of rangers a number of expert hunters and trappers have been employed in the worst infested regions and gratifying results have been obtained.

It must be borne in mind, however, that the areas thus protected are but widely separated spots in a vast extent of wolf country, and unless ranchmen and settlers are stimulated to similar efforts permanent results are not to be expected.

Following is a record of wolves and coyotes killed in 1907, furnished by the forest service. In many cases the records are incomplete or approximate, but they come from widely scattered localities and serve to give an idea of the success of the war against these animals. Numerous bears, mountain lions, bobcats and other animals also were killed.

In making up these reports the supervisors of the various national forests have added to the number of animals killed by forest rangers and hunters employed by the forest service those killed in the vicinity of the forests by ranchmen, cowboys and professional hunters, and in many cases it has been impossible to separate the records. Also in a few cases bounty records for the county have been included. Hence the forest service should not be credited with the total number of animals killed.

The capture of 1723 wolves is reported from 39 national forests, which comprise an area of 72,760 square miles. The surrounding country included may amount to as much more, making an area of about 145,520 square miles to which the reports relate, or about one-tenth of the total area inhabited by wolves in the United States.

The capture of 23,208 coyotes is reported from 77 national forests, which comprise an area of 106,746 square miles. This is doubled to include the surrounding country to which the reports also refer makes an area of approximately 213,492 square miles, or about one-ninth of that inhabited by coyotes in the United States.

Poisoning.

No poison has yet proved so effective as pure sulphate of strychnine, provided the proper dose is used. The most effective dose is 4 grains for wolves and 2 grains for coyotes. The common 3-grain gelatin capsules sold by druggists will hold, if well filled, 4 grains of strychnine and are better than the larger capsules. The regular 2-grain capsules should be used for coyotes. The capsules should be filled, securely capped, and every trace of the intensely bitter drug wiped from the outside.

Each capsule should be inserted in a piece of beef suet the size of a walnut and the cavity securely closed, to keep out moisture. Lean meat should not be used, as the juice soon dissolves the gelatin of the capsule. The necessary number of poison baits may be prepared and carried in a tin can or pail. They should never be handled except with gloved hands or forceps.

The baits may be dropped from horseback along a scented drag line made by dragging an old bone or piece of hide well saturated with fetid scent, or they may be placed around or partly under any carcass on which the wolves or coyotes are feeding, or along trails which they are in the habit of following.

Gelatin capsules quickly dissolved in the juices of the stomach. Strychnine taken on an empty stomach sometimes kills in a very few minutes, but on a full stomach its action is much slower, and the animal may have time to travel a considerable distance.

The World's Best Climate is not entirely free from disease, on the high elevations fevers prevail, while on the lower levels malaria is encountered to a greater or less extent, according to altitude. To overcome climate affections, lassitude, malaria, jaundice, biliousness, fever and ague, and general debility, the most effective remedy is Electric Bitters, the great alterative and blood purifier; the antidote for every form of bodily weakness, nervousness and insomnia. BALL GAME AT WESTON.

Chamberlain Speaks From Auto on Streets of City.

Weston, May 9.—The Weston Normal team is playing the Adams aggregation this afternoon. The normal boys have been winning all the games so far this season, and the game this afternoon promises to be a good one. The seniors of the normal are spending much time and considerable expense upon their play, Uncle Rube, which will be presented at the opera house sometime during the pioneer reunion.

A large crowd of people of the Weston country were out to hear Governor Chamberlain speak yesterday. He talked on the street from an automobile.

Week End Excursions to Hermiston. Beginning Saturday, May 2 and continuing indefinitely during the summer, the O. R. & N. will run excursions to Hermiston and the government reservoir, on Saturday and Sunday of each week. The ticket over the railroad will include the passage by stage from Hermiston to the government dam. A round trip rate of $2.50 has been made from Pendleton, including the stage trip to the dam. Excursionists going down on Saturday must return Sunday; those going down on Sunday must return Monday. This promises to be a delightful trip and offers every inducement to visit and inspect the $1,000,000 government irrigation project six miles from Hermiston.

WORLD'S RICHEST INDIAN IS IN TEXAS

The richest Indian in the world is Lon Hill of Harlington, Texas. His wealth is conservatively estimated at $3,500,000, says the Denver Post. He owns more than 300,000 acres of the best land in the Rio Grande valley. Every foot of it can be irrigated.

At the rate which other land in this section of the same character is selling, $20 per acre for these 300,000 acres would not be an excessive figure. Figured on that basis, this Indian is worth $6,000,000. He is not given to overrating things, and the first estimate is his own.

Lon Hill is a full blood Choctaw says a southern exchange. He is proud of his Indian blood, and a stranger is not long in his presence before the fact is made known by Mr. Hill that he is an Indian.

"This Indian has been able to take care of himself," he will say. "I never have received anything from the government, and I am not expecting anything."

This is true. He never shared in any of the allotments in Indian Territory. He has been making his way ever since he was a boy.

The marvelous thing about the great fortune which Hill now possesses is that he has accumulated it all during the last six years. He located at Brownsville, a little more than six years ago.

Hill and others induced the Rock Island people to build a railroad to the town. Then he began getting options on land along the proposed line.

The land which he had bought for $1 per acre went to $5 per acre before the railroad had reached Brownsville. When the line was finished and the influx of settlers and investors began land values mounted higher and higher.

Mr. Hill is just now completing a system of irrigating canals and ditches to irrigate 40,000 acres of his land. The main canal is more than 25 miles long, and runs from the Rio Grande to a point a short distance east of Harlington. More than 25 miles of laterals are being built. All of this land is to be planted in sugar cane. Three large sugar mills are to be erected to care for the cane crop when the land is placed in cultivation.

In addition to his vast landed holdings, Hill owns the townsite of Harlington. This place is situated at the junction of the main line of the St.

Louis, Brownsville & Mexico railroad and its branch line which runs to San Fordyce.

Hill is married. He is devoted to his wife and children. Concerning his early life, Hill says:

"I punched cattle in Indian Territory when a young man. I saw the need of an education and had acquired a fairly good start in that direction when I entered the University of Texas. I was 27 years old when I began to study law. I went through the University of Texas and graduated in the law department of the University of Virginia. I now am 49 years old."
